Second-Oldest Auto Reposes in Shed

KINGSVILLE, Ont. (CP) — A retired auto worker says a car he found in ruins in an abandoned foundry 16 years ago may be the second oldest in Canada.

Herbert W. Giles believes the Shamrock, now refurbished and sitting in the garage behind his home here, was assembled in 1893 in Wardsville, about 30 miles northeast of Chatham.

Some of its parts, including its steering wheel and some drive-train components made in the United States, weren't manufactured until after 1900, perhaps as late as 1904.

But Mr. Giles says he believes those parts were additions to the 1893 Shamrock, replacing original parts as they became available.

"During my research, people in Wardsville told me about a woman there who had good reason to remember when the Shamrock was first built—it was the year she was married, 1893," Mr. Giles said in an interview.

Automotive historians generally agree that the first car built in Canada was a steam buggy built by Henry Seth Taylor in Stanstead, Que., now restored and on display at the Ontario Science Centre in Toronto.

Mr. Giles says the Shamrock was a prototype for a car that never went into production, built by William and Charles Mimna, two brothers who had a stone-cutting business in Wardsville.

As it sits now in Mr. Giles' garage in this town about 25 miles southeast of Windsor, the Shamrock has a buggy-like body built on a wooden chassis with a wooden, two-seat body and is powered by a single-cylinder gasoline engine.

Many of its components, including the lever for its two-speed transmission, appear to have been hand-made, says Mr. Giles. The Shamrock has a top speed of about eight miles an hour, he says.

It was in 1956 that Mr. Giles found the Shamrock in an abandoned foundry near Glencoe, a few miles northeast of Wardsville. It took six months of negotiations for him to acquire it.

"It was a real basket case," says Mr. Giles. "The car was in bits and pieces and I had to haul it home in a pickup truck.

"Some parts were missing and I had to have replacement parts made. The radiator coils were the hardest to replace—I finally had them made from refrigerator parts."

Now the Shamrock rarely leaves the garage it shares with a soon-to-be-refurbished 1925 Star behind Mr. Giles's home in this town about 25 miles southeast of Windsor.

Jesus Movement—Salvation or End?

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Some church observers think the Jesus movement in the United States is a lightweight fad that will die out within a year. Others think it will revitalize the entire Christian cause, either outside the institutional churches or through gradually being absorbed into them.

In any case, it is, for the moment, a lusty and novel phenomenon, with a bandwagon, group appeal to a growing number of youngsters in many places.

One of the most broad-gauged appraisals of it came recently from Dr. Elton Trueblood, a widely respected and perceptive Quaker philosopher at Earlham College in Richmond, Ind.

In a circular letter to members of the Yokefellows, an interdenominational association pledged to regular disciplines of Christian devotions and service, he says many of the "Jesus people" are young people who have been part of the drug culture but have revolted against it after finding it self-defeating.

"In a mood of desperation they have turned to Jesus as a viable alternative to their former despair and disillusionment. . . .

"The new life in which these people now rejoice is one of almost continuous hilarity. They shout and sing and call out to anyone who will listen, 'Jesus loves you.'"

He says it's obviously a positive step when anyone stops the self-destruction, both mentally and emotionally, of trying to escape reality through drugs, and begins seeking real fulfilment.

"The adherents of the new cult often carry about with them tattered copies of the New Testament which they read assidulously. There may, unfortunately, be no understanding of the scholarly work on the gospels. . . ."

However, he adds, "just to know intimately what Jesus said and did, including the way in which He died and rose again, is to know something of a revolutionary importance" and "one does not have to be a scholar or acquire a mastery of Greek" to do it.

On the other hand, he says, the movement reflects several dangers and shortcomings, including its "fundamentally simplistic approach."

"One weakness is that the Jesus people do not represent a full gospel. However valuable it may be to concentrate upon Christ, there are other aspects of truth which are needed. How strange, for example, to have so little reference to God!"

At the same time, he concludes, a "fragmented gospel" is better than none.

TENANT PROVES HARASSMENT

NEW YORK (UPI) — When Nelson Goff ignored his apartment eviction notice, the landlord put the pressure on. Not only were his heat, electricity, hot water and postal service discontinued, but even the toilet seat was removed.

Emotionally distressed, but determined to keep his Manhattan apartment, Goff, 23, sought psychiatric help. And he got a lawyer, too.

This week, Goff was awarded $10,000 damages by state supreme court justice George Starke. The judge ruled that the landlord, A. I. H. Development Corp., was "wanton and malicious" in its efforts to remove the tenant.

A psychiatrist from St. Vincent's Hospital testified that Goff needed weekly therapy as a result of the landlord's acts, which began in August.

Canoeist's Drowning 'Accidental'

A coroner's inquiry into the death of a 37-year-old Victoria psychiatrist has found he drowned accidentally.

Sooke district coroner Eugene Murphy said no blame has been attached in the case of Dr. William Andrew (Gary) Wilson.

Wilson of 1368 Hampshire, drowned March 21 in the San Juan River. He had been canoeing down the river after starting about 15 miles upstream. His body was found in the overturned canoe about six miles downstream.

The coroner said his verdict is no criticism of Wilson's ability as a canoeist.

Council Elects Di Castri

Elected vice-president was R. R. Jeffels and Ron Lou Poy was elected treasurer.

About 120 persons, representing the organizations and agencies in the community council, attended the meeting.

A warm English afternoon. Two young men in a late model car—thirsty. A pub. And a pretty barmaid. And somehow what started out to be a quick drink turned into a three day stay. Playing darts. Fishing with her brothers. Drinking and arguing with her Dad.
That's independence. The holiday freedom to go where you want, stop when you want—for as long as you want.
Like meeting those Londoners the day before you were leaving for Devon—only to change your mind and head off to Edinburgh with them for the Festival.
This summer, because we think an airline should offer more than just a "seat" to Europe and back—we worked out some ways to give you all the holiday independence you could want. And they're all Air Canada exclusives.
Like an Avis car with special economical rates—from $10.15 a day with unlimited mileage.
Three types of accommodation offers from $7 a night per person in over 500 hotels in 20 countries (all are based on two sharing, and like the car, must be arranged before you leave). And although all four are 7 day minimums—the days needn't be consecutive; you can scatter them over your entire stay, buy several packages, mix and match to suit your plans.
Another independence offering is our "Open Jaw" option—you can fly into any of Air Canada's 11 European destinations, tour around and return from whichever city is closest to you—for little or no extra cost.
All of this on top of a new 22-45 day excursion fare that's almost as low as charter. But unlike charter—we don't tell you when you have to go and come home. You can leave on any of our scheduled flights—and change your return date in Europe if you want. Your children under 12 can fly for half fare. And you can charge it all on your credit card.
Add it all up: the holiday values, the new fares and freedoms we're offering—then work it out.
The charter "seat". Or the Air Canada holiday. Which is really the better bargain? Ask your travel agent.
And while you're there ask for our Holiday Guide—it's packed with dozens of other super holiday values. Or call us.

Talks Fail to Break Trade Deadlock

By JOHN HAY

OTTAWA (CP) — Beneath expressions of satisfaction from both sides, there appears little evidence that Prime Minister Trudeau and President Nixon made progress on the Canada-U.S. trade deadlock beyond an agreement to take another look at their positions.

Officials speaking for Mr. Trudeau and Mr. Nixon after the leaders met Friday indicated Canada has won another assurance from Mr. Nixon that the United States is not demanding a continuing trade surplus with Canada in future years.

But, in their briefings for reporters, they made it clear that the leaders did not budge from bargaining positions taken during months of futile negotiations on a number of trade irritants between the two countries.

The talks broke off Feb. 9 after Washington officials decided there was no chance of settlement.

Ronald Ziegler, White House press secretary, said the two leaders agreed "to review their positions with a view to getting the talks started again."

Later, a Canadian official used almost the same words.

Both stressed that no time period for the reviews was discussed, though Mr. Ziegler said the United States would like resumption pretty soon.

AUTO PACT BYPASSED

The Canadian official, who spoke on the understanding said the most contentious issue in the trade talks — the auto pact — was not dealt with specifically.

Canadian officials said before the president's arrival Thursday they were looking forward to harder evidence from Mr. Nixon of the "fantastically new statement" Mr. Trudeau said he got from the president during their meeting in Washington last December.

Mr. Trudeau said that was a presidential assurance that the United States does not demand a continuing trade surplus with Canada to help pay for the investments Americans make in Canada.

The government won that confirmation when Mr. Nixon told a joint sitting of Parliament Friday that Washington does not "always want a surplus trade with Canada so that we could always export capital there."

But the Canadian official noted the difference between that long-run issue, on which agreement seems complete, and the short-run trade dispute.

In the short-run, he said, the United States is in difficulty and wants its trading partners to help.

He said Mr. Trudeau offered sympathy and understanding.

In the trade talks, Washington has been seeking changes in trading arrangements with Canada, especially the auto pact, which have led to a Canadian trade surplus with the United States in the last few years.

CANADA NEEDS SURPLUS

Ottawa says that surplus may not be permanent, and that Canada needs to sell more to the United States than it buys in order to earn extra U.S. dollars to pay interest and dividends to U.S. investors.

Mr. Nixon said in his speech he understands that view, since the United States sought freedom from dependence on European capital before the First World War.

Aside from that pledge from the president, Canadian officials also wanted Mr. Nixon to help create an atmosphere that could lead to resumption of the trade talks.

Asked whether he thought Mr. Nixon had met those hopes, one Canadian official said he is "happy with what he said."

"We're all pleased."

The discussions between Mr. Trudeau and Mr. Nixon were very general over a range of bilateral and international issues.

But another official told reporters that in a separate meeting, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp repeated to U.S. State Secretary William Rogers that Canada wants to sell its uranium in the United States, which has banned imports of uranium.

The official said Canada hopes to sell uranium to the United States by the end of the 1970s.

That has been one of the trade issues that has bothered Canada during the course of negotiations.

Uruguay Takes Aim At Rebels

MONTEVIDEO (Reuter) — The conservative Uruguayan government is preparing for an "internal war" against left-wing Tupamaros guerrillas after a day of bloody clashes in which 12 persons died and eight were wounded.

President Juan Mario Bardaberry warned in a nation-wide broadcast Friday night that his government will use every democratic means to defend itself.

After an emergency meeting of his six-week-old cabinet, Bordaberry, 43, asked parliament to recognize that a "state of internal war" exists in the battle against subversion.

Eight Tupamaros including one of the movement's founders, Jorge Candal Grajales, and two women were shot to death in gun battles with police Friday.

This followed the assassination by Tupamaros, in separate attacks, of a former government official, two policemen and a navy lieutenant.

. . . VIETNAM

viser. One U.S. helicopter crew member also was wounded but there were no aircraft losses, reports from the highlands said.

Another 80 to 120 survivors from Charlie were trying to reach other South Vietnamese bases.

GUARDED CITY

Charlie was one of a string of seven fire bases occupying a high ridgeline guarding the approaches to Kontum City, believed to be one of the primary targets of the offensive. The base is 15 miles northwest of Kontum.

Field reports said two other bases also were attacked overnight.

U.S. and South Vietnamese fighter-bombers smashed the lost base with repeated attacks shortly after it was given up in efforts to kill the North Vietnamese troops who overran it.

Although several other bases in the central highlands have been heavily assaulted or put under artillery siege and one was partially overrun Charlie was the first in the area to fall.

Highway 19, the key supply route from Qui Nhon on the central coast to Pleiku, capital of the highlands, was closed for the seventh straight day by fighting around the An Ke Pas.

South Vietnamese and South Korean troops have been unable to dislodge North Vietnamese forces holed up in fortified positions that control the pass.

RENEW ATTACKS

Moving behind the cover of a 350-round rocket-and-mortar barrage, nine North Vietnamese tanks smashed into the northern part of the provincial capital of An Loc, 60 miles north of Saigon, early today in renewed armor assaults. South Vietnamese forces claimed they took control over most of the city Friday.

Two more columns of vehicles, including an estimated 40 trucks and an unknown number of tanks, and infantry were reported sighted moving toward An Loc four miles west of the city. On the southern and southwestern sides, another heavy concentration of vehicles believed to be tanks was spotted.

The Saigon command said 37 North Vietnamese armored vehicles were destroyed in attacks on An Loc Thursday and Friday.

Elements of three North Vietnamese divisions numbering up to 30,000 troops are reported between An Loc and the Cambodian border 20 miles to the north, and also to the south of the city along Highway 13.

Military sources said Viet Cong main force, local and guerrilla units have joined North Vietnam's 18-day-long offensive with rocket, mortar and harassing attacks designed to help North Vietnamese regulars launch large-scale assaults on government camps.

MIGHT AS WELL STAY AT HOME

VANCOUVER (CP) — The crew of the 60-foot halibut boat Snowfall sailed into port this week weary from a five-week voyage to the storm-whipped Bering Sea.

They sold their catch of 14,221 pounds of halibut for 69 cents a pound, considered a near-record price by fishermen. They would have made more money just by staying home.

About $1,000 worth of the catch went to pay for lost gear and the boat share was $1,600 against expenses of $1,096, leaving $8,041 to be split among the six members of the crew.

After all deductions had been made for food and lodging, insurance and taxes, there was little left for the take-home cheque. The largest cheque amounted to $160 for the five weeks of hard labor. The smallest was for $21.60.

If the fishermen had stayed home, snug and warm, they would have qualified for about $600 in unemployment insurance benefits.

The voyage was a gamble that failed. Had they caught a capacity load of 70,000 pounds of halibut, the share per man might have reached $6,000.

Skipper George Krestnick reported that the weather was appalling with ice leaving only a narrow fishing ground north of the Aleutian Islands. Catches, which have fallen off sharply in recent years, were reported to be at an all-time low.

New Smugglers Run Garbage

TORONTO (CP) — Garbage smugglers slunk across Toronto's borders today as a strike of civic outside workers neared the end of its first week.

The west-end borough of Etobicoke, the only one of the six municipalities in Metropolitan Toronto maintaining normal garbage collections, was receiving unwanted donations from neighboring householders.

"We may have to put gunboats on the Humber River," said M. F. Cox, the borough's roads commissioner.

PICKET GARBAGE DUMPS

But he said it with a smile. The trickle of extra bags deposited in front of Etobicoke homes was not a serious problem.

Since Monday, picket lines in front of Metro's 56 garbage dumps have halted pickup services in the city and the boroughs of York, East York and Scarborough.

Etobicoke and North York, not directly affected by the strike, continued to operate normal collections but North York residents were told Friday to hold back all non-perishable waste until the situation eases.

Negotiators for Metro and the 4,000 striking members of the Canadian Union of Public Employees agreed Friday night to the appointment of Toronto lawyer Arthur Maloney as a mediator in their contract dispute.

The strikers, who earned an average $3.58 an hour under their old contract, sought annual increases of 19 cents an hour in a two-year pact. Metro has offered 18 cents in the first year and 15 in the second.

Iraq, Iran Troops Clash After Ambush

BEIRUT, Lebanon (Reuter) — Iraqi and Iranian troops have fought a four-day battle with tanks and artillery after an Iraqi police patrol was ambushed by Iranian troops, said a military communique issued in Baghdad, the Iraqi capital.

The statement said that Iraqi troops inflicted heavy casualties on the Iranian "aggressors" and said they were repulsed, Baghdad radio reported.

Iraq's casualties were put at one soldier and two policemen slightly wounded.

There has been tension between Iran and Iraq for many years on a variety of issues. Iraq severed diplomatic relations after Iran occupied three strategic islands in the Persian gulf last November.

The latest clash follows the signing of a 15-year treaty of friendship and co-operation between Iraq and the Soviet Union.

The treaty, covering political economic and military aspects, was signed April 9, the final day of an official five-day visit by Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin to Iraq.

THEY WANT YOUR BLOOD

You can bleed in a good cause the day of your choice next week.

Clinics Monday and Tuesday will be at Red Cross House, 1046 Fort St., with evening hours each day. Monday the hours are 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. and 6:30 to 9 p.m. Hours Tuesday are 1:30 to 4:30 and 6:30 to 9.

Wednesday's clinic is in the Ewing Building at Camosun College, from 9:30 a.m. to noon and 1:15 to 3 p.m.

The clinic moves to Royal Roads military college Thursday, from 3 to 5:30 p.m. and 6:30 to 8 p.m.

Friday the clinic will be at the Saanich fire hall on Vernon Avenue, from 9:30 to noon and 1:15 to 4:30 p.m.

S. Viets Routed By Human Waves

SAIGON (CP) — North Vietnamese tanks blasted their way into An Loc today and human-wave assaults routed South Vietnamese forces from a fire base in the central highlands.

The Viet Cong poured rockets and mortars into Saigon and Da Nang, South Vietnam's two biggest cities, killing 51 Vietnamese and wounding 48. The attacks damaged 20 U.S. aircraft.

A Viet Cong broadcast after nightfall said South Vietnamese forces at An Loc had been destroyed and the provincial capital "liberated." It added that Communist command troops then moved on down Highway 13 in an attempt to capture Chon Thanh, 15 miles south of An Loc.

In Saigon, the South Vietnamese command said the situation in An Loc at the time of the Viet Cong broadcast had stabilized although there were ground attacks against the southwestern perimeter.

RUSH REINFORCEMENTS

The South Vietnamese command rushed paratroop reinforcements to the southern and eastern edges of the city and U.S. Air Force planes began making air drops of food and ammunition.

Communist ground fire in the An Loc sector hit a U.S. Air Force C-130 transport plane dropping supplies to An Loc's defenders and one U.S. crew member was killed and two were wounded.

North Vietnamese tanks at An Loc were reported to have fired directly into a South Vietnamese command headquarters.

The government said its forces had regained control over most of An Loc Friday. Field reports said U.S. air power knocked out most of the tanks leading the new North Vietnamese thrust.

The rout of the South Vietnamese in the central highlands gave the Communists their first significant victory in the central highlands.

On the far northern front an attemp to airdrop supplies into surrounded Fire Base Bastogne, keystone of defence of the western flanks of Hue, failed today when several tons of food and ammunition floated into North Vietnamese territory.

OFF TARGET

Two South Vietnamese C-119 transports attempted the drop through North Vietnamese fire but were off target, U.S. sources said. The defenders, who have not been re-supplied for seven days, were unable to reach the food and ammunition.

U.S. sources said defenders of Bastogne have been reduced to using weapons and ammunition from North Vietnamese troops killed in a series of attacks on the base.

Field reports said the human-wave assaults by North Vietnamese forces, climaxing five days of heavy shellings and ground thrusts, forced the battered remnants of a battalion of South Vietnamese paratroops to abandon Fire Base Charlie and flee into the jungles of the central highlands.

The battalion withdrew from the hilltop base Friday night and left 15 of their 18 dead behind, field reports said. The Saigon command said 84 North Vietnamese troops died in the final assault. South Vietnamese losses in the final battle at Charlie were 22 killed and 30 wounded, spokesmen said.

IT'S A GIRL, GIRL, GIRL, GIRL, BOY

EDINBURGH (Reuter) — Quintuplets born six weeks prematurely to a Scottish woman Friday are "all in fine health at the moment," a hospital spokesman said today.

The quints — four girls and a boy —were delivered by caesarean section at Bangour General Hospital, west of Edinburgh, and are receiving special care in incubators.

Their mother, 32-year-old Lily Bostock, also is well, the hospital spokesman said.

DEMONSTRATORS SCUFFLE over differing points of view during a protest on Parliament Hill against President Nixon's visit to Ottawa. There were no injuries or arrests, but RCMP restrained the protesters, mostly from the Canadian Liberation Movement, with a cordon of constables.

Visit Ends Amid Protest

OTTAWA (CP) — President Nixon flew out of Ottawa today after signing with Prime Minister Trudeau an historic U.S.-Canada agreement to clean up the Great Lakes.

Just before and immediately after his departure for Washington following a 40-hour state visit, a series of noisey demonstrations took place on and near Parliament Hill protesting the presidential trip to Canada.

The agreement committed the United States and Canada to a massive Great Lakes pollution cleanup expected to cost billions of dollars.

The five-year accord binds both countries to accept agreed water quality standards and to cut phosphate inputs into Lake Erie in half by 1976.

It also provides for installation of treatment facilities in all municipalities discharging wastes into the Great Lakes system.

WORLD EXAMPLE

Trudeau, speaking after the trail-blazing agreement was signed said it will restore an immense area of water to "a wholesome condition."

"It is an example to the world of the interdependence of men and women and the advantage which flow from co-operative measures," said the prime minister.

The document was also signed by External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp for Canada and Secretary of State William Rogers of the U.S.

Nixon said the agreement represents a significant step towards reversing the decline of the lakes, areas of which have been slowly dying from the effects of pollution.

"This agreement extends a great tradition of co-operation between the United States and Canada," said the president.

"Just as the St. Lawrence Seaway transformed the Great Lakes into highways of peaceful commerce among nations, so the Great Lakes water quality agreement can make them great symbols of international co-operation as man makes his peace with nature."

About 50 wet demonstrators tried to storm police lines as Nixon left Parliament Hill and later pulled down and tried to burn a U.S. flag flying on the hill.

The police grabbed the poles, throwing some protesters off balance in a brief melee. No one was hurt and there were no arrests.

ALLOWED TO MARCH

There were scuffles at the West Gate of Parliament Hill as police tried to turn the liberationists away earlier, but after some talk they were allowed to march to a parking lot about 50 yards from the entrance Nixon was to use.

In the scuffle, a middle-aged woman belted a radio reporter, who then hit her with his microphone. No serious damage was done to either.

The tiny band, shouting "Nixon go home," marched up to police lines surrounding the U.S. Embassy after President Nixon had driven away.

They saw the U.S. flag flying from a pole east of the Centre Block and rushed it, hauling it down. A Canadian flag and the liberation movement flag were run up in its place.

The protestors spat on the American flag, then tried to burn it in the Centennial Flame. But it wouldn't ignite and finally it was torn to shreds.

"This is all that's left of the United States," an old man chortled, holding a piece of the stars.

The anti-war demonstrators, several hundred strong, joined the smaller group at this point and they all went to the steps in front of Parliament for speeches.

A major demonstration had been planned in advance for 5 p.m. (Victoria time) after Mr. Nixon's departure for Washington — to protest involvement in Vietnam.

Groos Supports IJC Ship Study

Victoria Liberal MP David Groos said today he agrees with the proposal that the Internation Joint Commission study West Coast shipping problems, but said he hopes Canada will not urge the IJC to make a specific study of the proposed oil tanker route from Alaska.

Groos was commenting on reports from Ottawa that Prime Minister Trudeau and President Nixon had agreed to consider the IJC as the body to study the problem of shipping in U.S.-Canadian coastal waters.

He said it had been his original proposal that some kind of international body make the study and the IJC is a good body for it.

Groos does not want Canada to get the IJC to study the tanker route proposal because that would show "tacit approval" of the proposal by Canada. He said the matter is still before the U.S. Supreme Court and to indicate Canadian approval would be a "great mistake."

The Liberal MP said there is enough traffic in the Strait of Juan de Fuca to warrant "a good look" by the IJC. The investigation could extend up and down both U.S. and Canadian territorial waters so that the same marine laws could apply to both countries and their shipping.

Prime Minister Trudeau, Groos said, had previously told him that the IJC is "one way of approaching" the problem of West Coast shipping.

Derailment Fatal

ZAGREB (Reuter) — Three persons are known to have been killed and 42 injured early today when the Paris-Athens express left the tracks about 25 miles southeast of this Yugoslav city.

All Systems Go For Moon Probe

Young and Duke expected visits from their wives. Mattingly's wife, expecting a baby in May, is at home in Houston, Tex.

Mission director Chester Lee reviewed all aspects of preparations and said "all elements report a go" for launch at 12:54 p.m. EST Sunday.

At the launch pad, crews swarmed over the work platforms which cradle the 36-storey-tall Saturn V rocket which is to start the astronauts on their scientific expedition to the mountains of the moon.

They will make final checks of the two spaceships the command and lunar modules and button them up, awaiting the arrival of the spacemen Sunday morning 2½ hours before launch. Experts also will prepare for the pumping aboard early Sunday of more than 800,000 gallons fuel.

The astronauts wound up their training in spaceship simulators Friday, rehearsing the crucial manoeuvres in which Young and Duke detach the lunar ship, descend to the surface and later lift off to execute the intricate rendezvous and docking manoeuvres with the command ship.

Young, the Apollo 16 commander who will be making his fourth space flight, and Duke are to make the first landing in the moon's mountainous highlands.

Their target is a peak-rimmed plateau in the highest region on the front side of the moon where they hope to find definite evidence that volcanoes played a part in forming the moon about four billion years ago.

Crown Realty Tag 'Incredible'

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Angry Kamloops school trustees charged Friday that the provincial government has one price for private developers and another much higher one for public institutions when it comes to selling Crown land.

The trustees said they have been trying for three years to buy six acres of Crown land for an elementary school at the former navy depot on Kamloops' western boundary. The provincial government's asking price? Five thousand dollars an acre.

$307 PER ACRE

In comparision, the trustees cited the disclosure Thursday that the provincial government sold 17 acres of land flanking the Trans-Canada Highway in neighboring Dufferin municipality for $5,200, or $307 an acre.

School board Chairman Cliff Branchflower said the board has refused to pay the price asked for the six acres of land.

DIFFERENCE

"What a difference a few miles make in the price of Crown land," he said. "The school site and the 17 acres are in the same general area, and there shouldn't be such a price difference, especially since the school site is far removed from the Trans-Canada Highway."

Public Works Minister William Chant said Friday there is only one price for the land in question, and "it is probably higher than $5,000 an acre.

"It was independently appraised by two or three different firms several years ago, and the cost then was $5,000," Chant said. "Land values have risen some since then."

IT DEPENDS

The minister said the land in Dufferin may only be worth $307 an acre because "the price depends on the location of the land."

The minister said he has met with school trustees several times on the matter, and that the offer is a reasonable one.

"If they say the land is only worth $300 an acre, I say they don't know what they're talking about."

The land in Dufferin municipality was sold to Kamloops lawyer William Turlock on condition it become a campground. It was used as a campground last summer but now is being developed as an industrial park. Turlock says that under Dufferin zoning bylaw, a camp ground is not permitted.

This week the highways department revoked access rights to the Turlock property with no explanation other than it was in the public interest.

Talks Monday

QUEBEC (CP) — Negotiations aimed at settling Quebec's general strike of about 200,000 public servants will resume Monday, Marcel Pepin, president of the Confederation of National Trade Unions, said today. The strike which started Tuesday was to continue, however. (See earlier story Page 3).

Slowdown Pending

LONDON (UPI) — The government sought today to avert an all-out slowdown by Britain's 290,000 railway workers which could lead to new clashes between them and angry umbrella-wielding commuters. Employment Minister Maurice MacMillan met with rail-union leaders in a new attempt to head off the nationwide slowdown scheduled to start at midnight Sunday.

Reduction Sought

HARRIMAN, N.Y. (AP) — A state department official says the United States will campaign in the United Nations General Assembly next fall for a reduction to 25 per cent from 31.52 per cent in its assessed share of the UN's more than $200 million annual budget.

Pandas Too Old?

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — Two giant pandas, gifts to the American people given during President Nixon's visit to China, seem to be a lot older than expected and zoo officials here are worried.

For one thing, there may not be any pattering of tiny panda feet around the National Zoo as a result of their union. Mating would be out of the question.

TUX POOR ID

OTTAWA (CP) — Cabinet rank and black tie were not enough Friday night to get an angry Regional Expansion Minister Jean Marchand past a security blanket at the Nationl Arts Centre.

He arrived for a gala performance for President Nixon and 2,300 other specially-invited guests without proper identification and was blocked from entry by RCMP, part of an army of security forces mobilized for Nixon's 40-hour Canadian visit.

Marchand was apprehended as he walked down a ramp towards the centre's main foyer and escorted back to street level by police. After a short, heated discussion, police said he could go in.

The cabinet minister, a close friend of Prime Minister Trudeau, said he would not go back into the building unless he was assured he would not be further interfered with.

The argument ended abruptly when film cameramen closed in to capture the incident. The minister was then escorted back down the ramp and into the building by an RCMP officer.

CONSTRUCTION HALT PREDICTED

VANCOUVER (CP) — A union spokesman predicted Friday that construction in British Columbia will come to a halt within a week because of the continuing contract dispute in the industry.

Lorne Robson, spokesman for the Carpenters Union, told a rally of 250 union members that the Construction Labor Relations Association, which bargains for some 400 contractors in B.C., is taking such provocative positions that unions representing construction trades have no choice but to strike.

The rally was called to coincide with an association meeting and to protest lack of progress in bargaining to reach agreement on a new contract to replace one that expired March 31.

"We've tried, we've tried every way possible to get a fair settlement," Robson said.

He said that after three months of negotiations the association still has not made a wage offer to the majority of the unions and only half of the carpenter's contract items have been settled.

"CLRA tells us that if we drop our demand for a 35-hour week they will make an offer," Robson said. "Well, let's say we dropped it, what else are they going to tell us to drop before they make an offer?"

The carpenters later paraded around the Hotel Vancouver where members of the CLRA were meeting to hear President C. J. Connaghan.

Earlier, Connaghan said the unions will be at fault, not the employers, if there is another shutdown of the construction industry in B.C. he said it's the unions that are serving strike notices, and the CLRA hadn't served lockout notice on anyone.

"We have said time and time again that we will not lockout unless we are struck."

Two unions, the plumbers and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, have taken strike votes and served strike notice on 48 contractors. Notice has expired but the unions will have to wait until the mediators make their reports before legal strike action can be taken.

Connaghan said the contractors meeting was one of a series of meetings being held to keep the contractors informed about negotiations.

He said some 400 contractors at the closed meeting indicated there will be "very, very strong" support for the lockout vote now being conducted.

The deadline for returning the lockout ballots is Tuesday but Connaghan said the results may not be made public.

Talks have broken off with three unions — carpenters, plumbers and electrical workers.

Connaghan said negotiations are continuing with eight other unions, including the teamsters.

Robson blamed the low turnout of carpenters for the rally on the rainy weather. There are 4,500 members in the Vancouver-New Westminster local.

Connaghan interpreted the turnout as a sign of lack of support of the union position.

Talks Fail to Break Trade Deadlock

By JOHN HAY

OTTAWA (CP) — Beneath expressions of satisfaction from both sides, there appears little evidence that Prime Minister Trudeau and President Nixon made progress on the Canada-U.S. trade deadlock beyond an agreement to take another look at their positions.

Officials speaking for Mr. Trudeau and Mr. Nixon after the leaders met Friday indicated Canada has won another assurance from Mr. Nixon that the United States is not demanding a continuing trade surplus with Canada in future years.

But, in their briefings for reporters, they made it clear that the leaders did not budge from bargaining positions taken during months of futile negotiations on a number of trade irritants between the two countries.

The talks broke off Feb. 9 after Washington officials decided there was no chance of settlement.

Ronald Ziegler, White House press secretary, said the two leaders agreed "to review their positions with a view to getting the talks started again."

Later, a Canadian official used almost the same words.

Both stressed that no time period for the reviews was discussed, though Mr. Ziegler said the United States would like resumption pretty soon.

AUTO PACT BYPASSED

The Canadian official, who spoke on the understanding said the most contentious issue in the trade talks — the auto pact — was not dealt with specifically.

Canadian officials said before the president's arrival Thursday they were looking forward to harder evidence from Mr. Nixon of the "fantastically new statement" Mr. Trudeau said he got from the president during their meeting in Washington last December.

Mr. Trudeau said that was a presidential assurance that the United States does not demand a continuing trade surplus with Canada to help pay for the investments Americans make in Canada.

The government won that confirmation when Mr. Nixon told a joint sitting of Parliament Friday that Washington does not "always want a surplus trade with Canada so that we could always export capital there."

But the Canadian official noted the difference between that long-run issue, on which agreement seems complete, and the short-run trade dispute.

In the short-run, he said, the United States is in difficulty and wants its trading partners to help.

He said Mr. Trudeau offered sympathy and understanding.

In the trade talks, Washington has been seeking changes in trading arrangements with Canada, especially the auto pact, which have led to a Canadian trade surplus with the United States in the last few years.

CANADA NEEDS SURPLUS

Ottawa says that surplus may not be permanent, and that Canada needs to sell more to the United States than it buys in order to earn extra U.S. dollars to pay interest and dividends to U.S. investors.

Mr. Nixon said in his speech he understands that view, since the United States sought freedom from dependence on European capital before the First World War.

Aside from that pledge from the president, Canadian officials also wanted Mr. Nixon to help create an atmosphere that could lead to resumption of the trade talks.

Asked whether he thought Mr. Nixon had met those hopes, one Canadian official said he is "happy with what he said."

"We're all pleased."

The discussions between Mr. Trudeau and Mr. Nixon were very general over a range of bilateral and international issues.

But another official told reporters that in a separate meeting, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp repeated to U.S. State Secretary William Rogers that Canada wants to sell its uranium in the United States, which has banned imports of uranium.

The official said Canada hopes to sell uranium to the United States by the end of the 1970s.

That has been one of the trade issues that has bothered Canada during the course of negotiations.

Leeds United Set for Cup

LONDON (CP) — Leeds United, bidding to win the English Football Association Cup for the first time, defeated Second-Division Birmingham City 3-0 today and reached the soccer final.

In the other semi-final, Arsenal and Stoke City tied 1-1 and must replay at Everton's Goodison Park stadium next Wednesday.

Uruguay Takes Aim At Rebels

MONTEVIDEO (Reuter) — The conservative Uruguayan government is preparing for an "internal war" against left-wing Tupamaros guerrillas after a day of bloody clashes in which 12 persons died and eight were wounded.

President Juan Mario Bardaberry warned in a nation-wide broadcast Friday night that his government will use every democratic means to defend itself.

After an emergency meeting of his six-week-old cabinet, Bardaberry, 43, asked parliament to recognize that a "state of internal war" exists in the battle against subversion.

Eight Tupamaros including one of the movement's founders, Jorge Candal Grajales, and two women were shot to death in gun battles with police Friday.

This followed the assassination by Tupamaros, in separate attacks, of a former government official, two policemen and a navy lieutenant.

viser. One U.S. helicopter crew member also was wounded but there were no aircraft losses, reports from the highlands said.

GUARDED CITY

Charlie was one of a string of seven fire bases occupying a high ridgeline guarding the approaches to Kontum City, believed to be one of the primary targets of the offensive. The base is 15 miles northwest of Kontum.

Field reports said two other bases also were attacked overnight.

U.S. and South Vietnamese fighter-bombers smashed the lost base with repeated attacks shortly after it was given up in efforts to kill the North Vietnamese troops who overran it.

Although several other bases in the central highlands have been heavily assaulted or put under artillery siege and one was partially overrun — Charlie was the first in the area to fall.

Highway 19, the key supply route from Qui Nhon on the central coast to Pleiku, capital of the highlands, was closed for the seventh straight day by fighting around the An Ke Pas.

South Vietnamese and South Korean troops have been unable to dislodge North Vietnamese forces holed up in fortified positions that control the pass.

RENEW ATTACKS

Moving behind the cover of a 350-round rocket-and-mortar barrage, nine North Vietnamese tanks smashed into the northern part of the provincial capital of An Loc, 60 miles north of Saigon, early today in renewed armor assaults. South Vietnamese forces claimed they took control over most of the city Friday.

Two more columns of vehicles, including an estimated 40 trucks and an unknown number of tanks, and infantry were reported sighted moving toward An Loc four miles west of the city. On the southern and southwestern sides, another heavy concentration of vehicles believed to be tanks was spotted.

The Saigon command said 37 North Vietnamese armored vehicles were destroyed in attacks on An Loc Thursday and Friday.

Elements of three North Vietnamese divisions numbering up to 30,000 troops are reported between An Loc and the Cambodian border 20 miles to the north, and also to the south of the city along Highway 13.

Military sources said Viet Cong main force, local and guerrilla units have joined North Vietnam's 18-day-long offensive with rocket, mortar and harassing attacks designed to help North Vietnamese regulars launch large-scale assaults on government camps.

MIGHT AS WELL STAYED AT HOME

VANCOUVER (CP) — The crew of the 60-foot halibut boat Snowfall sailed into port this week weary from a five-week voyage to the storm-whipped Bering Sea.

They sold their catch of 14,221 pounds of halibut for 69 cents a pound, considered a near-record price by fishermen. They would have made more money just by staying home.

About $1,000 worth of the catch went to pay for lost gear and the boat share was $1,600 against expenses of $1,096, leaving $8,041 to be split among the six members of the crew.

After all deductions had been made for food and lodging, insurance and taxes, there was little left for the take-home cheque. The largest cheque amounted to $160 for the five weeks of hard labor. The smallest was for $21.60.

If the fishermen had stayed home, snug and warm, they would have qualified for about $600 in unemployment insurance benefits.

The voyage was a gamble that failed. Had they caught a capacity load of 70,000 pounds of halibut, the share per man might have reached $6,000.

Skipper George Krestnick reported that the weather was appalling with ice leaving only a narrow fishing ground north of the Aleutian Islands. Catches, which have fallen off sharply in recent years, were reported to be at an all-time low.

New Smugglers Run Garbage

TORONTO (CP) — Garbage smugglers slunk across Toronto's borders today as a strike of civic outside workers neared the end of its first week.

The west-end borough of Etobicoke, the only one of the six municipalities in Metropolitan Toronto maintaining normal garbage collections, was receiving unwanted donations from neighboring householders.

"We may have to put gunboats on the Humber River," said M. F. Cox, the borough's roads commissioner.

PICKET GARBAGE DUMPS

But he said it with a smile. The trickle of extra bags deposited in front of Etobicoke homes was not a serious problem.

Since Monday, picket lines in front of Metro's 56 garbage dumps have halted pickup services in the city and the boroughs of York, East York and Scarborough.

Etobicoke and North York, not directly affected by the strike, continued to operate normal collections but North York residents were told Friday to hold back all non-perishable waste until the situation eases.

Negotiators for Metro and the 4,000 striking members of the Canadian Union of Public Employees agreed Friday night to the appointment of Toronto lawyer Arthur Maloney as a mediator in their contract dispute.

The strikers, who earned an average $3.58 an hour under their old contract, sought annual increases of 19 cents an hour in a two-year pact. Metro has offered 18 cents in the first year and 15 in the second.

Iraq, Iran Troops Clash After Ambush

BEIRUT, Lebanon (Reuter) — Iraqi and Iranian troops have fought a four-day battle with tanks and artillery after an Iraqi police patrol was ambushed by Iranian troops, said a military communique issued in Baghdad, the Iraqi capital.

The statement said that Iraqi troops inflicted heavy casualties on the Iranian "aggressors" and said they were repulsed, Baghdad radio reported.

Iraq's casualties were put at one soldier and two policemen slightly wounded.

There has been tension between Iran and Iraq for many years on a variety of issues. Iraq severed diplomatic relations after Iran occupied three strategic islands in the Persian gulf last November.

The latest clash follows the signing of a 15-year treaty of friendship and co-operation between Iraq and the Soviet Union.

The treaty, covering political economic and military aspects, was signed April 9, the final day of an official five-day visit by Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin to Iraq.

THEY WANT YOUR BLOOD

You can bleed in a good cause the day of your choice next week.

Clinics Monday and Tuesday will be at Red Cross House, 1046 Fort St., with evening hours each day. Monday the hours are 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. and 6:30 to 9 p.m. Hours Tuesday are 1:30 to 4:30 and 6:30 to 9.

Wednesday's clinic is in the Ewing Building at Camosun College, from 9:30 a.m. to noon and 1:15 to 3 p.m.

The clinic moves to Royal Roads military college Thursday, from 3 to 5:30 p.m. and 6:30 to 8 p.m.

Friday the clinic will be at the Saanich fire hall on Vernon Avenue, from 9:30 to noon and 1:15 to 4:30 p.m.

Michener Visit

PRINCE RUPERT (CP) — Governor-General and Mrs. Roland Michener will visit Prince Rupert May 21 and 22, Mayor Peter Lester announced Friday. Activities planned include a Japanese ceremonial watching-of-the-sunset, to be organized by area Japanese-Canadians.

the weather

A ridge of high pressure building over B.C. will produce a northwesterly flow of very cool but fairly dry Pacific air over the province during the next 48 hours. A weak trough moving around this ridge will cause an increase in shower activity along the coast this evening. Frost will occur in nearly all districts again tonight.

Strike Into Fifth Day, Government Avoids Force

MONTREAL (CP) — Leaders of the common front of 200,000 striking Quebec public service workers extended their walkout to its fifth day today and the Quebec government continued to reject special legislation to end the strike.

Leaders of the common front, composed of the Confederation of National Trade Unions, the Quebec Federation of Labor and the Quebec Teachers Corp., said the strike will end only when the government modifies its last offers and shows a willingness to "negotiate seriously."

Premier Robert Bourassa, speaking on province-wide television Friday night, said the government preferred to negotiate a settlement rather than resort to special legislation.

The negotiations broke off April 5, but Le Devoir, in a Quebec City story, said discreet contacts have been made between government officials and leaders of the common front.

The newspaper said Premier Bourassa has met with CNTU President Marcel Pepin in an attempt to find a solution to the conflict.

WORK THROUGH COURTS

In other strike developments Friday:

—Jean-Paul L'Allier, civil service minister, said another five contempt of court proceedings had been started against hospital unions refusing to obey injunctions ordering them to maintain essential services during the strike. The new proceedings brought to 13 the number of hospital unions so served;

—Norbert Rodrigue, president of the National Services Federation representing hospital workers, said in Quebec City that the situation in essential services in psychiatric hospitals is normal;

—Mr. L'Allier criticized English-language newspapers in Montreal for their "alarmist" stories for problems encountered in some hospitals;

—Premier Robert Bourassa, in his television address, backed up statements by Mr. L'Allier that court action was the only way to maintain essential services and protect public welfare. He said the Quebec government is "clearly in control."

A temporary injunction to limit picketing in front of schools and forbidding "intimidation and trespass" was served on the Montreal Teachers' Association, a Protestant teachers group;

—Opposition Leader Gabriel Loubier of the Unite-Quebec party criticized Premier Bourassa for his silence on the strike, saying Quebecers no longer knew who was in charge;

A union of workers employed by St. Jean de Dieu Hospital in Montreal accused the administration there of trying to cause panic with exaggerated statements concerning the welfare of the 3,800 patients in that institute and also charged the hospital with employing 13- and 14-year-old "scabs" as strike breakers;

—A spokesman for St. Jean de Dieu announced the psychiatric institution was refusing to negotiate with the unions for essential services because there is an injunction ordering the employees back to work.

—A survey showed many of Quebec's more than 1,000,000 elementary and high school pupils out of school. Informants said all Montreal's 81 Roman Catholic high schools were closed along with "about half" the city's 243 elementary schools.

EXPLAINS STAND

Mr. L'Allier, the official government spokesman during the strike, told reporters Thursday night the government will not "save the face" of any union leader by invoking special legislation to end the work stoppage.

Union leaders may have allowed the situation to get out of hand, especially in hospitals, to force the government into using legislative measures to stop the strike, he said.

The maintenance of essential services has emerged as the key issue in the four-day-old conflict.

Hospitals have borne the brunt of strike effects, many of them operating with skeleton staffs, workng extended shifts.

The Association of Hospitals of the Province of Quebec reported 75 per cent of the general hospital beds in the province were empty following evacuation of patients who could be moved.

The 86,000 hospital workers on strike include laundry and kitchen help, technicians and laboratory workers.

ACTED IN MARCH

Before the common front's previous walkout, a one-day affair March 28 the government obtained injunctions forcing workers at Hydro-Quebec and in psychiatric or chronic-care hospitals to remain on the job to provide services necessary if lives were not to be endangered.

The workers stayed on the job that day but many did not obey the injunctions when the second strike began Tuesday.

Hydro-Quebec workers announced Thursday they were pulling out of the common front and would stay at work.

However, hospital workers have ignored back-to-work injunctions at many institutions. Directors at six hospitals have described their situation as "critical" because of staff shortages.

Union leaders, said before the strike began that essential services would be maintained because "we are not striking against the people, but the government."

The three common front leaders, QFL President Louis Laberge, CNTU President Marcel Pepin and Yvon Charbonneau, president of the teachers corporation, appealed to strikers at certain hospitals to fulfill that promise.

IT'S 'UNDER CONTROL'

The situation at hospitals seems to be under control for the weekend at least, hospital spokesman said Friday.

Volunteers and supervisory staff were relieving overworked personnel.

There has been little violence so far in the strike, despite minor clashes between policemen and strikers on picket lines.

About 1,000 strikers pelted administration personnel with snowballs at the downtown offices of the Montreal Catholic school commission Friday morning.

Riot-equipped police moved in to form a protective wedge for the administrative staff. No arrests were reported.

Police said six persons have been arrested in connection with minor troubles at picket lines in the Montreal area since the strike began.

ADVISE WALKOUT

The Provincial Association of Catholic Teachers advised its teachers to walk out in an attempt to speed up negotiations.

A spokesman for the 3,500-member union advised the teachers, who have been off since Tuesday but not on strike, to declare an official walkout. The teachers were prevented from entering their classrooms by striking non-teaching personnel.

Meanwhile Bernie Coolon, president of the Quebec Association of Protestant School Boards, said his group would try to lobby for quick settlement of the strike.

"The strike cannot be allowed to continue beyond that date without representing the loss of a year for some students," he said.

Main issues in the dispute are union demands for an annual increases of 8.1 per cent over three years and minimum weekly salaries of $100 for all workers in three years.

Earlier, the unions had asked for 8.3 per cent annually and $100 a week immediately.

BLACK MUSLIMS AMASS $75M

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Black Muslims have become one of the richest black organizations in history, amassing holdings estimated at $75 millions, according to an article in the current issue of Sepia magazine.

In its May issue, Sepia reports that the organization headed by Elijah Muhammad has amassed more than 50 mosques, 25,000 acres of farmland, a chain of Shabazz and Salaam restaurants, meat processing plants and delivery trucks, a wide range of retail stores, a $1.5 million printing plant, substantial real estate holdings and will shortly replace its four-engine Super Constellation plane with a big jet.

No black group has ever "matched the remarkable record of the Black Muslims in amassing wealth," the magazine said.

The Sepia article said main sources of revenue for the group include dues paid to the Muslim organization which requires "individual Muslims as part of their membership to give at least 10 per cent of their income."

Sales of the group's weekly newspaper, Muhammad Speaks, which claims a circulation of 500,000, accounts for other revenue, the magazine said.

Sepia magazine said, "every Muslim is assigned a sales quota of Muhammad Speaks, which he has to pay for in advance, regardless of whether he sells the papers or not. The required number each Muslim must buy is 200 and if the papers are not sold, then they are given away."

The article said all Muslim members are considered part owners of all its holdings.

New York Muslim Leader Louis Farrakhan is quoted as crediting the "strict moral discipline of the Muslim religion" for its remarkable business growth.

"The money we once threw away on cigarettes, alcohol, dope and gambling and on strange women, we now have," Farrakhan said.

Zero Tax Return Worries Taxpayer

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI) — Ronald E. Wyllys, a homeowner with a five-figure income and four children, has accomplished what all income taxpayers dream of — a taxable income of zero.

But he hates it. Moreover, he'd like to see something done about closing all the loopholes in the U.S. tax regulations that made it possible.

Wyllys, 41, who describes his family's total 1971 income as "well into the five figures," is a part time scholarship student at the University of Wisconsin in Madison where he lives with his family. He had a part-time job as a teacher at the university and his wife works full time.

He sent a letter to the National Committee for an Effective Congress, saying "from the selfish personal standpoint, I am of course delighted with this result." But he added, "as an example of the way the present income tax laws operate, I find this result absolutely appalling."

Wyllys said after spending three days working on his tax forms he "was able to find enough deductions, exemptions and exclusions to wind up at a taxable income of zero for our federal return."

U.K. Army Guns Down Senior IRA Officer

Times News Services

BELFAST — British troops shot seven guerrillas and killed a top officer of the Irish Republican Army today, the army said, but British authorities rejected Protestant demands that the army invade IRA strongholds.

The gun battles flared in Belfast and in Londonderry.

A military spokesman said the dead gunman was identified as Joseph McCann, 24, "a very senior officer of the Official IRA."

The army gave no details on McCann's death beyond saying he was shot down in an incident in Belfast's markets district.

Army posts in Londonderry came under five separate attacks by snipers and the military said four gunmen were seen to fall wounded.

DEATH TOLL NOW 303

Two men, believed to be brothers, were hit by army fire in a clash with a patrol in the Roman Catholic Ballymurphy area of Belfast.

In each case, the army said, troops only opened fire after coming under sniper attack.

McCann's death raised the fatality toll in Northern Ireland to 303 in three years of sectarian strife between the Protestant majority and the Roman Catholic minority.

Josephine Connolly, who owns a grocery store in the markets area, told reporters she probably witnessed McCann's death.

"I noticed a man running along the pavement," she said.

"The next thing I saw was two soliders down on their knees and they were shouting at the man to stop. Obviously he didn't, because the soldiers opened fire and shot him."

In the Protestant Antrim Road, meanwhile, a bomb exploded inside a parked automobile and badly damaged a garage while children watched a movie matinee at a nearby theatre. No one was hurt.

"We knew the bomb was there but we thought it safer to keep the children inside the theatre," a police spokesman said. "If we had evacuated them we could well have driven them into the path of the blast."

WILL RESIST PRESSURE

William Whitelaw, Britain's secretary of state for Northern Ireland, announced meantime that he would resist any pressure to seize the IRA-controlled Bogside and Creggan districts of Londonderry by military force.

Escalating military repression "will solve nothing and only increase bitter strife within the community," Whitelaw told an audience at Prescot in the English country of Lancashire.

In Londonderry, two gunmen robbed a shirt factory Friday night of its $7,800 payroll and 100 women employees, assuming it was the work of the IRA, marched to an IRA enclave and demanded the money back.

Touch of the Real Thing

Official openings tend to be dreary affairs but one in Saanich Friday proved to be where the action is.

Speeches were well under way at the opening of the Saanich police and fire addition when a fire alarm came through.

For a handful of firemen it was a case of pulling working togs on over dress uniforms. Away they roared in a fire truck and station wagon.

'Can't Go On': Judge

A man who appeared in court Thursday to admit to two charges of driving without insurance was jailed for three months today when he pleaded guilty to the same offence again.

"This can't go on. The whole system would break down," Judge Edmond St. Jorre told Vernon William Goitterez, 20, of 847 Goldstream.

Thursday he had been fined $250 on the first no insurance charge and given a suspended sentence on the second.

The Same Old Hokum

The latest publicity splurge scheduled by Mr. Bennett's provincial government strikes a familiar note for everyone who can remember the last election, in August, 1969. With a general election expected in the fairly near future, cabinet ministers will answer questions on paid radio broadcasting time, in order to "explain" government policies to the public. The propaganda campaign for the Social Credit government will last for the next four months — and it will be paid for with taxpayers' money.

There is no objection to the government's advertising its Social Credit achievements in order to inform the voters of this province. But the use of taxpayers' funds for this purpose prior to an election is a brazen misuse of public money. It's a tried and tested device for Mr. Bennett, however. Shortly before the last election he embarked on an extensive series of "informative" advertisements lauding his government's services. And the public paid. The series blended in with the campaign advertisements paid for by the party, and few readers could detect the difference. It made a fine and inexpensive (for the Social Credit party) election campaign.

The tactic this time is so like the last one that the editorial criticism made then is still to the point. On August 25, 1969, The Times protested, referring to the "many large advertisements inserted in newspapers throughout the province in the name of various government departments," which "just happened to appear all over British Columbia in the midst of an election campaign." We said the government's argument that it was just coincidence was spurious.

"The parity bond advertisements, with their references to the province's 'dynamic growth,' may have been reasonably used at this time — although bond issues are not usually floated in the middle of an election. But there is not even this suggestion of an ethical excuse in the action of the B.C. Department of Labor in rushing into a costly splurge of half-page and larger ads while voters are making up their minds on the government's record. The Department of Health Services, and Department of Lands, Forests and Water Resources, and the Department of Municipal Affairs — they all got into the publicity drive with big advertisements, presumably by coincidence. The Labor Department's Human Rights Commission ad even used the name of Mr. Leslie Peterson, the Labor Minister, in a glowing tribute to his abilities.

"This sort of thing, presented as normal departmental publicity, is insulting to the people's intelligence. It is also heavy on their pocketbook."

Well, here we are again, going through the same sort of deception, this time using radio. Mr. Bennett boasts — despite the typical secrecy of his government about public business — that everything is open and known to the people. But now he resorts to this "informative" charade, at the people's expense, when it is obvious that the hand-picked questions and cabinet answers are for the government's benefit in an election. How long can the people silently condone such hypocrisy without becoming hypocritical themselves?

Straying from the Assembly Line

The day-in-day-out monotony of assembly line production, says an American student of industry, is leading to employee absenteeism, high labor turnover and even sabotage — and the system could be on the way out.

In its place he forecasts adoption of a team-production method already applied in certain works, where a group of employees with semi-autonomous status assemble and install complete units themselves.

A start has been made, says the management consultant, by such firms as Volvo, the Swedish automobile manufacturer, which has turned the muffler-exhaust line over to a team that puts together this major sub-assembly in one of its plants.

Motorola has experimented with a similar approach and thereby increased productivity as well as employee morale.

Recognition has been given, in such instances, to the effects of boredom in a job fragmented into smaller and smaller functions. The trend to overcoming that human reaction becomes increasingly important as automation progresses. Whatever the machine does to produce machines, or services, somewhere along the line attention has to be paid to the human factor involved. The assembly line, it seems, has its limitations and they are becoming increasingly apparent when the man on the job is overlooked as an individual.

Which Silence Is Golden?

A citizens' group, according to a Canadian Press report from Markham, Ontario, took a realistic course to protest a proposed new Toronto airport in Pickering Township — and received a sharp warning from the police. The group has been touring the locality with a sound truck broadcasting the whine of jets at a noise level to which the residents would be subjected if a jet took off from the planned airport.

The police warning is no doubt justified, probably on the basis of nuisance laws in force in the area. A sound truck inflicting such a racket on the citizenry is something to avoid.

Should the airport project proceed according to plan and jets were to take off from it, the noise would be just as loud—but there's a vast difference. That would be the sound of progress. The people living in the locality might go deaf or suffer nervous breakdowns. But with a jet port next door, they'd at least be progressive.

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

Support

The Bazaar Committee of the Victoria Branch of SPEC would like to thank all those who supported us last Saturday, April 8, at Point Ellice House. We are pleased with the result of netting $275 in spite of the bitter winds which chilled both buyers and workers alike.

A cheque for this amount has been forwarded to Mr. David Anderson and The Canadian Wildlife Federation to assist them in their U.S. federal court action in Washington, D.C., seeking a legal ruling that would compel the U.S. Department of the Interior to consider the possible dangers of oil traffic to the West Coast of Canada and the United States. — Mrs. Audrey Johnson, Vice-President, Victoria Branch of SPEC.

Lay the Blame

Awaken, all you taxpayers, old-timers, pensioners, widows, invalids and all other poor people, before organized unions push you off the edge of the earth. Many years ago Someone said: "To those who have shall be given, and to those who have not shall be taken away." You apparently don't belong to the first category, and therefore, you must belong to the second.

The B.C. Teachers' Federation has recently been getting sensational publicity. How about giving the poor people some for a change?

We have known for a long time that, at the money they make, all unions have money to burn to fight the government. And who is the government? I am really appalled to learn that as highly educated as teachers profess to be, they don't know who the government is. On what do teachers, in particular, base their right to an annual increase on their already fat salary, which by published reports, averages more than a thousand dollars per month?

Do they base it, perhaps, on the annual increase the property owners have been faced with in higher taxes for the last 20 years? I am terribly disappointed with all politicians in power, who are afraid to speak out, or to step on the unions' toes, for fear of losing votes in the next election.

Bill 3 is no solution to the rising cost of living. The government should freeze wages, rents, prices and profits before we find ourselves in deep trouble. Inflation has already reached astronomical proportions. The poor can no longer live with the prices they have to pay for everything.

According to statistics, all organized labor, public servants and professional employees comprise a small minority. Why then should they want to impose their will on the majority? Bungling politicians granted them the right to strike, thereby paralysing the economy of a whole nation — including their own well-being after they have killed the goose that laid the golden egg. And since unions' bosses have no heart, these powers should be taken away from them.

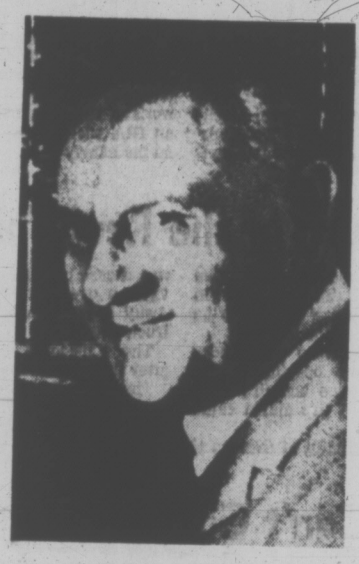
Wage increases should only be based on efficiency, production of goods and services, not on the whims of selfish union executives. They deny vehemently that a continual demand for higher wages has been the sole cause of spiraling costs. These demands are no longer realistic.

Instead of blaming the government for not creating jobs, why not tell the truth and lay the blame where it really belongs? The unions have priced themselves out of business, and are now trying to blame everybody else. — Charles B. Catalano, Former School Trustee, Trail, B.C.

With Nausea

As a resident of B.C. I read with utter nausea the very able article by Allan Fotheringham "Our own Elmer Gantry."

If I were a voter in Mr. Gaglardi's riding of Kamloops I would be deeply ashamed. It is amazing to me that a man as honorable as our Premier allows this state of affairs to continue. Such actions do so much harm to true Christianity.



PHILIP GAGLARDI
. . . amazing

I have written to the Premier and I urge my fellow citizens who reside in this beautiful province to write in our thousands in the hope that the Premier will stop this state of affairs and once again remove Mr. Gaglardi from the cabinet.

I cannot see any reason why Mr. Gaglardi should represent B.C. at the taxpayers' expense at any religious convention. I should have thought that he would have ample work in these difficult times to try and cope with the chores of his department. I just cannot understand why the Premier retains Mr. Gaglardi in his cabinet. — M. P. B. Wrixon, 318 - 1680 Poplar Ave.

Wrong Training

I am amazed to read in your paper that a course entitled "Hunter Training" has been proposed for Greater Victoria grade schools.

Surely in this so-called enlightened age, the emphasis in schools should be on the preservation of life, not on the termination of it. If hunters wish their children to learn to hunt let them instruct them themselves. I bitterly resent the suggestion that my tax dollars should be spent to promote an activity which I detest, particularly when it is done in the name of sport and not of necessity.

My own children and those of many people I know, have been taught almost from infancy to treat animals with gentleness, and to respect all life, both animal and human. Perhaps if a course were given in the schools to teach children to love and respect all forms of life, there would be fewer crimes of violence and the extinction of endangered species would become a thing of the past. There is enough killing going on in the world today without the schools encouraging it. — Valerie Melville, 500 Transit Rd.

Letter to Mr. Kiernan

During the Easter weekend a colleague and I took our families on a camping trip to Montague Harbour Marine Park on Galiano Island. We found the place completely taken over by several hundred youths who had converged there, mostly via B.C. Ferries, to "have a good time." Their uninterrupted and excessive drinking, complete with smashing of bottles onto the beach below, foul language, crude behavior, rowdiness, and setting off of explosives in the middle of the night made our stay at the park totally unpleasant and something close to a nightmare.

Supervision by park personnel was non-existent. Two RCMP officers appeared on the scene via patrol boat Friday night and made several visits to the park then and on Saturday but made no effort to maintain order other than politely asking the noisiest groups to be quiet — with no results. Drinking was unconcealed and excessive throughout the park and there was also some suggestion of drugs being consumed. I repeatedly made several requests of the police officers to end the disturbance but they offered only sympathy and advised us to leave at the first opportunity. This we did, on Easter Sunday, after two sleepless nights and one day spent virtually guarding our campsite.

I submit that if we cannot keep our campsites and marine parks adequately supervised and available for everyone to enjoy, we should not have them and should spend the money more usefully elsewhere. Personally, I strongly resent seeing a public park such as Montague Harbour used in this fashion. — Vittorio A. Preto, 1615 Ash Road.

ART STOTT

Running Out of Trees?

British Columbia Forest Service seniors accept the informed predictions of United Nations experts that the free world will be scratching for timber in about 30 years. They are informed, also, on the conflict between environmentalists and forest industries concentrated in the Pacific Northwest states. There commercial interests are facing increasing pressure from preservationists to keep more of the wilderness for recreation and purposes other than industrial wood production.

The forest service appreciates the impact these developments will have on British Columbia, which has roughly half Canada's supply of coniferous timber and, on the basis of statistics that might bear up-dating, counts on the forests for about half of every dollar produced here.

The causes of free world shortages are obvious. Increased population and rising shelter standards make heavier demands on existing supplies. The total acreage of forest land keeps shrinking as more development takes place — creation of communities, construction of roads, diversion of woodland into a number of other purposes. The effects of conservation add to the problem — a Nitinat Triangle reserved for parks purposes and protected from loggers, no matter how desirable that course may be, would be a small example of commercial forest land shrinkage.

Higher Utilization

Provincial public service foresters, who are frequently practical conservationists though less likely to be preservationists, make the point that if British Columbia's economy is to continue its heavy dependence on forest industries the acreage of accessible forest land for timber exploitation will have to be increased. More particularly, they are convinced that present efforts toward higher utilization of the crop will have to be intensified.

They have watched significant changes in harvesting concepts. They look forward to many more, including preservation of natural tree screens beside rivers and in other areas where ecological and aesthetic considerations have to be taken into account.

With better inventory methods than a generation ago, coupled with technological advances, they are able to assess the situation and make future plans more accurately than they were before.

The inventory issue is significant. When the Mulholland report was released in 1937, its authors estimated that British Columbia possessed 255 billion board feet of timber of which 110 billion board feet were accessible. More recent studies have placed the total under provincial jurisdiction at 269 billion cubic feet. This, by rough conversion of board to cubic feet, is approximately three and one third times as much as the Mulholland estimate — and this after 35 years of logging. Furthermore, the B.C. forest service believes that the total crop will become accessible. They point to logging north of Prince George as an indication of the trend. Adequately managed, they believe British Columbia forests could support almost double the present cut.

Under Allowable Cut

During the last 10 years, the fluctuations in harvest have averaged below the permissible maximum. The allowable cut is the amount of timber which can be taken in any year to assure complete renewal of the forest under sustained yield principles. That means that enough new trees have to grow to replace those that have been logged.

The service assumes that two-thirds of the harvest will be replaced by new growth through natural processes. One third will have to be replanted, partly because natural regeneration in certain stands is doubtful and partly because letting Mother Nature take her course can delay restocking by as much as four or five years. That is an uneconomic time loss in certain districts.

The planting program is lagging at present. A considerable backlog has built up, mainly because production of seedlings has not kept pace with needs. In three years' time the service expects to produce better than 75 million trees a year, will wipe out the deficit and, barring disaster, will then be able to keep up.

Maintaining the forest as a renewable resource, particularly among the coniferous species in high demand as timber, is one problem for which the B.C. service sees a practical solution. Method of harvesting is another. In Pacific Northwest States environmentalists protest clear-cutting — the taking of all merchantable trees from a particular area. They want selective logging and highly selective application of clear-cutting where it appears unavoidable.

High Cost Operation

Selective logging, which still leaves a temporary mess, would greatly increase the costs entailed in clear-cutting, say provincial foresters. It would require twice as many roads and be significantly more expensive as an operation.

But if clear-cutting is to continue, it will have to be improved. Openings — the stretches along scenic waterways or highways where logs are assembled for transport — will have to be reduced. Patch logging will have to be expanded not only to save seed trees but also to provide fire breaks. Operations will have to be tidied up and ever more attention paid to utilization. More of the wood left as debris will have to be harvested — and can be with improved equipment and care.

Preservation of the wilderness?

Well, say the foresters, 1,000 people now travel over roads — many of them put in by loggers — to enjoy the wilds that one person saw formerly by hacking his way through the bush.

And the magnificent big conifers?

They emerged in the processes of environmental change centuries ago after fires of natural origin had "clear-cut" the earlier vegetation.

The toll of fires?

From 1961 to 1970 inclusive an estimated one billion cubic feet of timber, part of it salvageable, was swept by fires, some man-made, others of natural origin. During the same period, more than 15.7 billion cubic feet were cut commercially.

A Nature Ramble With Skipper

FREEMAN KING

A drive out to Jordan River will show you many changes in plant life.

In this area you are into the "wet-belt" and as you leave Sooke the hemlocks start to take over. By Harrison's Beach the Sitka spruce appear.

Here, among the larger shrubs, the red elderberry predominates. It is easily identified by the five-to-seven sharply pointed leaflets. Young shoots of this plant will often grow eight feet tall in one season.

West from Tugwell Creek there is a lot of the evergreen huckleberry (Vaccinium Ovetum). It belongs to the heather family. The fruit of this plant is black and is edible. The leaves are shiny and finely toothed.

This area was logged off many years ago and now there is a fine stand of new conifers. Among them are many lodgepole pines.

Here one misses the garry oak and the arbutus. This is not their habitat for here the land is mostly very heavy gravel and boulders, which makes the great Metchosin Fault.

As you go down the sharp hill to Shirley, look beside the road. There you can spot an abundance of the coltsfoot where the flower stalks are up to two feet tall. After you leave Shirley, note some of the very old stumps of trees logged in the early 1900's. There are still places where you can see remains of the old logging railway for this was the age of steam in the woods.

There are many little creeks tumbling down to the sea and at one time they were crossed by bridges, from which one could see many kinds of fascinating ferns and other plants that loved the stream bank. Now they are all replaced by culverts and one does not realize that he has gone by the streams.

Now you can see great mounds of stumps. It is apparent that they are going to make another "speed-highway" and I wonder if this is what we call progress.

As you are driving beside the sea, look across the water and see how the high mountains begin to fade away till they are a misty range of high hills.

At Jordan River, walk out to the edge of the sea. The original beach line has been vastly changed. Look out to the entrance of the strait and see the breakers roll in to the shore. One wonders where the wind that piled them up came from.

POLLUTION: Weary of Words

viewpoint

By BRYAN McGILL
Times Staff

The ecology movement, so recently a flourishing and popular cause, is fading almost as quickly as it blossomed.

It is bound for extinction, and if history ever seeks its assassin, pollution may be charged — pollution, with verbal overkill as an accessory after the fact.

Pollution is a problem so awesome, so complex it overwhelms those who so recently believed there was a solution. And verbal fallout is just that — verbal fallout.

Ecology, if not killed by its insolubility, is being talked to death. And headlined to death.

It has become a bore, like any other fad.

Surprisingly, though, this isn't necessarily bad news for the people still actively concerned about the environment.

The fad is over, yes. But it did achieve a major goal — instilling into the collective conscience an awareness of pollution.

And the faddists, once spurred by sensationalism, have gone. Now taking over, say those still left, is a dedicated core of sophisticated, informed and tougher pollution-fighters.

And, having reached a crossroads, they say they are quietly branching out in new directions in what is going to be a long, uphill struggle.

But there is a much gloomier school of thought and this is represented by Kurt Horn of Maple Bay and Jim Egan of Chemainus, who made the Cowichan-Malahat branch of SPEC the most active and vociferous anti-pollution group in the province before they both became despairing ecological dropouts.

'Hoola-Hoop Fad'

The ecology movement was "like the hoola-hoop fad," said Egan. People were enthusiastic for a year or two and spent a great deal of time and energy on it. And when they found the environment didn't collapse around them, they quit."

Both Egan and Horn believe the environment is going to collapse, and see a calamity that would kill and injure millions of people as the only hope of creating a massive war on the well-entrenched patterns of pollution.

The optimistic school of thought was articulated by John White, former president of Victoria SPEC, Rick Careless, chairman of the Victoria Sierra Club, lawyer Ian Stewart, president of Environment 100 here, and Malcolm Anderson, who represents his brother David Anderson, Saanich Member of Parliament who has been making headlines across the country as a champion of ecological causes.

They suggest that all levels of government are beginning to change attitudes toward pollution and that many members of the public are now demanding better environments — much more than they did five years ago.

"That's pure unadulterated hogwash," retorts Horn. "Anyone who believes that is in for a rude awakening."

He and Egan said government action is only token, and they pointed out a number of examples of government inaction and apathy, including a statement by Environment Minister Jack Davis that jobs are more important than environment.

Sought Ray of Hope

Horn, who quit his SPEC presidency last fall in frustration and anger, said he went looking for "a ray of hope" last week at a Vancouver meeting called by the federal government for public discussion of what Canada's position paper will be in the 12-day June "emergency session" the United Nations will hold in Stockholm in June.

"I came back completely shattered."

He said 200 recommendations were made without any sense of priority on the root causes of pollution, like, for instance, nuclear fallout from bomb tests and generation plants.

He said the UN conference itself will be futile, because in 12 days it is going to try to deal with "a problem so complex and enormous that if all the scientists in the world got together they couldn't solve it in 10 years."

Egan said after two years of "beating our brains against the wall" with extensive travelling, lecturing, researching, organizing, preparation of briefs, he has come to the conclusion the ecological movement is "a virtual waste of time."

Stewart, whose Environment 100 operation moved into a central downtown location this month, said that "now we are getting away from exhorting the masses to act, new directions are opening up . . . and governments are showing signs of responsibility."

He said the ecological movement will go the way of "long hair and flare pants," but this means that people have accepted a change in attitude and are looking for alternatives other than sensational headlines.

"We have to develop more sophisticated techniques to bring rational alternatives together," he said.

Environment 100, located at 1208 Wharf St., operates as a sort of objective reference library on district environmental issues. Founded two years ago, its office is staffed by one full-time and one part-time member and backed by 75 volunteer specialists.

Its only problem is that "we need some money," Stewart said.

Careless agrees with Horn and Egan that "a drastic change of life-styles" is going to be needed to solve pollution but he believes "an aggressive and responsible mode of environmentalism" will work within the present systems.

"You don't have to blow up cities," he said.

Contrary to SPEC, whose membership is rapidly declining and causing branches to fold as in Lake Cowichan and Sidney, the Sierra Club has a large, strong membership, according to Careless.

It has concentrated with effect on the issue of the Nitnat Triangle, and now, says Careless, is about to launch full-bore into some more local issues, like Thetis Lake Park.

Anderson maintains "environmental issues have come of age and people are no longer on the front line throwing bombs and rockets" but they are becoming more sophisticated in approaching the problem.

He said that times have changed to the extent people don't attend meetings anymore — "it would be difficult now to gather people for the Second Coming" — but that doesn't mean they're apathetic.

Appeal Answered

As an example, he said David Anderson's public appeal for donations for his legal expenses in appearing in U.S. courts against supertankers coming through B.C. waters has been "fantastic."

The MP asked for 10,000 Canadian citizens to donate $5 each, and much to his amazement, got $14,000 from 2,500 individuals, with no help from business or organizations.

Anderson lost his first battle in U.S. Federal District Court in Washington in January, but he, with the Canadian Wildlife Federation and three U.S. ecological groups, are coming up for an appeal.

White, who described his Victoria SPEC group as the most stable around, even if it isn't the most active, said the dedicated survivors of the ecological fad are now concentrating on the causes of pollution — which "aren't so glamorous as the effects."

Far from dead, ecologists are now "saner, more logical, hard and not so emotional." They are the kind of people who can forbear "no immediate results and quick rewards" and see "no one bogey man."

Gone are "people who trot around with banners blaming local industries without any sound ecological information."

One observer of the ecological scene argued, however, that the thrust towards a better environment has only made a slight dent in the real cause of pollution — galloping consumerism — and to overcome this everybody will have to choose their values and life-style.

Horn agrees. "People are going to have to settle for one car for a lifetime and allow only one brand of toothpaste on the market."

But the notes ruefully, "this is where the public is going to balk. No idiot environmentalist is going to tell them they can't have a color television in every room of their house."

. . . As the Anti-Growth Battle Lines Form

By BOB HUNTER
The Sun

As the problem of our collapsing environment comes into clear focus we see that it adds up to a crash which will make the Dirty Thirties look like a picnic.

It will likely take place within 50 years. Our standard of living will be thrown back to the level it was at a century ago. One in four will likely die.

As this picture — based on computer projections — begins to emerge, we see that battlelines are becoming more apparent.

The liberal-based environmental movement is being forced to adopt an anti-growth position, putting itself squarely in conflict with industry. The organized left, hoping to retain its power base among the working class, is being forced step-by-step into an unhappy alliance with its old arch foe.

Industry is in a strong position to put the working class against the environmentalists. There can no longer be any doubt about it: if the environmental crisis — with all its social effects — is to be headed-off or even slowed, industrial expansion will have to be brought under control.

Eventually, it will have to be checked entirely. The goal will have to be stability and equilibrium, as opposed to growth and competition.

It is too much to hope that the transition from a growth-based economy to one based on equilibrium can be made smoothly. It involves nothing less than a restructuring of our society, virtually from top to bottom.

No government on earth has yet committed itself to an anti-growth policy. At the national and regional political levels, it is evident that all the existing parties, from far right to far left, are obsessed with the notion of greater levels of production, not lesser levels.

Opposition to the notion of unending growth can be expected to mount in direct proportion to the rate at which our environment crumbles around us.

When the struggle begins to get serious — probably it will begin to get serious in this decade — we may reasonably expect certain trends which are already evident to take on enormous proportions. In the U.S., industry has already begun to appeal to the need for jobs as an excuse for maintaining the status quo, which in this context means continued industrial expansion.

Many industries are running scared. Just south of the border, there are a number of large corporations involved in the Cherry Point complex which are already in danger of being destroyed economically.

Damage suits against these corporations are being launched by farmers and others whose livelihood has been wiped out by pollution.

Together, these suits are running into millions of dollars. As the level of pollution and environmental ruin rises, industries will find themselves being hit with more and more damage suits and these will take their toll.

This will have the positive effect, in survival terms, of slowing the rate of industrial expansion. But there will be a tremendous social cost in terms of lost jobs. And no democratic government can tolerate sustained high levels of unemployment.

So government can be expected to commit itself to the struggle mainly on the side of industry. At that point, we will likely be faced with the spectre of liberal-style government, industry and the union-based left all in league with one another, trying to reduce the unemployment rate.

At this stage, environmentalists are very likely to find themselves being used as scapegoats in the economic crisis.

Industry cannot be expected to blame itself. And governments are famous for refusing to accept guilt. The easiest course will be to blame the eco-freaks.

Other Side of the Story

PRESS GALLERY
peter mcnelly

Two weeks ago this paper published the candid and angry reactions of 11 grade seven students in Victoria who had been asked by their teacher to write their impressions of a visit to the legislature.

You young people said some disturbing and some sadly true things about our parliament which have been on my mind ever since, and which I will try to answer.

Despite the political cynicism that B.C.'s legislature has created about itself, it's still possible to find some good there. True, the politics practised in that arena is among the crudest in Canada.

But there is a basic democratic dignity about parliament which is not destroyed just because the members of the legislature are often rude to each other. This dignity rests in our freedom to choose who shall govern us.

Yet you people were right to complain about the rule which prevents you from putting your hands on the railings in the public galleries while your elected representatives below insult each other and joke during somebody else's speech.

It is often disgusting, the way they carry on. I'm glad you noticed Premier Bennett's special black padded chair. Did you also notice that the fronts of the desks of the women MLAs are boarded up to keep the men from staring at their legs?

And if you noticed that, did you wonder what kind of old-fashioned thinking is behind the boarding up of those desks?

Some of you said you thought the way they pounded their desks was silly. But suppose we lived in a world where everybody applauded by pounding desks and only politicians clapped their hands.

Wouldn't that look silly if you saw it for the first time? The desk thumping is a harmless tradition, and all traditions aren't bad. They remind us that our way of life didn't just pop into existence yesterday. A certain amount of tradition is reassuring.

So when the MLAs refer to "Mr. Speaker," thump their desks and say "aye" in rapid succession when the committee chairman asks "Shall section one pass; shall section two pass . . ." They are behaving in the ordinary parliamentary way.

If you watched them long enough, you would eventually learns what all the details mean; and you would know when they are serious and when they are not; and you would hear some fine speeches about the way life could or should be in British Columbia; and you would often see men and women voting for what they believed in even when they knew this might cost them votes in the next election.

You would see careful, constructive legislation like the Family Relations Act presented to the legislature; but you would also see sloppy and confusing bills brought before the house.

In other words, you would see a human institution operated by the human beings your parents elected. In a democracy people get the government they deserve. If B.C.'s legislature is a rowdy and disrespectful place, it is partly because the voters in this province elect men who make it that way.

The other point here is that the government essentially determines what the rules of the house shall be. The Speaker only enforces the rules the assembly gives him.

And in our legislature, the government sometimes uses its majority to over-rule the Speaker when it doesn't like the way he interprets the rules.

The basic rules of the house, the Standing Orders, haven't been updated for more than 40 years. Maybe it's worth asking why the government hasn't done anything about this in the 20 years it's held office.

Even if the rules were brought up to date, the MLAs would still argue, because that's partly what politics is all about. Those men and women weren't elected to drink tea together.

As a group, they were elected to debate what our future shall be like and pass legislation designed to turn ideas into programs. There's no way that can be done without some argument.

But the main point of this column is that your reaction to the legislature showed that the school system is doing a poor job of telling you how Canadian politics works.

Sincere as they were, your comments revealed that you weren't told what to expect. Nobody, it appears, gave you a basic knowledge of what was going on.

A lot of people might have thought it was cute that a group of students could write such sharp put-downs of the legislature, but it's not cute. It's wrong to drop a group of people into the complex world of parliament without much preparation and then point to their reactions as uncovering the bald reality of our often stupid and cruel assembly.

Did you know that your American counterparts undertake a detailed study of their legislative process and national constitution as early as the fifth grade?

It's not your fault when you heard the MLAs saying "aye" as sections of a bill were passed that you didn't know the house was in the committee stage and that most of the detailed debate had occurred earlier. Naturally, that was boring.

Most of the time, the legislature is boring. City council is boring. The school board is boring. That's because government at any level is mainly administration.

Someday, instead of telling students to keep their hands off the railings, the parliamentary attendants will spend time giving other young people like yourselves a basic outline of what to expect in the legislature before the day's sitting begins.

Someday the provincial department of education will see to it that students are offered an elementary school course in how parliamentary democracy developed and how a legislature is run.

But until those days come, future busloads of students will have the same disillusioning experiences you had when you visited the legislature.

If things haven't improved by the time you all turn 19, go to the polls and elect new people. Or better still, run for office yourself.

I want love and marriage, a Birks diamond and 3 kids."

"I'll lead a protest march against anyone who says we can't start a great life on a low budget and high hopes.

It's because of our budget that we're buying the ring at Birks—probably the best value place in town for diamonds—and where we can choose from stones of different qualities. We want to be sure we get the quality we pay for. And Birks guarantees exactly that.

Birks diamonds start at $100. We may go a little higher, and someday exchange it for a bigger one. Birks will credit us with the original price we paid. Not a bad deal when you figure that might be 10 years from now!

Life's too short not to get your money's worth out of it."

Municipalities Seek Reduced Welfare Split

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — British Columbia's municipal governments were urged Friday to make a strong new appeal to Rehabilitation Minister Phil Gaglardi to reduce the 15 per cent municipal share of welfare costs to 10 per cent.

Alderman Ernie Broome of Vancouver, president of the Union of B.C. Municipalities, told a meeting of the group's province-wide executive that, if successful, the request "will mean a very worthwhile saving of about $6,000,000 to local governments this year."

Broome said the 15-per-cent share of welfare costs presently paid by cities, towns and district municipalities amounts to about one tenth of their total general revenues.

This totalled about $18,000,000 during 1971, he said. But if the provincial government had reduced the municipal share by one third it would have cost the municipalities $12,000,000 last year.

Topless Still On

VANCOUVER (CP) — As they say in show business, the show must go on.

And Friday night, the show — the bottomless-topless dancing at the Cafe Kobenhavn in downtown Vancouver — was going on, despite the fact its dancers and promoters appeared in provincial court earlier in the day charged with allowing an obscene performance and with nudity.

The nude dancing had to continue, manager Rick Ciarniello said, because without it the club would make no money. It does not have a liquor licence and sells only coffee and soft drinks.

Challenger Sought

VANCOUVER (CP) — The five-man legislative caucus of the British Columbia Liberal party has asked the party's provincial president, Mel Couvelier, to produce the candidate he says will challenge the leadership of Dr. Pat McGeer.

Liberal caucus chairman Allan Williams, MLA for West Vancouver-Howe Sound reported that Couvelier told the meeting "he had been approached by a person who was considering a leadership candidacy. But he was given the information in confidence and said he couldn't reveal it until this person came forward," said Williams.

Leap 'Accidental'

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) — A corner's jury returned a verdict of accidental death Friday in the case of Dean Lorange, 16, of Delta, who plunged 250 feet into Lynn Canyon in North Vancouver when he jumped a four-foot retaining fence.

The youth was taking part in a teen-age beer drinking party earlier this month when police arrived and called through a loudhailer "hold it — police." Testimony was that Loranger and about six friends, all from the Delta district and some of them unfamiliar with the area, fled the scene. Loranger went over the fence and 250 feet into the canyon.

Students Walk Out

DAWSON CREEK (CP) — Some 900 students skipped classes at three high schools in Dawson Creek Friday in a dispute over the busing of separate school students.

Students at Central Junior High, Frank Ross Junior Secondary and South Peace Senior Secondary walked out of classes after the first period Friday to protest a school board ruling barring separate school students from public school buses.

Parole Studied

VANCOUVER (CP) — Resolutions urging total abolition of capital punishment and expansion of parole programs, including temporary leaves of absence from prison for prisoners, will be discussed at the angual meeting later this month of the B.C. Association of Social Workers.

One resolution says the rate of parole failure of persons under the supervision of the national parole service "remains one of the lowest in the western world."

HAPPY REUNION ON ICE

LITTLE DIOMEDE ISLAND, Alaska (AP) — Eskimos of the Soviet Union and the United States recently met on the icepack near the top of the world to rehash their heritage and swap cigarettes.

The meetings were held on international Bering Sea ice where 2½ miles separates the Soviet territory of Big Diomede Island and Little Diomede Island of Alaska.

The Siberian Eskimos were moved from Big Diomede in 1947 to the mainland and last month some of them returned for a mid-winter hunt for white fox.

MEETING ARRANGED

"Jimmy knew him well when they lived on Big D," said Robert Soolook, mayor of the Little Diomede village.

They arranged a meeting for a week later involving three men from each island.

"It was a real good visit and it made everybody happy. They asked about all the old-timers in the village ... if they were still living."

They exchanged gifts, the Eskimos from the east giving tea, cigarettes, candy and sugar and their U.S. relatives cigarettes and chewing gum, Soolook said.

'No Music... Screaming'

LONDON (AP) — Some say the band kept playing as the Titanic carried 1,513 souls to the bottom of the North Atlantic 60 years ago today. But Edith Russell, one of the five living survivors, says it isn't so.

"There was no music, just terrible screaming," the 93-year-old spinster said in an interview in the London hotel where she now lives.

"I survived it with only my underwear, my pig and my memories."

The pig, a brown stuffed toy with a built-in music box, was a good-luck gift she got from her mother after surviving a car crash.

The 46,000-ton White Star liner, at the time the largest and most luxurious afloat, was on her maiden voyage when she struck an iceberg about 95 miles south of the Grand Banks of Newfoundland.

The only child of a wealthy Cincinnati merchant, Miss Russell said: "I'm accident-prone. I've been in shipwrecks, car crashes, fires, floods and tornadoes.

"I've had every disaster but bubonic plague and a husband — and there's still time for those."

Atlantic Link Recalled

MONTREAL (CP) — On April 15, 1947, a Trans-Canada Air Lines North Star touched down in London after a 16-hour flight from Montreal, marking the opening of Canada's major European gateway to the country's then-fledgling national airline.

The North Star service replaced the Canadian government Trans Atlantic Air Service flights which had operated between Montreal and the British Isles since 1943, using converted Lancaster aircraft.

Today, on the 25th anniversary of the flight, TCA's successor, Air Canada, celebrates the occasion with anniversary cake and champagne to be passed among passengers flying between Vancouver, Toronto, Montreal and London.

While DC-8s and Boeing 747s now fly the route regularly, the 40-seat North Star provided plenty of capacity in the old days, the airline recalls.

During 1947, a total of 1,305 passengers flew Canada to England, while 2,738 flew in the opposite direction.

Within five years, eastbound traffic had jumped to 5,380 annually, while westbound traffic rose even more, to 7,250.

TCA stopped using the four-engine North Star in 1954, in favor of the 63-seat Super Constellation. In 1960, with the coming of the jet age, the 133-seat DC-8 service was inaugurated.

The 198-seat DC-8 stretch jets were put into service a few years later and in 1968 were added to the Toronto-London route.

In 1971, 89,312 passengers flew from Canada to London on Air Canada services alone and 95,329 persons journeyed here from England, airline figures show.

GALLUP POLL

Canadians See War As Greatest Problem

By THE CANADIAN INSTITUTE OF PUBLIC OPINION

When Canadians are asked to assess the greatest problem facing the world today, most of them answer with one word: "Wars". They speak of sporadic wars, of the many misunderstandings between nations, of world strife and unrest. "There is too little peace" they say, and name the conflicts in Vietnam, the Middle East, India, and Ireland. Almost four in ten men and women put first place emphasis on these struggles.

Another large segment think first of the wide-spread poverty and famine in many countries. They believe the inequalities in standards of living, the starvation, unemployment, together with inflation and its accompanying miseries, to be the most serious problem facing mankind.

Less than one in ten think that over-population is the main world threat, or that pollution is the worst problem.

A host of others are named in total by 14 per cent of the people. They name such factors as communism, the drug traffic, lack of religion, immorality, and others, as their selection for the world's top-ranking menace.

The question:

"WHAT DO YOU CONSIDER TO BE THE WORLD'S GREATEST PROBLEM TODAY?"

Famine; starvation, poverty; unemployment; inflation	24
Over-population	9
The ecology; pollution	6
Other problems	9
Can't say	14
(Some named more than one)	101%

When the same question was put to citizens in the U.S. Gallup reports that men and women there place a different emphasis on the most serious world problem, although the order of mention was much the same as in Canada.

Concern over Vietnam is high, raising the level of those who feel that world strife is the most serious to 61%. Less emphasis is put in Canada is placed on the menace of famine and economic disparities, with 16% putting these in first place. However about the same proportion as in Canada, think that overpopulation or pollution is the main threat.

Considerably more, proportionately, name such problems as lack of religion, immorality, drugs and communism.

MB Scholarships Given Eight Island Students

LIBRARY RULE EASED

TORONTO (CP) — Librarians are to decide who will use the John P. Robarts library, focus of three student sit-ins last month.

The University of Toronto senate Friday night adopted rules that would allow anyone in the university to apply for access to the shelves where books are kept. The library staff will grant entry, for periods from a day to a year, on the basis of need.

Hundreds had attended previous meetings to protest the university's original plan to restrict bookshelf access at the new library to faculty members and graduate students. The protestors asked full access by undergraduates and the general public.

Eric Miglin, president-elect of the Students' Administrative Council, said after the meeting that students now are writing exams and that many didn't know of the meeting because the student newspaper, The Varsity, had stopped publishing for the term.

Is Your Breath What It Used To Be?
Bad breath has a number of causes. Age is a factor—so are dentures, caps, bridgework, gum trouble and so on. But Steri/sol Oral Antiseptic does much to control "aging breath" problems. You see, Steri/sol is the only mouthwash with Hexetidine—the powerful germ killer that deprives mouth bacteria of thiamine. Without thiamine, the mouth-germs that cause bad breath cannot live.
When you are worried about "aging breath", rinse with Steri/sol. Steri/sol is specially designed to combat these particular breath problems. The germ killing action of Hexetidine starts immediately, and within 15 minutes up to 95% of bad breath bacteria are eliminated. And because the Hexetidine in Steri/sol clings to mouth and gum tissues, the bactericidal action keeps on working up to 10 hours to help you feel really sure about your breath.
Put Steri/sol to work on bad breath right away. It does cost more than you might usually pay for a mouthwash, but then Steri/sol is not your usual mouthwash. Sold only at pharmacies.

Any illness or accident that sends you to hospital involves two kinds of expense.

CONVALESCENCE CASH

Your entire family is eligible for Convalescence Cash. There are no maximum age limits and acceptance is guaranteed, regardless of past or present health, during this enrollment.

- You can collect $20 a day tax free extra cash for every day you are convalescing. No home confinement necessary to collect.
- You can collect again and again, following every period of hospitalization, while the policy is in effect.
- You can collect in addition to any other coverage you may have—and you can start collecting immediately.
- You can collect money while getting better—for nursing, drugs, housekeepers, private tutors, travel, health resorts and other needs.

Now you can have $20 a day waiting for you when you get out of hospital.

Choose from these 4 plans that pay you while you or your family are convalescing after hospitalization.

FAMILY PLAN

INDIVIDUAL ADULT PLAN

HUSBAND-WIFE PLAN

SINGLE PARENT FAMILY PLAN

PEOPLE 65 AND OVER RECEIVE 50% OF THESE BENEFITS.

You can collect the above amounts during total or partial loss of time for up to 2 full years, depending on prior hospitalization.

How CONVALESCENCE CASH works.

If you are enrolled in the plan and have been in hospital continuously for 48 hours, you collect the above amounts for every day of convalescence for as many days as you were hospitalized. There is no red tape—you claim as soon as you come out and we start paying you immediately. And we keep on paying you for up to 24 full years convalescence if that's how long you were in hospital.

This vital protection is a breakthrough in health insurance. For a proper understanding of the benefits and cost of CONVALESCENCE CASH, read the following information carefully.

The high cost of getting better—and how to beat it.

A disquieting fact. Three out of five Canadian households may have at least one member in hospital this year. Residents of Canada spent over 42 million days in hospital last year—this year it may increase. It could be you, your wife, or your children—tomorrow...next week...next month. There is no way of knowing when illness or accident is going to strike.

Fortunately you live in Canada. When you have to go into the hospital you don't have to worry about hospital expenses. Government insurance pays most of your hospital costs. But what about when you come out? You need to spend some time convalescing and getting better before you can resume your usual activities.

Most people will have to spend at least as many days recovering after hospitalization as they spent in the hospital. Now that can be expensive, even if you still have a salary coming in. And if you don't it can be financially distressing. What if you have to spend some time in a warmer climate... could you afford it? Or what if your wife had to stay home from work or needed help around the house, or your children need private tutors to keep up with school work?

These are questions everyone should ask themselves... before it is too late. You'll probably think of a million and one different reasons why you should have extra cash.

And that's precisely why we designed this plan. The protection we call CONVALESCENCE CASH. It helps you beat the high cost of getting better.

No medical facts within your knowledge or within the knowledge of each person to be insured are material to this insurance but you should understand the policy pre-existing conditions respecting sickness which will be as follows:

CONVALESCENCE CASH AND PRE-EXISTING CONDITIONS*

Illness or injury for which you are receiving or have recently received medical treatment or advice*

Please read carefully to be sure you understand:
(a) what pre-existing conditions means
(b) when they are covered by Convalescence Cash
(c) how this affects you.

1. (a) Pre-existing conditions means a condition (illness or injury) for which you received medical treatment or advice within 12 months before the effective date of your policy—in this case April 18, 1971.
2. (b) Such pre-existing conditions become covered if you have not received any medical treatment or advice for a condition during any 12 consecutive month period ending after April 18, 1972. And, with Convalescence Cash, in all cases, after your policy has been in effect for 24 months, no condition will be considered pre-existing—all conditions will be fully covered.
3. (c) When you enroll in Convalescence Cash you have immediate coverage for illness or injury that results in convalescence from hospitalization, with the exception of pre-existing conditions which may not be covered as described above. This means that a pre-existing condition does not prevent you from enrolling in Convalescence Cash for while, as we have explained, a pre-existing condition may not be immediately covered, other illness or injury you may suffer is immediately covered.

CONVALESCENCE CASH pays tax free extra cash directly to you after you get out of hospital.

If you're a single adult, 18 or over, or the head of a family, under 65, CONVALESCENCE CASH will pay you $20 a day for every day you are convalescing, for as long as you were in hospital, up to 2 full years.

And the money is waiting for you as soon as you get out of hospital...all you have to do is have the simple claim form completed and submit it while you are convalescing.

CONVALESCENCE CASH provides special maternity benefits.

If you have the Family Plan or Husband-Wife Plan, you will receive $15.00 a day for each day your wife is convalescing following a period of hospitalization caused by pregnancy, for as long as her confinement lasted, or up to 4 weeks for any one pregnancy (maximum $420) whichever is less. These benefits are paid for pregnancies commencing after the effective date of the policy.

There are no maximum age limits.

CONVALESCENCE CASH is especially desirable for people over 65 whether ailing now or not. A single adult or the head of a family will be paid $10 a day each and every day, $300 a month each month for up to 2 full years, if that's how long they are convalescing and were in hospital. Spouses are covered for $7.50 a day each and every day, $225 a month each month for up to 2 full years, depending on the above qualifications. These benefits would supplement your old age pension.

You don't have to stay at home while you're convalescing to collect.

CONVALESCENCE CASH is unique because it is "loss of time" protection—and by "loss of time" we mean any period of time for which a covered person is disabled and unable to carry out some or all of his or her usual activities (everything from employment to housework to school attendance).

This means that you can collect while you're enjoying recuperative travel or resort living. And you can continue to collect even while phasing back into your work routine.

Pays you in addition to any other coverage you might have.

CONVALESCENCE CASH does not take the place of other insurance coverage. It provides extra cash in addition to your present coverage for a low premium. That's what makes it so valuable to you and your family.

Premiums do not increase with your age.

Once you have enrolled in CONVALESCENCE CASH your premium will remain in your original age classification, regardless of how long you keep your policy.

Pays for sickness as well as injury convalescence.

This policy covers sickness or disease as well as bodily injury caused by an accident.

Your policy can't be terminated because of your claims

Your policy cannot be terminated nor the rates changed because of your claims, or for any other reason, unless all CONVALESCENCE CASH policies bearing the same policy form number in your province are terminated or changed.

There are no health questions and no maximum age limits to qualify for this plan.

CONVALESCENCE CASH is available to everybody in Canada, and with no upper age limit. Please refer to Convalescence Cash and Pre-Existing conditions on this page.

How we can offer you this low cost protection

Our costs for processing are kept at the lowest possible level by enrolling a great many people at one time through advertisements such as these. These savings are reflected in the low monthly premium rates for Convalescence Cash.

However, if you wish instead to purchase 2 Individual Adult Plans (for yourself and your wife) or just a Single Parent Family Plan to protect your wife and children you may do so. Make up your own combination but do not enroll the same person more than once. You may also purchase this plan for your parents if you are 18 or over.

Your questions answered about CONVALESCENCE CASH

Q What exactly is meant by convalescence?

A Convalescence means the period of time immediately following discharge from hospital after a minimum continuous stay of 48 hours while regaining health and before you fully resume all of your usual activities.

A House confinement is never required during loss of time under this policy. You may even travel or stay at a resort as long as you are convalescing.

Q Can I add new born children to the policy?

A Yes, if you are insured under the Family Plan new born children are automatically covered upon attaining the age of 3 months. Under any of the other plans you can change your policy to the Family Plan to include new born children after 3 months. Simply notify us and we change your premiums to the applicable rate. Under the Family Plan and the Single Parent Family Plan children cease to be covered when they reach age 19, or 23 if they are dependent and attending an educational establishment on a full time basis.

Q If I find out I have to go into hospital the day my policy goes into effect am I covered?

A You're covered from 12.01 a.m. on April 18, 1972 provided we receive your enrollment postmarked not later than midnight on April 17, 1972, provided the illness is not the result of a pre-existing condition.

Q How do I collect my benefits?

A Just have the simple claim form completed. It comes with your policy and instructions are printed on it. Then mail it to CNA assurance Company.

Q Can I buy this protection for my parents regardless of their age?

A Yes. But you must indicate clearly on the application that they are the Policy Owners and that the premium billing goes to you. Written consent from your parents must accompany the enrollment form.

Q If I change my mind when I receive my policy can I get my money back?

A Absolutely. You have 15 days from the day you receive the policy to examine it carefully in the privacy of your own home. You'll find it easy to read and simple to understand. Show it, if you wish, to your insurance agent, doctor, lawyer or trusted advisor. If you decide, for any reason, to return the policy, do so within 15 days after you receive it. Your money will be refunded.

Q How can I use my cash benefits?

A For anything you like. There are no limitations. You can use it for drugs, medical equipment, nursing care or ambulances. It could pay for babysitters, housekeepers, private tutors and recuperative travel expenses such as hotels and transportation. You can use this tax free extra cash for any and every convalescence expense.

Q Are there any exceptions that apply to my policy?

A The policy does not cover any loss of time caused by war, riots or insurrections; service in the armed forces; nervous or mental disorders; birth defects; attempted suicide or self inflicted injuries; nor does it cover convalescence following confinement in clinics, nursing, rest or convalescent homes, or extended care facilities or institutions for alcoholics and drug addicts or the mentally ill.

ONLY THREE DAYS LEFT TO ENROLL

Canadian Follows Lead of Dr. Tom Dooley

It's not the Vietnam where war excludes all else; it's the Southeast Asian country that is attempting to move from a "rice paddy culture" into a developed nation.

A commitment to development has kept the 31-year-old enthusiastically active for six of the last seven years in Vietnam. It maintains him as he settles into the agency's plush home office in Ottawa.

Mr. Rhealt's current problem is to get Canada out of a Vietnam development program it has been involved in for years—a "knockout" program supporting a tuberculosis clinic in northern Vietnam's Quang Ngai province.

Canada stumbled into the program in the wake of a project begun by an American, Tom Dooley, Mr. Rhealt said in an interview.

The clinic then dealt with incurably ill tuberculosis patients and had about as many doctors as patients.

Since then, CIDA has transformed the clinic into a report run by 40 Vietnamese technicians, sparing doctors for other work in the country.

Aim of the clinic is not to fight tuberculosis as much as to teach the Vietnamese to cope with the disease.

TEACH HYGIENE

Mr. Rhealt is taking care of final administrative details as Canada withdraws from the clinic, a process that should be completed this spring.

Next in line is a program to aid in administration and teaching public health in An Jiang province southwest of Saigon.

The program will mean teaching basic concepts of hygiene, midwifery and immunization to villagers, who will in turn teach others, a process essential to Canadian development practices, he says.

It's not the type of program where aid funds are sunk into large buildings, such as hospitals, and treatment is given to abnormally afflicted people.

Mr. Rhealt, now out of the field and preparing a report on Vietnam activities by CIDA, says aid itself has become big business.

Canada's allotments to Vietnam, for example, had risen to about $9 million from $2.5 million a year during the last decade. Governments receiving aid now bargained with those who have aid to offer.

But aid programs boiled down to devoted people in the field and the fact that it was "no longer sufficient to do a good job without doing the right job."

That means attacking roots of problems in underdeveloped countries rather than fighting superficial symptoms; developing economic systems that can be built upon.

Those ideals have taken the young Canadian from his birthplace at Sioux Lookout, Ont., to aid work for the Australian government in the early 1960s and finally to CIDA where the process continues.

WREATH RECALLS TITANIC

NEW YORK (AP) — A U.S. Coast Guard research ship will drop a wreath off the coast of Newfoundland Saturday to mark the 60th anniversary of the sinking of the Titanic, while overhead a coast guard plane scouts for icebergs.

It was an iceberg that sent the White Star liner and more than 1,500 of its 2,207 maiden-voyage passengers and crew to the frigid ocean bottom at 2:20 a.m. on April 15, 1912, the worst peacetime maritime disaster in history.

Plant Destroyed

WESTBANK (CP) — Several firemen were injured slightly and onlookers were knocked to the ground by the second of two explosions in a fire which destroyed an asphalt plant Thursday in this Okanagan community.

The explosions — of two large butane tanks — created huge fireballs that rose thousands of feet, witnesses said.

Butane escaping from a third tank which did not explode was expected to burn until this morning. Damage to the plant, owned by Westlake Paving Co., is estimated at $50,000.

Sophisticated Weather Satellite in Use

LONDON (CP) — One of the necessities of long-range weather forecasting is knowledge of the distribution of temperatures in the upper atmosphere—higher than weather ballons can rise.

British scientists have helped solve the problem with the design of what they call a "chopper" radiometer, mounted in the Nimbus IV satellite of the American National Aeronautical and Space Administration.

The instrument, designed at the universities of Oxford and Reading, measures the amount of infra-red radiation emitted by carbon dioxide in the atmosphere. Atmospheric temperatures up to an altitude of about 30 miles can be deduced from such measurements.

By a process known as "chopping" it is possible to select radiation coming from different layers of air. The six detectors on the radiometer see radiation from fairly broad slabs of atmosphere approximately nine miles thick centred on 26, 17, 62, nine and six miles above the ground and the ground itself.

The satellite passes near the North and South Poles, crossing the Equator at local noon on the northward pass and at local midnight travelling southwards. It takes 107 minutes for one orbit, the earth rotating on its axis by 27 degrees.

Thus the satellite passes within 1,864 miles of any point on the Equator twice a day or within 1,187 miles of any point at latitude 50 twice a day. Observations are made every 16 seconds, every 124 miles along the sub-satellite track, and recorded on the satellite tape recorder for play-back to a station in Alaska once each orbit.

The data than go by microwave link to Goddard Space-Flight Centre near Washington where a copy of all data is stored. Each morning data for the preceding 24 hours are sent by submarine cables from Goddard to Oxford and Reading for computer processing.

This produces 250,000 temperature values a day—a total of 100 million since launch in 1970. The temperatures at chosen heights are plotted in the correct position on a map to give the global distribution of temperatures at the height for that day. This process plotting is all automatic and takes about four hours, the entire process being completed within six hours of the last observation.

The chief scientific value of the data lies in the information from the upper atmosphere above the height reached by meteorological balloons, approximately 18 miles. Previously this region has been reached only by rockets, which measure winds and temperatures up to 40 miles. But rockets are expensive so launches are intermittent and confined largely to North America.

The understanding of wave structures in the wind systems of the stratosphere has important consequences for long-range weather forecasts for which the distribution of certain minor atmospheric constituents might become crucial.

These constituents are ozone and, increasingly, some forms of atmospheric pollution which can play an important part in determining how much energy the earth receives from the sun and radiates to space and which is transported from one latitude to another by global scale wind patterns revealed in the Nimbus observations.

French Resort Town Draws Students a la Francaise

AIX-EN-PROVENCE (CP) — In winter the narrow streets of this charming city of southern France echo with the sound of North American voices. Aix, like Paris and Grenoble, is a popular centre for foreign students wishing to speak the French language and study French culture.

Part of the popularity of Aix is certainly due to its situation 20 miles from Marseille and the Mediterranean; part also to the intrinsic charm of a university city of 100,000, known for the beauty of its architecture and for the rocky backdrop of Mont Ste. Victoire.

Towards two in the afternoon, the city's shopkeepers set out their stands of postcards and sale shoes, and the students look at their watches. Those with a less acute sense of time order another cup of coffee.

TO LEARN FRENCH

Aix's cafes are probably one of the best places for foreign students to become acquainted with their French counterparts. A majority of the North Americans have no regular classes but take part in special programs for foreign students.

There are a number of special programs for foreign students in Aix. Several are specially organized by various American universities, such as the University of Michigan or Vanderbilt, for their own students who take part in the Junior Year Abroad program and are given credits for the year.

Two programs are of interest to Canadian students. The first is the Institute for American Universities, chartered by the Board of Regents of the University of the State of New York, and drawing students mainly from various American universities which haven't a program of their own.

In one program, courses are offered in French and English. This program, which costs about $2,800 for tuition, board and room, transatlantic and holiday travel, is attended mostly by American undergraduates.

The second special program is widely attended by Canadian students. It is the Institut des Etudes Francaises pour Etudiants Etrangers, run by the university itself and costing about $60 for the year's tuition.

This program offers instruction in spoken and written French and, like the American Institute, gives courses in literature, art history, the social sciences and civilization.

Most of the students are undergraduates, and credit must be arranged by each Canadian student with his university. Some Canadian universities give no credit for these programs, while others with certain stipulations, give credit for an undergraduate year, and one or two, on certain conditions, will give partial credit towards a master's degree.

GET FRENCH DEGREE

A third possibility, and probably the most interesting for an advanced student of French, is to register directly at the Faculty of Letters. The student who wishes to do so must first apply for an "equivalence" for his Canadian degrees, telling him at what level of the French university system he may begin his studies.

A bachelor of arts degree is normally accepted as entry into the third year of the Faculty of Letters. At the end of the third year, the successful students will receive the French degree "licence es lettres." Tuition costs are minimal.

Housing in all three cases is possible. Students who wish to increase their contacts with the French with a French family can live as paying guests or "au pair," a system whereby the student pays for his room by baby-sitting or helping with household tasks.

A lucky student from Vancouver last year found a job as a cook for a French family of three and almost decided to give up her studies and take up cuisine. Fortunately, on her return to Canada she discovered she could combine the two in the teaching of primary school French, for her pupils are only too pleased to learn French around a cake pan.

Reid

Last year's profit fell marginally from the 1970 level, reports Reid Lithographing Co. Ltd., of Hamilton, which had share earnings of $1.96 vs. $2.12.

The company said sales totalled $7 million compared with $7.66 million, and net income was $336,427 against $362,163.

Koffler

The company had income of $50 million compared with $12.5 million, with net earnings of $2.3 million against $1.7 million, or 56 cents a share (51 cents), including an extraordinary item worth two cents last year and one cent the previous year.

Comet

Second phase of a diamond drilling contract let by Comet Industries Ltd. is under way on its copper prospect between holdings of Afton Mines Ltd. and Leemac Mines Ltd. west of Kamloops.

A total 10,000 feet is to be drilled in the total program, of which four diamond and eight percussion holes were drilled in the first phase. Assays are expected soon.

Granite Lk.

Granite Lake, near McLeese Lake in the Cariboo district, is being drained by Gibraltar Mines Ltd. in preparation for mining an ore body in which three companies have interests.

A new company, Cuisson Lake Mines Ltd., has been formed to own all the 55 claims and fractional claim belonging to Gunn Mines Ltd., which will have 75,000 shares. Gibraltar will have one million shares and Canex Explorations Ltd. 736,689.

The ore body, which is Cuisson's chief asset, is estimated to have reserves of 14.3 million tons of copper-molybdenum mineral.

Silknit

Sales rose 21 per cent to help double profit of Silknit Ltd. during 1971. Part of the improvement was due to sale of an investment.

Sales were $16 million — a new record — and pre-tax earnings $1.11 million, up from $654,815. After tax, earnings were $589,266 ($2.79 a share) compared with $323,015 ($1.52), and the extraordinary gain raised this to $644,204 ($3.05 a share).

Working capital is up from $4.12 million to $4.18 million.

Exeter

Drilling within a week is expected on property of Exeter Mines Ltd. and Granite Mountain Mines Ltd., which hold 50 claims immediately south of Afton Mines Ltd. copper strike near Kamloops.

Preliminary survey work has been completed, including linecutting, magnetometer and induced polarization surveys, together with additional staking.

Eight percussion holes were recommended and drilling contract is worked out.

CZ

A substantial improvement in sales and earnings for the first quarter of 1972, compared with the same period a year ago, is reported by Crown Zellerbach Canada Ltd.

President Robert G. Rogers said sales were $52 million, compared with $41 million for the first three months of 1971.

Net income was $2.5 million, against $1.3 million for the same quarter a year ago. Share earnings rose to 31 from 16 cents.

Death Tax Puzzle Unanswered

• YOUR TAXES •

By I. H. ASPER

One of the most puzzling aspects of the provinces' current plan to re-introduce provincial succession duties is that no one has asked othe key question: why would the provinces go to the expense and trouble and accept the economic risks of setting up a death tax system when anyone who is so inclined can completely and legitimately avoid the tax without even moving out of his province?

If that proposition is correct, and based on previous constitutional and tax court decisions, it would seem to be, then one must conclude that the new succession duty system is showcase legislation designed to perpetuate the fiction in the minds of some social scientists, to the effect that major transfers of wealth are really being taxed.

Many economic theorists sleep easier believing this.

The ease of tax avoidability arises from a number of legal principles, coupled with the fact that Alberta, Bermuda, and a host of other jurisdictions are death tax havens.

In the first place, constitutionally, each province has taxing jurisdiction only over people and property located within its boundaries. The legal definitions of "the situs" or location of property, come into play in an important way. For example, the legal location of real estate is easy to define, because it is not moveable.

But, when one owns shares in a company, the legal location of those shares might be determined in any number of ways. They could be legally located in the province where they are physically kept; or in the province where the shareholder lives; or in the province where the company is incorporated.

In order to have sme definition and avoid complexity, the courts have consistently ruled that the shares in a company are legally located in the province in which those shares can be transferred and dealt with under company law. Thus, if you own shares in an Alberta company, which has a share transfer register and office only in Alberta, then regardless of where you live, the legal situs of those shares is Alberta.

So if you own real estate located in Ontario, for tax purposes Ontario has jurisdiction over that property. But if you own shares in an Alberta company which in turn owns the Ontario real estate, your taxable asset is the shares, and they come under Alberta jurisdiction.

The proposed succession duty system taxes all the deceased's property located within the taxing province. It also taxes all of his property which is located outside the province if it is inherited by someone resident within the taxing province.

Thus in order to completely escape the provincial death tax, one must simply do two things: Make certain all his assets in excess of the legal tax exemptions are located outside the province and make certain the beneficiary of his estate is also not legally within the taxing province.

Here's the translation. Mr. millionaire lives in Manitoba. His net worth is $1 million. He wants to leave it to or for the benefit of his son who also lives in Manitoba.

If he leaves it directly to his son there is a $150,000 exemption and the succession duty on the remaining $850,000 will be $366,000, or 36 per cent of the total estate.

However, if he transfers the ownership of all his Manitoba assets (in excess of the $150,000 exemption) to an Alberta company, and then leaves his shares in the Alberta company to another Alberta company which is owned by his son, or to an Alberta trust for the son, the province of Manitoba can't tax the inheritance and since Alberta levies no tax, the entire $1 million is transferred tax-free.

There are many variations on the theme and while the provincial legislators debate the succession duty legislation late into these spring nights, the midnight oil is also burning in the offices of tax advisors across the land as they perfect their tax avoidance techniques.

The irony of the situation becomes more sharply into focus when one considers the example of the less sophisticated — the people who are too busy to get around to tax planning. These are the people who will actually pay the death taxes.

Mr. Farmer borrows $25,000 and starts a small farming operation. He spends a lifetime clearing and developing his land. Through hard work, self denial and inflation, when he dies, it's worth $125,000. He leaves the farm to his younger brother.

First there is a federal and provincial capital gains tax of about $20,000 on the lifetime gain in value, and then there is the provincial succession duty of $13,000. The total tax charge in order to protect Canada from this allegedly dangerous concentration of economic power, is $33,000, or about 27 per cent of the total value.

Unless the family can find the cash to pay the tax, the farm will be sold, as will many businesses. The buyers will be large corporations or foreign investors. Presumably our political planners consider this better than leaving the capital in the hands of private enterpreneurs.

In the face of these stark comparisions, the political rhetoric, the legislative grandstanding, and all that jabberwocky, one is reminder of the Hans Andersen fable about the little boy who hapwasn't wearing any clothes.

Have we taken leave of our senses?

THE SHIFTING WINDS OF FORTUNE

In my column of last week, written shortly before the Fifth Annual National Open Chess Championship at Sparks, Nevada, I devoted a good bit of space to one of the most impressive Grandmasters playing in the U.S., Walter Browne of Brooklyn and Australia.

When I did so, I had the uneasy feeling that my words of praise might jinx him at Sparks — but they didn't. In a hard-fought tournament, he and Louis Levy of East Orange, New Jersey, tied for first with 7 points out of a possible 8.

Browne beat out Grandmaster Svetozar Gligoric of Yugoslavia in a titanic game that went 84 moves. Had Gligoric not made what at the time appeared to be a slight error, but turned out to be a critical one, on his 60th move, he would have been assured of an easy draw.

I talked with Browne at Sparks and asked him for his guess as to the outcome of the Spassky-Fischer match. He is positive that Fischer will win and puts the score at 12½-7½.

The relative unknown who tied him, Louis Levy, who played with great care and solid force, is not likely to forget the 1972 Open. At least, he had better not: He was married the day before it started!

Following Browne and Levy came Grandmasters Gligoric and Arthur Bisguier of New York, and Jim Tarjan of Berkeley, all tied at 6½.

In all, there were 134 players at Sparks. It was an excellent tournament, and a pleasure to direct. (It was my ninth year as director of this event, which started only 10 years ago.)

Pride goeth before a fall. My self-satisfaction at having written about Walter just before his Sparks victory was diminished immediately afterward. At the Statham Masters tourney in Lone Pine, California, Browne, along with Bisguier and U.S. Champion Larry Evans, met disaster. More of that next week.

Played in the National Open, Sparks, March, 1972.

Bermuda Shrinks

HAMILTON, Bermuda (CP) — This British resort colony has been warned that in 20 years all arable land will be gone.

The loss of the land will not only mean the end of the tiny local agriculture industry, but will result in a threat to Bermuda's major industry, tourism.

The warning comes in a report from the department of agriculture which points out that back in 1921 there were 3,012 acres of arable land. Since then 82 per cent of this has gone, leaving only 550 acres.

In the last 10 years 31 per cent of the arable land has vanished into housing developments and golf courses. The present rate is about 25 acres a year and the report says it will be all gone in 20 years.

The dairy industry is given another 10 years of life. In 1961 450 acres were available for pasturing dairy animals. This has dropped 66 per cent to 153 in 10 years and zero grazing in fact, if not in name, is practised on every farm.

Even the number of farms is dropping. In 1965 there were 29. The last available figures show there are now only 11 and five of these have uncertain futures as they are on rental land.

The department of agriculture predicts that dairying will continue in Bermuda on a tenuous basis for another 10 years, producing a commodity which will become more and more a luxury item.

The decrease in the dairy industry has seen a corresponding drop in the number of dairy cows. In 1961 there were 1,047. This has dropped until now there are only 616.

The tractor is becoming something of a museum piece. There are now only 18 on the island, with a similar number of the two-wheeled jobs. There are only 30 horses or mules working on the farms, although the horse as a pet has increased in popularity with an estimated 540 here.

Commercial chicken farms total 13 with 124,000 birds. Local eggs cost 15 to 20 per cent more than imported eggs.

Embargoes on foreign products are used here extensively to protect a struggling agricultural industry. They are used when local products can adequately supply the market.

Bermudians, hit hard by the rising cost of living, have sometimes complained about the embargoes because local produce is invariably higher priced than its imported counterpart.

But the department of agriculture says the embargoes protect the local producers who might otherwise go under economically.

If construction doesn't end soon though the position might not be so good. For the open spaces will be gone and all food will have to be imported.

Nobody here wants to see that happen.

Berlin Garbage Output Mountainous Conundrum

WEST BERLIN (Reuter) — West Berlin churns out about six million tons of solid rubbish every year and no one seems to know how the city will get rid of it in future.

The most ingenious and spectacular solution in the past resulted in the creation of an artificial hill called the Teufelsberg, a giant slag heap which now provides ski and toboggan runs for winter sports enthusiasts.

Some planners advocated a similar dump in the same Grunewald Forest area, but the suggestion caused such a public outcry that the authorities now are looking for other possibilities and pinning their hopes on "exporting" the refuse to East Germany, which surrounds West Berlin.

In any case a second "Teufelsberg" would be a somewhat drastic way out of the rubbish problem—it would mean chopping down nearly a million trees over an area of 148 acres.

And West Berliners are not happy about the prospect of losing nearly a fifth of the Grunewald which has already been mutilated to provide room for an airport and an industrial complex.

The position at the moment is that the West Berlin city government will be short of dumping space for 34 million cubic yards of miscellaneous refuse by 1980—well over half the city's output.

'BOOZER' HURLS CHALLENGE

Nicknamed "Boozer" by her fellow employees, the 22-year-old rental car driver said she can down a pint in 4.8 seconds. This week she challenged any woman in Britain to beat her.

"Some of the men say I must have hollow legs," said Marilyn, who began drinking beer while a staff car driver in the army.

Are you beginning to think this way about funerals?
☐ I think many people buying a funeral end up paying far more than originally planned, possibly because they are emotionally bewildered at the time.
☐ Money spent on elaborate funerals would be better spent among the living.
☐ I want my funeral, including cremation or burial, to cost under $300.
☐ I think embalming, for purposes of displaying the body, is an unnecessary indignity.
☐ I am repelled by putting a body on display with the face made up to look "natural".
☐ I favour a closed coffin, a private cremation or burial, with perhaps a memorial service after, for friends and relatives.
☐ I feel strongly enough about these matters that I would like to support an organization dedicated to promoting simpler, less costly, more dignified funeral practices.
☐ I would like to receive a simple plan which lets me record my wishes in privacy, so that they may be filed with a non-profit organization I know will carry out my wishes after death. This also saves my next-of-kin from making these difficult decisions under emotional stress.

A car so advanced, it can tell you just about everything that's right or wrong with it.

Remarkable new invention in every 1972 Volkswagen.

The agony of an automotive check-up.
You sit nervously thumbing through old magazines, praying that somehow you can get out of there for less than $50.
Then, the moment of truth:
Those days will be over soon if you own a 1972 Volkswagen.
For instead of a mechanic telling you what he thinks is wrong with your car, now your car can tell you for sure.
Sound amazing?
It is.

A car wired like a space capsule.
When Man went to the Moon, the success of each mission depended a great deal on a highly technical computerized system that told the Astronauts the exact condition of their space vehicle.

The system in the car.
Running throughout the car is a network of sensors, each reporting the condition of various parts of the car.
Most of these sensor points are located in key areas like the engine or the electrical system, but many are found in seemingly insignificant places like the heated rear window.
The information from all areas is channeled to one central socket located in the rear engine compartment.
The socket is about the size of a pack of cigarettes.
We mention the size only because of what happens next. And that's what this amazing socket can do.

60 vital service checks.
Soon you'll be able to take any 1972 Volkswagen into an authorized VW dealership for the most advanced automotive check-up in the world today.
At that time, your Volkswagen will actually be plugged into a computer.
And in half the time it takes to perform a conventional check-up, 60 vital service checks will be made and recorded.

Checks wheel alignment in 10 seconds.
In 10 seconds, you'll know if your front wheels are properly aligned.
In a minute, you'll know the condition of the compression of all engine cylinders.
Without a mechanic so much as taking a peek, you'll know whether or not your battery needs water.
All checked out without human error.
In effect, your car will be telling you how it feels directly.
And once again, this information is emanating from that one tiny socket built into the back of every 1972 Volkswagen.

One-half of the system is already here. Built into every new Volkswagen.
The other half, the computer, is on its way.
Imagine.
When all 60 service checks have been made, the printout sheet is yours to keep.
What better proof to show that your automobile has finally had a thorough physical check-up?

A new way to look at a VW.
It started with economy, back in 1949, when it wasn't fashionable for an automobile to be economical.
But since when has a VW been fashionable?
Since never.
Obviously, the VW Beetle hasn't made it on looks alone.
But then, that's always been the plan.
While everyone else has been worrying about how their cars looked, we've been worrying about how ours acted.
And now, after all that time, we've even advanced it to a stage where it can speak.

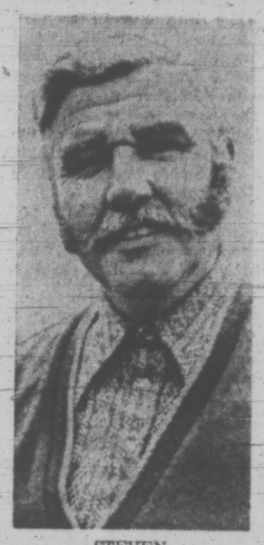
SPLISH . . . SPLASH

The Neptunes are going back to the front line with a mighty load of fire water sloshing around where torpedoes and depth charges once poised for an entirely different kind of kill



STEVEN

By DON VIPOND, Times Staff

The flying firemen from Victoria are going to make a mighty splash on the forest fire scene this summer.

It's going to be delivered by the latest addition to the fleet of water bombers working out of Patricia Bay airport — a whopping Lockheed Neptune, with 2,600 gallons in its belly where torpedoes and depth charges once nestled.

Flying Fireman Ltd., bought by local businessman Richard Rude three years ago, has purchased three Neptunes, post-war anti-submarine attack bombers retired by the RCAF.

One of them has been modified for water bomber work and will be evaluated by the company and provincial government through the next fire season — officially May 1 to Sept. 15.

In test flights over the past two weeks the Neptune has dropped about 10 of its soggy loads, using a taxi runway at the airport for a target.

Missing on the modified Neptune is the boom, a cigar-like extension beyond the tail which housed a radar tracking system. The bomb bay doors are gone and in their place the water tank adds squarer lines. Gone too is all the military electronic gear which jammed the air force Neptunes.

Flying Fireman, which has grown from four to 13 planes over the past two years, has six Canso water bombers under contract to the province through the forest fire season. The Canso, formerly used in search and rescue, is a two-engine amphibian which scoops its 800-gallon payload from lakes.

★

The Neptune is land-based only, explains Frank Steven, chief pilot and operations manager. It has four engines, two of them jets to help lift that 40-ton "all up" load off the runway.

The 2,600 gallons can be rammed aboard in six minutes. It's loaded under pressure through a single three-inch port.

Apart from delivering better than three times the Canso payload, the Neptune is faster in the air and in a business where speed counts. It cruises at 250 miles an hour, twice the Canso's cruising speed.

The Canso slows to about 110 miles an hour to drop its load, the Neptune to about 140.

The Neptune could claim to be the big bird on the water bomber scene now if it weren't for the two Martin Mars based at Sproat Lake near Port Alberni. Last of their kind in the world (only five were made), these flying boats are operated jointly by four logging companies to fight forest fires and can drop 6,000 gallons at a shot.

Water bombers supply some of the most spectacular unscheduled sights Island tourists see each summer. Actually they don't drop water but a mixture of water and fire-retarding chemical. A red dye is added to make the shot highly visible for spotters.

The thing which raises water bombimg beyond amateurs is the ideal height for a drop — 75 feet. That might not be so bad over flat land. Over rolling forests with the occasional towering snag it's a sweat.

Dropping water alone on a fire would just produce steam, says Steven. The chemical added produces a jelly-like mix the crews call "mud." It coats the forest growth, shutting out the oxygen needed for burning.

Pilots don't aim for the fire but the timber in front of the advancing edge or the flanks. Their attack is directed by a forestry officer in a spotter or "bird dog" plane.

The bird dog plane is the first on the scene when a forest fire is going to be attacked from the air. It radios the best run in for the bomber and may lead it in initially.

Because the Neptune is faster than the Cansos, Flying Fireman is switching to a faster bird dog, a twin-engine turbo Commander which cruises at 270 miles an hour, Steven said.

The company's Cansos flew almost 1,000 hours against forest fires last year and completed 5,000 drops. Fighting fires from the air isn't cheap. Cost of delivering a gallon of "mud" worked out to about 40 cents, meaning each Canso drop cost about $400.

"We have to be at least 85 per-cent accurate with the drops. Anything less isn't acceptable."

Steven says his pilots need not only flying skill but co-ordination. There's a knack to it. Because his planes are from an earlier era, their pilots are mostly former air force, older men who have the experence with them.

A full week of ground school for his 19 pilots starts next week. When they start flying after that the fire season will officially be only a week away.

'Balance Billing' Started and So Far No Screams

By DON VIPOND

A Victoria doctor who has begun "balance billing" his patients said Friday the majority has readily accepted the move.

The doctor, a general practitioner, said indications are more doctors here and elsewhere in the province will take the same step this spring if the impasse between physicians and provincial government over a new fee schedule continues.

That would mean that for the first time in years many patients would be charged directly for a fraction of their doctor bills.

The vast majority of residents in British Columbia have their doctor bills covered by medicare. Balance billing relates to the difference between what medicare will pay for a service and what the doctors, represented by the B.C. Medical Association, set as the fee for that service.

The BCMA has been negotiating with the provincial government for more than a year on a new doctors' fee schedule, on average 8 per cent higher. Increases would all be concentrated in the six doctor groups, including general practice, showing the lowest earnings.

Prior to the new year the Medical Services Commission, which administers medicare for the province, was paying 90 per cent of the BCMA schedule. Doctors generally were not billing patients for the balance.

When the BCMA introduced its new fee schedule Jan. 1, the provincial government ignored it. The Medical Services Commission continued to pay doctors for insured services at 90 per cent of their old fee schedule.

The doctor in Victoria who is balance billing is charging his patients directly for the difference between the medicare schedule and 90 per cent of the new doctors' schedule.

For an office visit, it means a charge of 45 cents payable directly by the patient. Medicare pays $6.30 and 90 per cent of the new doctors' fee schedule is $6.75.

The charge direct to the patient for a home visit by this doctor is $2.70. Medicare will pay the balance of $8.10.

Care throughout a maternity will cost the patient $45 directly with medicare paying the balance of $108.

With most operations, the direct charge to the patient will be $9.

Under terms of the Medical Services Act, the doctor must first serve notice on his insured patients he intends charging beyond the medicare schedule and they must acknowledge notice and agree to the arrangement.

Since he began balance billing two weeks ago he has offered the required form to about 100 families. Two-thirds have signed it immediately and the rest have taken it home to study. Of these, about one-quarter have since signed and sent the form back to him.

No one has yet refused to sign.

★ ★ ★

The doctor says there are three reasons he has gone to balance billing.

First, he believes the doctors' new fee schedule to be a fair one. As a matter of principle then he should use it.

Second, he believes rising health care costs may well mean that in future government insurance schemes will not be able to cover all services. Balance billing is therefore educating his patients for what will likely come.

Third, the fee schedule impasse between doctors and government could go on and on. When it is resolved, changes certainly won't be retroactive so the increases he feels entitled to through the protracted negotiations would be lost without balance billing.

He says that if a satisfactory new fee schedule is adopted by the government, there would be no reason for him to continue balance billing.

Rocky Reception For Ship Idea

Maritime Museum director Col. J. W. D. Symons today threw cold water on a proposal that the museum bring in an ancient square-rigger sailing ship for permanent exhibit.

Symons said the proposal, made by Victoria Mayor Peter Pollen, would be too costly for the museum to handle and would not lead to a profit until quite a long time after purchase.

The ship involved is the 95-year-old Elissa, now sailing under a Greek name in the Mediterranean. She is 430 tons and about 200 feet in length.

"We have to consider first things first, and our main problem right now is keeping the Maritime Museum in being," Symons said. "We're still struggling to stay alive."

It is believed the purchase price for the Elissa would be about $30,000. A further $250,000 would have to be spent on refitting and restoring her.

"Where this money is supposed to come from I just don't know," Symons said.

Pollen's proposal calls for it to come from private interests.

Symons said it would probably be about seven or eight years before the museum could start to make a profit from exhibiting the ship. Before that time money would have to be paid for buying the ship, bringing her over from Europe, drydock facilities to keep her and the rebuilding costs.

The Recipe Calls for a Pinch of Salt

BETWEEN FACT AND fiction lies the wonderful land of apocrypha. It is a country of mirages and shifting horizons. In it the account that has all the earmarks of a tall tale may be strictly true, while what's offered as truth may owe a considerable debt to the imagination of the teller.

In apocrypha, as an old Newfoundlander once observed to me on the subject of Nova Scotians, a man doesn't know where to he's at.

To illustrate, we may as well commence with that Newfie skipper. First he warned me that Bluenoses tend to exaggerate. Then he held forth on the great days of commercial sword-fishing in the Gulf of St. Lawrence. Once, he claimed, he found himself surrounded by half-ton broadbills so lazy in their surface basking that they would scarce move out of his schooner's track.

Between sunrise and two in the afternoon when the wind got up, he and his crew took nine swordfish — enough to pay for their stores and fuel, and stuff the cash-box with good Canadian dollars.

Perhaps it really happened that way. But there's nothing like a few drinks to color the mists of time. Lacking proof, the skipper's yarn must be considered an export from apocrypha.

Let me make it plain that I have no quarrel with the apocryphal. It seasons the humdrum of everyday with a pinch of the passing strange. Life would be duller without it, and there's always the fascinating possibility that the traveller's tale may be no word of a lie.

I would like to believe that a certain lost valley in the Vancouver Island interior guards a secret, as it very well may.

The loggers had their way with the valley many years ago. It has been left to the hawk, the grouse and the deer. Its fire-blackened stumps are submerged in the crowding second-growth, and its logging railway grades are no more than dim trails that wind below the sidehills.

If you follow one of those grades, the account goes, you will presently happen on parallel ribbons of red-rusted steel. On the steel, grandly forlorn, sits a logging locomotive. Its brasswork has been stripped away, and the weather has robbed the ancient Climax of the shiny black paint and white trim that was its crowning glory.

A few yards behind this relic, the rails end.

That's the way the story came to me. I hope it's true, but it remains unconfirmed, and must be regarded as another sending from the land of mirages.

If you can stand a further venture into apocrypha, consider any of several outposts high in the Canadian Arctic. Their inhabitants know the meaning of remoteness. But because of their fire-breaks, they are less isolated than they used to be.

Fire roads . . . when the nearest tree is hundreds of miles south?

The Arctic hand who told the tale chuckled. Then he proceeded to explain.

For most of the year, those communities were cut off. A float plane couldn't set down at them because their waterways were frozen. The ice that surrounded them was so rough that not even a Northwest Territories bush pilot could pull off a ski landing. Their councils yearned for landing strips and a territorial government that works hard for northerners would gladly have obliged. But Ottawa vetoed the request.

However, it occurred to one of the trouble-shooters at territorial headquarters that there might be another way to skin the cat. In due time, a submission was received at Ottawa.

It pointed out that forest fires are a menace to the outposts, and stressed the need for fire-breaks.

No problem! The treeless settlements at the top of Canada got their fire-breaks, and if these happened to be long, straight and wide enough to double as landing strips, what matter?

Maybe that's how it came about. But once more, in the absence of proof, I'm forced to consider the story suspect.

It belongs in my apocrypha file with the logging locie and the nine swordfish and other borderline gleanings. They could be true . . . but I can't offer any guarantee that they are.

'We'd Honor Their Pickets'

Picket lines preventing members of another union from working are "normal trade union movement activities," a spokesman for the Teamsters Union said today.

Local 213 business agent Frank Peters was commenting on statements Friday by Joseph Simpson, a staff representative of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers in which Simpson said the Teamsters should not be picketing the Duncan operation of Butler-Lafarge Ltd. because there is no need for it.

Eight to 10 CBRT workers are being kept off the job by the picket line and Simpson described the situation as "terrible" for the CBRT men.

Peters said today he is not aware of any dispute at the Duncan plant between Teamsters and CBRT men.

"It's too bad about the CBRT boys," he said. "No one likes to go on strike. And they are in effect caught in it."

He said if CBRT was the union striking Butler-Lafarge the Teamsters would be expected to honor, and would honor, the CBRT picket line.

Hockey Players Pick Up Strike Idea

TORONTO (CP) — Undoubtedly taking its cue from major league baseball, the National Hockey League Players' Association Friday notified club owners that unless playoff bonuses are increased and the pension plan improved during negotiations next June, the players will be prepared to strike.

Alan Eagleson of Toronto, executive director of the NHLPA, said the payments must be retroactive to include this year's playoffs.

"The pensions are more important," he told a press conference Friday. "They affect more teams and more players. And a strike is the only weapon the players have if they don't feel they are getting an acceptable portion of the profits."

Eagleson referred to a United States report, produced this year, which found the average NHL profit per team was $2.1-million on the hockey operation alone.

The fact that major league baseball players hung together during their strike stands us in good stead," he observed.

"God forbid that we'll be placed in the same position as the baseball players," Eagleson added. "We intend to be reasonable because it doesn't make sense to take a position the public won't accept."

PENSION BOOST, BONUSES SOUGHT

However, in Montreal, NHL president Clarence Campbell said the league had an agreement with the players' group that they wouldn't strike.

"I'm surprised to hear strike talk," he said, saying that the NHL expected further negotiations with the NHLPA this summer.

Campbell said that when an increase in playoff awards was announced last month, it was not suggested that the amount was agreed upon by both sides.

"In the face of the increase in ticket prices by most clubs this year, we simply want our proportionate share," Eagleson said.

"The owners' income is highest this year in history on a per-game basis. Our actuaries will compute the dollars in the till for the team — we'll know what they made. We want a fair share, not a nickel more, nor a nickel less."

The NHLPA originally sought an increase of about $787,000 in playoff money, bringing the total to about $1.5-million. Instead, the owners increased playoff payments by $300,000 and want this amount to apply for a three-year period.

Eagleson said this is not acceptable. The players also wanted "a significant upgrading of the pension plan," which he said meant contributions of $7,000 a man instead of the present $3,400.

This would put NHL players on equal footing with those in major league baseball and football, Eagleson said.

Eagleson said the association had unanimous support from the players on their submission to the meetings in June.

He admitted there was no such unanimity among six clubs polled on whether to support a Chicago Black Hawks' strike over stick measurements for NHL playoffs.

The Hawks were angered after an NHL official checked the stick of Dennis Hull during a game in their series with Pittsburgh Penguins. The curve of the stick was found to be in excess of the maximum allowed and Hull and the club were each fined $500.

Four of six clubs in a poll conducted by the players' association voted overwhelmingly against backing Chicago.

WILL SEEK VIEWS

Eagleson said that although this would not be an issue at the June meetings, representation of players on the NHL rules committee would be sought.

"We don't propose to have any veto power," he said, "but the players feel they should be represented and their opinions presented. As it stands now they have no opportunity to submit their thoughts on rule changes.

"They are made unilaterally, just as the stick stamping for the playoffs, without any consultation."

Campbell said the rules committee now is composed of former players.

"It has never been suggested before that active players be represented. I don't think the owners would care one way or another."

ITALY'S HUNTING ARMY CONTINUES ONSLAUGHT

ROME (Reuter) — Italy's army of 1.6 million hunters killed more than 50 million animals in the last hunting season, says the authoritative Turin newspaper LaStampa.

Other figures in specialist magazines here said the hunters also kill more than 200 million birds a year.

La Stampa said Italy has the greatest density of hunters — six to every 247 acres — in all of Europe.

The World Wild Life Fund says 32 species of birds and 14 mammals have become extinct or are almost wiped out in Italy.

Absence of Old Gumper A Calamity for Hockey

Otherwise, the news out of the East Thursday night wasn't that Minnesota North Stars would be meeting Boston Bruins in the next round of the Stanley Cup playoffs. It was that Lorne "Gump" Worsley had been injured, and may even miss the semifinals, if the North Stars get that far.

This would be unfortunate, and a national calamity. The old Gumper is one of hockey's prehistoric relics. If you can't tell by his age, you can tell by his looks. He doesn't wear a mask. Besides, he is very good at his trade.

No, Worsley isn't the oldest goalkeeper to play in the NHL. It only seems that way. Jacques Plante of Toronto Maple Leafs is his elder. Plante was born in January in 1929; The Gumper is four months younger. He was born in May. Which is older than two of today's rookie stars, Gene Carr, and Richard Martin, combined, by a year or so.

He was playing hockey out west when the post-war Cougars had a place in the old Pacific Coast League; and history records the fact that he was in goal when Saskatoon knocked the Cougars out of the playoffs in 1952. There was other significance attached to Worsley then. He cared little for decorum, and loved to play the game long after it was concluded.

If he was a star in both sports then, he has since mellowed. At last year's party put on by Wren Blair when Minnesota did so well in the Cup playoffs, the Gumper had to beg off in the middle of festivities.

"There was all anyone wanted to drink," he said later, "but I couldn't take it."

Friendly, Nervous, But No Scowler

St. Paul, New York, Montreal, Vancouver, have been some of his stops along the trail. There are several asteriks next to his name too.

Twice he has shared the Vezina Trophy, once with Charlie Hodge who was voluntarily retired by GM Bud Poile at Vancouver last year; and another time with Rogatien Vachon, who now plays for Los Angeles.

He was a member of the Montreal Canadiens then, long in the tooth, by their standards and obviously not about to be protected in the draft. Thus, it was in 1970, that he was sold to Minnesota.

The Gumper really is unlike his image on the ice. He's not the scowler he appears to be. He's friendly and his wit is sharp. He's the nervous type though, and with the advent of the jet age, and expansion, he almost gave up the game. Plane travel he wanted nothing to do with, and he once refused to travel with the Habs if it meant climbing into a jet.

"It shakes up an old guy," he said as he passed the time of a spare goalkeeper, one night in Vancouver. "But I'm not as nervous now as I once was. Still, I don't like it."

What bothered Worsley more was expansion, the East-West schedule and return, even if it did happen to prolong his hockey life.

All That Travel Bothers Old Man

"It's the travel," he said. "Not like the old days when you could take a train and relax. Now it's a game in the East on Sunday, and then out to West the next day. You leave the cold, and then lie out in the sun. That's great, but it hurts an old man. It bakes. Then it's back in that cold rink at night, and a few days later after you get acclimatized, you're back in the East again. It's nine in the morning, it's only six in the West; they turf you out of the plane, and you should be in bed."

Worsley wasn't certain then if he would still be around this spring. But he has been a vital cog in the Minnesota way of things this year. He even rooms with Cesare Maniago with whom he shares his work. There's a reason.

In a recent interview in New York, he explained it this way.

"Jackie Gordon (the North Stars coach) thought that if we had any problems, we would know best how to straighten them out; so when one is playing the other guy watches for mistakes. Then we talk it over. We think it has helped."

That story was printed before the final game of the year, and when the seasons goaltending table was released, guess who ranked in the top two? Worsley and Maniago. They allowed only 191 goals, second to Chicago where Tony Esposito and Gary Smith compiled a starry 166 mark.

That's a pretty fair recommendation for a fellow who thinks young even if his body doesn't agree at times.

Now the question is: will Worsley get to play again? Like against Boston, if the Stars can get by the Blues on Sunday.

Most fans would hope so. Because just watching the Gumper play would be half the fun. The other half would be if he won.

Ranger Coach Predicts Another 'Tossup' Series

By The Canadian Press

"I've never seen two clubs more the same than the Black Hawks and us," says New York coach Emile Francis, looking ahead to the Stanley Cup semifinal between his Rangers and Chicago.

"Both play good positional hockey and strong defence. That's why we had such a close series last year. We've got to expect the same type series this year."

Not only are the teams evenly-matched, but the circumstances involving their playoff are almost identical with last years' encounter.

The Rangers go into Chicago for the first two games of the best-of-seven Stanley Cup series starting Sunday night. They opened the semi-final in Chicago on a Sunday last year as well. The eventual result after seven games was a Chicago win.

In the only remaining quarter-final series, St. Louis Blues face the North Stars in Minnesota in the seventh and deciding game Sunday afternoon to determine who will survive to meet Boston Bruins in a semi-final matchup.

HAD TOUGH START

There are other similarities in the Chicago-New York series. Just as last year, the Rangers are coming off a tough quarterfinal after beating Montreal Canadiens 4-2 in games. Last year they went to Chicago right after a 4-2 series over Toronto Maple Leafs.

And just as last year, the Hawks are rested after eliminating their quarter-final opponent in four straight games. Last year Chicago ousted Philadelphia Flyers and this year Pittsburgh Penguins and have had a week's rest.

The Rangers, however, are going into Chicago with their biggest points-scorer still on the sidelines. Centre Jean Ratelle, out since March 1 with a fractured ankle, led the team with 43 goals and 54 assists despite missing the last month of the season.

RATELLE SKATES TODAY

Ratelle was to skate today and Sunday and have more xrays of the ankle to determine the effect and no firm date has yet been set for his return to action.

But the Rangers were in relatively good shape compared to Minnesota, which has been having problems with its defensive corps.

The latest casualty was goalie Gump Worsley, knocked unconscious in a goal-mouth collision Thursday in St. Louis. The 42-year-old goalie was knocked out when Bob Plager of the Blues crashed into him while trying to score

Worsley required oxygen to revive him after he remained unconscious about four minutes. A team doctor said it would not be known until today how soon the goalie would return to action.

SAINTS LURE CONNELLY WITH FIVE-YEAR CONTRACT

MONTREAL (CP) — National Hockey League veteran Wayne Connelly has signed a five-year, no-cut, no-trade contract with Minnesota Fighting Saints of the World Hockey Association, his lawyer said Friday.

Connelly, who played this season for Vancouver Canucks of the National Hockey League, was in the NHL nine years, playing in Detroit, Boston, Minnesota, St. Louis and Vancouver.

"Wayne was kicked around the NHL for nine years without much to show for it," said Morden Lazurus in an interview. "Now he is fixed for life.

The contract is reported worth $300,000 including salaries and sidelines such as a television show with a St. Paul, Minn., station.

"If the NHL decides to sue and Wayne can't play until litigation is done with, he'll be paid just the same," Lazurus said.

Connelly will be paid twice a month through a bank in St. Paul and Lazurus said he plans to put half the money in escrow for the player and his family "so that in 15 years, he'll be worth half a million."

Lazurus also said that Connelly will get a $10,000 bonus for signing.

Earlier this month, Lazurus said the native of Rouyn-Noranda had agreed verbally to a contract with the Fighting Saints.

He said at the time that Vancouver was going to get a reasonable amount of time to match the offer.

Lazurus said that Vancouver offered Connelly a two-year deal at "a couple of thousand more than he was making." The deal was turned down.

TV VIEWERS TO MISS FIRST GAME OF SEMIS

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian hockey fans will be able to see the deciding game in a Stanley Cup quarter-final series Sunday afternoon but won't see the opening game in the semi-finals Sunday night.

The CTV network will televise the seventh game of the best-of-seven quarter-final from Minnesota between the North Stars and St. Louis Blues at 11 a.m. Sunday.

But a spokesman for MacLaren Advertising, which owns the Canadian broadcasting rights to National Hockey League games, said the first game of the best-of-seven semi-final at Chicago between the Black Hawks and New York Rangers will not be televised in Canada.

The CBC Thursday released the semi-finals to MacLaren and also released its affiliated stations so that they may join the CTV in carrying the games.

CBC hockey coverage has been disrupted since January by rotating strikes by members of the National Association of Broadcast Employees and Technicians.

Top-Ranked Rod Aims for Double

QUEBEC (CP) — Australian Rod Laver, seeded first in the singles competition, was the only player to reach today's semi-finals in both the singles and doubles sections of the $50,000 Quebec international tennis open.

Laver beat Chuck Pasarell of the U.S. 6-2, 6-2 in a 35-minute match Friday to gain a berth in the singles semi-finals. The match was the quickest to date in the week-long tournament.

Cliff Drysdale of South Africa is scheduled to oppose Laver in today's singles competition after his 3-6, 6-3, 6-4 win over Roger Taylor of England Friday.

Arthur Ashe downed Emerson 6-3, 6-0 and is to meet fellow-American Marty Riessen in the other semi-final game. Riessen eliminated Ken Rosewall of Australia 4-6, 6-3, 7-5 Friday.

In Friday's doubles action, an all-Australian match saw Terry Addison and John Alexander beat Rosewall and Fred Stolle 2-6, 6-3, 6-4 while the top-seeded pair of Tom Okker of the Netherlands and Riessen was upset 6-3, 3-6, 6-3 by Nicki Pilic of Yugoslavia and Jeff Borowiak of the U.S.

The tournament ends Sunday.

BOWLER OF WEEK

Spectacular middle game of 415 enabled Ted Penston to capture men's fivepin award in 25th week of ninth annual Times Bowler - of - the - Week competition. Ted opened with a 304 tally and finished with 222 effort for 941 series in Thursday Mixed League at Cush's Bowl-a-Golf Spa.

Lakers Bounce Back

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Los Angeles Lakers, their prestige tarnished and confidence shaken just six days before, suddenly have the Milwaukee Bucks' National Basketball Association crown in serious jeopardy.

The Lakers, just a basket or two from becoming knockout victims for most of the fourth quarter, rallied behind Gail Goodrich's six points in the last one minute and 35 seconds for a 108-105 victory Friday night.

Humiliated 93-72 in the series opener last Sunday after their record 69 regular season victories, the Lakers now have a 2-1 lead in the best-of-seven quarter-final. The fourth game is scheduled here Sunday.

Goodrich scored 30 points, Jim McMillian 27 and Jerry West 22 for the Lakers but Wilt Chamberlain may have made the biggest contribution of all.

The 7-foot-1 veteran was outscored 33-7 and outrebounded 21-14 by 7-foot-2 Kareem Abdul Jabbar. But Chamberlain blocked nine shots, six of them by Abdul-Jabbar, and distracted the Milwaukee super-star to the point where he made only 15 of 37 shots.

Playoff Postponed

FLIN FLON, Man. — The weatherman threw a check into Western Canada Hockey League playoff teams Friday.

The sixth game of a best-of-seven quarter-final series between Flin Flon Bombers and Regina Pats was postponed because of poor flying conditions. The playoff, deadlocked 2-2 with one game tied, is scheduled to resume here tonight.

The two clubs were fined $500 earlier this week as a result of a bench-emptying free-for-all in the fifth game at Regina. In addition, Regina forward Clark Gillies was fined $125 for leaving the bench to engage in a fight.

Times Open Contestants Start Match Play Sunday

KEN NOTT
. . . meets defending champ

Glen Meadows has become a traditional producer of fairway frustration and in the springtime the Meadows can be even more aggravating than usual to the men who go gunning for pars and birdies.

Sixty-four contestants — 32 in the championship chase and an equal number in the handicap division — will step to the first tee Sunday for first-round matches in the Times Vancouver Island Open golf tournament, all determined to escape the "monster" and subdue their opponents.

Some will survive with poise on match-play journeys around the North Saanich layout that can be extended to almost 7,000 yards, but history suggests that many will lose their cool — and their chances — because of efforts to fight the course with power.

There is no doubt that distance off the tees is a big asset at Glen Meadows, particularly at this time of year when fairways are still soft and long bounces merely dreams. However, like any other championship course, the Meadows also places emphasis on accuracy, and the ability to play finesse shots on several holes can be just as important as long-range bombing.

People who pound the ball into the rough can find themselves in areas that resemble cougar country.

MIDDLE TEES

Provided rain stays away for another day, fairways should be almost clear of water for Sunday's contests and the greens should remain in good condition. Host pro Dick Silverberg said today that because of soft conditions, tee markers will set so the course plays at medium length.

Silverberg, incidentally, will be one of the men squarely in the spotlight in first-round confrontations when he clashes with Norm Boden, a two-time champion who is now professional at the Marsh Meadows club by Cowichan Lake.

Shooting for his first tournament triumph as a pro, Silverberg has the heavy artillery and the short-game savvy to survive on his home course and perhaps go all the way to the Island crown.

SCORING WELL

Busy with pro shop duties, "Silver" says he hasn't had much time for practice and is hitting the ball only "so so" but scoring "reasonably well."

Things looked somewhat better than "so so" as he banged the ball well enough in last weekend's qualifying round to place third on the qualifying list with a three-over-par 73. And he putted with precision on the slick Royal Colwood greens that greased the skids to tournament oblivion for several touted shotmakers.

Dick, however, will probably go to the post as an even-money choice against Boden, long noted as a deceptively-tough competitor. Norm seldom appears likely to overpower anybody, but the former-Victorian usually gets the job done. A super-scrambler, Boden just makes a habit of beating people.

In Sunday's other all-pro contest, it will be veteran Al Zimmerman, a regular on the U.S. tour many years ago, walking his home course against Earl Davies, the Gorge Vale professional who won the Times Trophy two years ago.

High on the interest list will be the match that sends Cowichan pro Bill Wakeham, three-time winner and leading qualifier with a two-under-par tally, against youthful Uplands amateur Ken Nott, who upset two-time Island king Vaughan Trapp in last year's first round.

Handicap contenders start this Sunday's parade of matches at 9 a.m. and the men bidding for the championship jacket are scheduled to begin swinging at 10:04.

Davis Cup Nations Expel South Africa

COPENHAGEN (UPI) — The special committee of the Davis Cup nations Friday again expelled South Africa from the 1972 Davis Cup tennis tournament.

The committee, which only last January had allowed South Africa to re-enter the tournament after a two-year absence, said it voted to expel South Africa because its participation would endanger the tournament.

It said a number of other nations had threatened to withdraw if South Africa was allowed to participate.

The decision apparently did not rule out South African participation in the 1973 tournament.

Davis Cup nations secretary Basil Reay of Britain said the committee reversed its decision because other nations did not know when they filed their entries for the 1972 tournament that South Africa would be allowed to play.

He said in future all nations would be informed of South Africa's entry in appropriate time that they could decide whether they want to participate or not.

"Any nation withdrawing after entries have been filed will thus be severely punished," Reay said.

South Africa originally was banned from the Davis Cup competition because of her policy of apartheid, which also affected tennis.

South Africa, seeded sixth, was to have played Portugal in the first round. Problems were expected if South Africa reached the zone final where it might clash with Czechoslovakia.

Victoria Third In Rifle Event

The league announced Friday that the Calgary group scored 487 of a possible 500 to win the competition for girls between the ages of 13 and 18 years. Kamloops was second and Victoria third.

Downgrading Attitude Not Holding Hill Down

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — "I'll finish," Dave Hill said. "But I'm sure not predicting any victory.

"In fact, the way I'm playing, I might not even finish. I'm playing so bad I might get killed out there."

Hill, who went out to the practice tee "to try to find a golf swing," continued to downgrade his performance Friday after establishing a four-stroke lead midway in the $150,000 Monsanto open golf tournament.

He sliced three strokes off par with a 68 Friday and posted a 36-hole total of 132, just one stroke away from the best 36 holes on the tour this season and 10 under par on the Pensacola Country Club course.

Bob Smith, seeking his first victory in five years on the pro tour, was a distant second at 136. He matched par 71 on the 6,679-yard layout.

Only one of three Canadians survived the cutoff score of 145 for the final two rounds.

Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg made it with a 143 after shooting a 70 Friday. Ben Kern of Toronto shot a 76 for a 152 total while Gary Bowerman of Toronto had a 73 for 154.

Long-Hitting Judy Leads Rich Event

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP)— Judy Rankin rolled in five birdie putts from medium range and shot a three-under par 69 Friday to take a two-stroke lead after the first round of the $110,000 Winner's Circle tournament, the richest event in women's pro golf history.

The 27-year-old Midland, Tex., golfer, a long hitter even though she weighs only 107 pounds, finished her round with a 15-foot birdie putt on the 570-yard 18th hole at Mission Hills Country Club.

Three pre-tournament favorites, Kathy Whitworth, Jane Blalock and Carol Mann, were tied at 71.

Sandra Post Elliott, formerly of Oakville, Ont., had a 76.

Russians Turn It On

Czechoslovakia's second, followed by Sweden, Finland, West Germany and Switzerland. Czechoslovakia defeated Finland 5-3 Friday.

The Soviet team — out to prevent an upset like that at the Olympic Games in Sapporo, when both teams drew — jumped into a 3-0 lead in the first 11 minutes. The Swedes managed to put up only token resistance throughout the game.

Swedish coach Bill Harris, a former player with Toronto Maple Leafs, told reporters after the match that goalie Christer Abrahamsson, who had to be helped off the ice in the second period, was taken to hospital with a knee injury and that doctors recommended he should not play until the end of the championship.

After the match, Harris said that the Amateur Ice Hockey Federation ought to change the rules of the tournament and restrict the Soviet team to playing with only nine professionals.

Margot Refuses To Cancel Tour

LONDON (AP) — Ballerina Dame Margot Fonteyn explained this week why she is resisting United Nations pressure on her not to dance in South Africa.

The United Nations special committee on apartheid wrote to Dame Margot, asking her not to appear in South Africa.

"I'd already accepted to go by the time I got the letter," Dame Margot told a reporter.

"If I refused after that then that would be a political action and I'm not getting involved in political action."

YOUNGSTERS by the hundreds get into the Music Festival act next week as school ensembles take the stage at several centres. Preparing for a Tuesday morning class in which simple rhythmic and melodic instruments form the orchestra is this group from George Jay Elementary School. This class will take place at Newcombe Auditorium where bands and instrumental day sessions are to be held. — (Photo by John McKay)

Festival Program For Next Week

Starting its second week at 9 a.m., Monday, Victoria Music Festival sessions will feature strings and dance classes and schools instrumental and choral classes.

On Saturday at McPherson Playhouse the Festival winds up for 1972 with a Highlights Concert that will present winners of the Rose Bowl, Victoria City Medallion and other championship classes and outstanding performers.

No major awards ceremony will be included in this year's McPherson program as all awards will have been made at the time of winning.

Centres for the second week of the festival are: Monday, Newcombe Auditorium, bands and instrumental. Landsowne Junior Secondary, evening session, bands. Sir James Douglas Elementary, strings. He Turns Stage Flops Into Hits

By MICHAEL J. BANDLER

My Mother, My Father and Me, a play by Lillian Hellman, was no world beater when it was first produced on Broadway eight years ago.

In fact, its demise 16 performances after opening night probably received more approbation than did its arrival. Yet this year a talented producer-director with a proven ability to revive previous failures will try to breathe new life into the sardonic family comedy.

Theodore Mann, artistic director of off-Broadway's Circle in the Square, has a knack for turning near or complete theatrical flops into mild or smash hits, and has devoted his career to doing just that.

The formula for success on Broadway fluctuates, and few theatrical impresarios keep up with the changing ingredients. "Rock" may be popular one year and fall flat on its face the next; a poorly-timed revival one season may unwittingly be the harbinger of a triumph of nostalgia several months or years later.

The high costs of mounting a production in a New York theatre make it imperative that the public turn out at the box office immediately after the notices appear. Poor reviews generally lead to poor business. Poor business is nearly always a play's death warrant. But what if the critics were wrong? What if an important contribution to the American theatre is buried unfairly by one or two influential men? That's where Theodore Mann comes in, and others like him.

Over the past two decades at Circle is the Square and on Broadway, Mann has:

● Engendered enthusiastic attention, on the part of critics and the public, to his revivals of the works of Eugene O'Neill.

● Successfully mounted a previous failure by the noted American novelist Saul Bellow, The Last Analysis.

● Turned a seven-performance Broadway flop, Jules Feiffer's Little Murders, into a 400-performance triumph that led to a subsequent motion picture version.

BELLOW
. . . play salvaged

● Revived works by Euripides, including The Trojan Women and Iphigenia in Aulis, and such contemporary works as Tennessee Williams's Summer and Smoke (later a film), John Steinbeck's Burning Bright, Dylan Thomas's Under Milk Wood and Truman Capote's Grass Harp.

● Staged the first American produetions of works by Brendan Behan and Jean Genet.

● Brought to the stage and screen such disitnguished actors and actresses as George C. Scott, Geraldine Page, Jason Robards Jr. and Peter Falk.

This is an admirable record and most of it is due to the courage of the 47-year-old manager-director, who says he resuscitates forgotten dramas "because of the challenge they offer." He explains:

"The whole problem in the theatre is to do good plays; to do plays that an audience will come to. So, we look for them any place we can. We read around 25 plays a week and in the course of trying to find the best ones we go back into theatre history.'

In most instances, Mann has not seen the original production of works he selects. "We don't know why the play failed," he indicates, "but if it seems like a good work we go ahead and do it."

In Washington, D.C., Mann has a counterpart, Davey Marlin-Jones, whose recent success in reviving flops has been remarkable. Proclaiming itself "the theatre of the second chance," the Washington Theatre Club has given another hearing to three Broadway failures in the past year, including Father's Day.

Marlin-Jones, artistic director of the club, was struck by Time magazine's appraisal — in the spring of 1971 — of the new play by Oliver Hailey, which looks at divorcees. The play had run for one night on Broadway, collided with an unflattering review by the New York Times critic, and folded.

A week later, after actors, stagehands and administrative staff had left for other pursuits, T. E. Kalem wrote in Time:

"With the attrition of metropolitan dailies, the power to influence Manhattan theatregoers lies largely in the hands of one man, the drama critic of the New York Times. Last week a negative notice by Clive Barnes, acted upon in scandalous haste by (the show's) . . . co-producers . . . sundered the life of a fine comedy . . . after one performance."

Switch to XT-3 changes hose life from 3 days to 12 weeks-and more!

These XT-3 hoses move up four times a second, 24 hours a day, five days a week under water pressure of 2,000 PSI!

Caterpillar XT-3 hydraulic hose costs more than some other-make hoses but it is worth more. And it can prove its worth to you just as it proved itself to the maintenance men who look after this barker.

These pictures were taken 12 weeks after one of the two lengths of XT-3 hose was first installed. The other original piece of hose was accidentally sliced just five weeks after installation so the second piece had been in there for seven weeks.

But you can't tell which is the old one. There isn't the slightest sign of wear. They look alike.

Prior to installation of XT-3 hose, another make was used. It cost 50% less but it lasted no longer than three days at a stretch. And although the initial cost was 50% less, its actual worth was 1,333% less.

And that covers only 12 weeks! The Cat XT-3 hose might last another 12 weeks. But we couldn't wait that long to let you know.

The hoses in this barker at the Canadian White Pine Division of MacMillan Bloedel Ltd., Vancouver, are subjected to water pressure of 2,000 PSI. They are jacked up and down four times a second, 24 hours a day, five days a week.

Tough going for any industrial hydraulic hose. But Caterpillar's XT-3 hose is made to withstand high pressures, reduce failures. For the same benefits wherever you use hydraulic hose, ask your Finning parts representative for Caterpillar XT-3.

Up on an Old Pedestal

By ANNE McDOUGALL

This is Pearl Buck's 71st book and you will find in it the professionalism that has marked her 50 years of writing.

It is a novel, set in New England, and concerns an American woman who is widowed at 42. Before she has been long alone, Edith Chardman attracts and returns the love of two men, one over 60, the other under 30.

THE GODDESS ABIDES, by Pearl Buck. Longman. $9.25.

In each relationship she finds qualities which had eluded her in her more or less happy marriage.

The younger man, a clever and dedicated scientist, inspires in her a disinterested as well as passionate love. The book describes her struggle between the two kinds of love. Platonic love seems to be ahead.

By the end of the book, in fact, Edith Chardman is setting out to become the white goddess described by Robert Graves (and used in Pearl Buck's introduction here). This is the woman a muse-poet loves until, usually, "she takes no trouble to preserve whatever glory she gets from the knowledge of her beauty and the power she exercises over her poet-lover. She grows embarrassed by this glory, repudiates it, and ends up either as a housewife or a tramp."

BUCK
. . . No. 71

There is little danger of the second. Edith Chardman is Main Line, Philadelphia. When the cook is not suggesting sweetbreads for lunch, the chauffeur is whisking her out to a lonely spot on the Jersey Coast where she is planning to build a house just for herself.

This hothouse atmosphere does not choke off human feelings — not completely. But it does seem to move the story to another period of American life, a time when people were more inclined to discuss their feelings over a canter before tea. It strikes a jarring note in the contemporary, Vietnam-shadowed America.

A more significant aspect, and one that Pearl Buck has made her own (The Good Earth, Dragon Seed) is the relevance of Eastern philosophy to western living. This interest dates from the author's own life in the Far East.

—In "The Goddess Abides," Edith Chardman's older beau has devoted much of his life to a study of Asia and the philosophy of love. It is from his discoveries that she draws courage to build her own life. It may be harsh to criticize her self-consciousness. One just wonders a bit about that pedestal.

Escape From The City

BEATRICE CARROLL

A popular genre in writing today is based on the we-fled-to-the-wilderness, getting-away-from-it-all theme. Of particular interest locally because of its setting on the west coast of Vancouver Island, is Lisa Hobbs' account of her escape.

Australian-born Lisa, a reporter for the San Francisco Examiner and a lecturer on Asian affairs, her husband Jack, a teacher in a private school, two sons, Crispin and Jonathan, and Bjorn, their Great Dane, intended at first to spend only summers on their new-found waterfront acre at Kildonan, a remote and isolated spot on Uchucklesit Inlet.

RUNNING TOWARDS LIFE, by Lisa Hobbs. McGraw-Hill. $5.95.

"The beauty that surrounded me was spellbinding," the author writes. She fell in love with the land with its rugged snow-capped mountains, great firs and cedars, lush greenness. There's always that rainfall, and a sapphire sea all combining to give off "an aura of mists and mystery."

It was an immediate attachment for the Hobbs family — so much so that they found unbearable their return to San Francisco and their $38,000 house with all the modern conveniences, their jobs and their life in the machine-oriented American society.

The dream of Kildonan, the peace, the silence, the space and the unpolluted air persisted, and they decided to change their lives completely. They sold their house, gave up their jobs and moved back permanently to their Elysium on the northwest coast of the Pacific.

Neighbors were few, no road came closer than 20 miles, supplies were ordered by mail and delivered with the mail by the Lady Rose. They set about building a new house to replace the small, 50-year-old cottage, making a dam for water and power, replacing their old jetty.

They were sometimes discouraged, often elated, and never regretful; their experiences make pleasant and entertaining reading, for lazy readers particularly, who like their pioneering in printed form, taken in front of a fireplace and augmented with efficient central heating.

A Broad Canvas Of Quaker History

By JUDITH TERRY

As a Quaker writing a novel based on a history of the Quaker movement, Jan de Hartog might easily have produced tract, sermon or saintly legend — anything except a novel.

But in fact The Peaceable Kingdom is very readable and emphatically a novel. It is a broad canvas, full of scenes and characters, made firm upon a frame of the beliefs of the Society of Friends, but never made colorless or distorted by it.

THE PEACEABLE KINGDOM, by Jan de Hartog. McClelland and Stewart. $10.

The Peaceable Kingdom contains the first two parts of a projected four-part series, based upon true characters and events during four separate phases of Quaker history. Part One concerns the beginnings of the movement in Lancashire, England and dramatizes the relationship between its founder, George Fox, and Margaret Fell.

Part Two takes place in America a century later and concerns the descendants of those Friends who emigrated to Pennsylvania and how they dealt with the problems of slavery and violence.

It is a historical novel, of course, but in the long run that is less important than what is modern about it, for it deals with problems that concern us here and now: the difficulties of commitment, of taking direct action to right wrongs and defend the underprivileged.

▣

The most compelling chapters in the book are those which deal with Margaret Fell visiting children imprisoned in Lancaster Castle. In the midst of the filth and misery she attempts, with what appears to be pitiable inappropriateness and futility, to teach the children an exquisite part-song called "The Andalusian Merchant." When she questions Fox about the love of a God who could allow such suffering to exist, he answers her: "All He has is Thee."

She returns to the castle and descends once more into the stench and blackness to comfort the children and try again to teach them the dainty six-part madrigal. The miracle she desires is not forthcoming, but the back-breaking effort and indomitable will do result in a miracle of sorts, most moving, tender and unexpected.

De Hartog does not idealize. He recognizes plainly the mixture of motives in even the bravest and most selfless action: that Margaret Fell was passionately in love with George Fox is clear from the extant letter used in the novel, and it proves that the marriage between the two, many years later after her husband had died and she herself was white-haired after spending six years in prison, was more than one of convenience, as it has often apparently been interpreted.

When Margaret's actions are generated by such human and passionate conflicts saintliness itself comes closer and more alive, not something above and apart from normal human nature but a direct outcome of it.

DE HARTOG
. . . no sermons

The second part of The Peaceable Kingdom, like the first, emphasizes certain aspects of Quaker experience that have a particular relevance to contemporary society: the relationship between Negro and white, between white and Indian; how to maintain a policy of non-violence in the face of an aggressor.

Boniface Baker, jolted out of a plump and non-involved existence by the suicide of his overseer, decides that he must free his slaves, make his estate over to them and take off into the wilderness to carve out a new life for himself.

Such a Quixotic gesture is attended by all kinds of terrors and dangers that appear to make it futile: Bonny's daughter, Rebekah, is raped and murdered by Indians; the slaves are almost totally unable to manage their sudden freedom.

The comfort and inspiration is in that "almost", for just a few Negroes survive successfully, follow Bonny Baker out to the wilderness and set up alongside him. All three races learned by degrees to live in peace and harmony.

It was, and remains, an isolated achievement, but it proves that such understanding can be reached and that one man's effort can do it. The hope it offers, well-founded on fact, is more than most writers in fiction today would dare to arouse.

The Quakers do not proselytize, de Hartog said when he was interviewed, but one is left at the end of this novel wondering whether it is the author's skill as a writer that makes it generous and humane, or the spirit of Quakerism itself.

The Charm of an Old Pro

This is another book by an old pro. Like the Pearl Buck, whatever you may think of the story you have to acknowledge the professionalism. This novel slips along with great charm and ease. For this reviewer at least it is more appealing because less pretentious and funnier.

SHADOWS IN PARADISE, by Erich Maria Remarque. Longman. $7.95.

The dust jacket is a picture of the New York skyline glowing in a seductive apricot light across Central Park. The book is actually a marvellous picture of that city as seen through the eyes of a German refugee who lived there during the last years of the Second World War.

The story is based on Erich Maria Remarque's own life. He left his native land, Germany, when the Nazis came to power. After a period in Switzerland he went to the United States in 1939 and took out citizenship in 1947.

Best known for his great "All Quiet on the Western Front," considered by many the best book ever written about the First World War, Remarque wrote nine novels since then, many of them made into films. He died in 1970. "Shadows in Paradise" was published posthumously by his wife, actress Paulette Goddard.

Written in the first person, it describes the experiences of a Robert Ross whose new name sits on him no more comfortably than his sojourn in America. He knows from the start that he has to go back to the country which had interned him and darkened his dreams forever.

In spite of this, Ross finds enough companions in the same boat making a living in every kind of business in New York City to try to fool himself into accepting this paradise as his own. He falls in love with a model, Natasha, who is not a refugee like the others, but even with her feels like a shadow, unable to make a permanent commitment.

The book is a delight to read. The style is almost entirely conversational, the situations earthy and amusing. In the art business, Ross and his new friends strike deals in antique shops on Second Avenue, widows' pink and cream apartments on Fifth Avenue, El Morocco, the Pavilion and dusty hotels on the West Side. He even moves to Hollywood for a brief spell. Out there the shadowy feeling intensifies, making New York seem quite solid in comparison. The war ends in Europe and Ross returns.—A.McD.

FICTION WITH MUSCLE

By ARTHUR MAYSE

On our wild West Coast, raw material for adventure stories isn't hard to find. But the fiction writer who can simmer the ingredients into a fast-paced tale doesn't turn up too often. Among the few is E. G. Perrault, who pits a towboat skipper and crew against the rampaging North Pacific in "The Twelfth Mile."

THE TWELFTH MILE, by E. G. Perrault. Doubleday. $6.50.

PERRAULT
. . . over-generous

Ernie Perrault, a thoroughly competent professional who plies his busy typewriter in Vancouver, doesn't skimp on plot or characters in this his second novel. At times, in fact, he is almost too generous.

Chris Westholme's battle against hurricane and tidal wave as master of the Haida Noble is spine-tingling stuff in itself. Add a threatened offshore oil rig, a Russian spy ship, rescue at sea and a turned-off wife ashore, and the result is a book with hardly a dull moment.

Perrault might have spared his readers the occasional Manhattan side-excursion to listen in on some remarkably flat committee deliberations at international level.

Elsewhere, The Twelfth Mile proceeds with a creaming bow wave. Alastair MacLean at his saltiest rarely involved men in so tense and suspenseful an encounter with an angry sea.

The book is published by Doubleday both in Canada and the United States. Coming after "The Kingdom Carver," Perrault's first novel, it should clinch his reputation as a writer of well-muscled fiction.

The Progress of a Pioneer

By JAMES McCOOK

When he was more than 90 years old John Newell Evans (1846-1944) began to write his memoirs. He remembered the thatched farm cottage that was his home in rural Wales, the "glorious morning" when he first saw British Columbia at the end of his long sea journey and the Cowichan neighbors who gave him their confidence and sent him to the provincial legislature as a Liberal to criticize and admire the Conservative premier, Sir Richard McBride.

Thousands of others came to British Columbia with the same spirit of independence and determination but few left a record of their experiences. The Evans' story was published by The Times and the pioneer's manuscript turned over to the Archives of B.C. more than 30 years ago. It is a detailed record of an immigrant's progress.

His first job was on the Craigflower Road he later knew as the Island Highway. The end of the road then was near Parsons Bridge and he worked with pick, shovel and mattock for $35 a month and board. He was a sensible young man and while the road sometimes was black with men caught up in the excitement of the Leech River Gold Rush, Evans stayed on the job.

Last of Series

The hurrying gold-hunters repeated the story of the miner who had picked up a nugget worth $75 but Evans, who had a brother hunting gold in the Cariboo, knew it was a chancey business and swung his pick patiently.

Even when the road work was finished he did not dash off to the hills. He heard that Chief Factor Roderick Finlayson of the Hudson's Bay Company needed a man to do work about his residence. The Chief Factor had employed a husband and wife team but they had quarrelled and the man was pulling out.

It says something for the democratic spirit of early Victoria that the young farm boy from Wales should think of the dignified Chief Factor as "Rod." In any event "Rod" was very nice to his visitor but had to tell him there was no job; husband and wife had made it up and both would continue in the Finlayson service.

But, said "Rod," his mother-in-law, Mrs. John Work, had her home at Hillside and might need a man to do outside work. Evans tramped out to Hillside to see a factotum named Billy Pottinger who took him to Mrs. Work. This was not a very friendly meeting.

Yes, she needed a man, but Evans would have to go back to Finlayson and get a reference. Evans refused. Mr. Finlayson was as much a stranger to him as Mrs. Work, he said.

"I must have been a hard-looking citizen when I could not get manual employment without a reference," he wrote later.

"No asking for references so I went straight to work."

When the harvest was finished, Evans went to work for Harry King who rented the Church Farm from Anglican Bishop George Hills. Evans thought it strange that, with no more than six acres cleared and in crop, King should pay an annual rent of as much as $400 and also work hard clearing land to increase the value of the property.

King, who had come to Canada with Bishop Hills in 1862 and accompanied him to the Cariboo with a pack train on a visit, in 1864 milked 20 cows at the farm, finding a ready market for milk in Victoria.

Evans thought that King introduced broom into B.C. as he saw it only at the Church Farm.

In 1866 Evans joined his brother Jim in California, attracted by wages of $3 a day at gold mines but left when the employers began offering only $2. He headed for Nevada and on the way saw inexperienced laborers hired to clear snow-filled roads suffering the agonies of snow-blindness. He observed vigilantes administering rough justice in rowdy settlements and did not think too badly of them; they were better than the criminals.

In 1870 he returned to British Columbia. He left a pleasant account of his homecoming to Victoria and stepping out, blankets on back and carpet bag in hand, to join his brother David who had taken up land in Cowichan. It was a lonely walk. There were cabins along the trail but most of them were empty. Late one evening, although it was dark, the tired and hungry Evans was still on the trail when to his surprise he heard the music of a well-played flute. Then he saw a light from a cabin.

When he knocked a settler named William Drinkwater came to the door, told him he could not reach his brother's place that night and invited him in for food and rest. Later William's brother, Joe Drinkwater, joined them. Perhaps they had more flute music.

Thus was formed one of the links in a chain of friendship which held fast while Evans cleared land his brother had bought for him in Somenos. He reported that it was "slow laborious work clearing away the forests either of alder or pine. Our pioneers had not only stout hearts but also muscle."

Evans served several terms as councillor and reeve of North Cowichan and in 1903 he was in the legislature, facing Premier McBride.

"I sat on the opposite side of the house but we were firm friends, in fact he was the friend of all."

It could be said of John Newell Evans, too, that he had the pioneer's spirit that welcomed friendship and found it almost everywhere.

Putting Life in Schools

I asked Jack Kidder why he was exhibiting at Belmont High in Langford. The audience was small, for the most part limited to staff and students of the school, though the public had been invited. And the show lasted only three days this past week.

"I told Ross Norrington," said Jack, "that as long as he picks up the work and delivers it back here again, it's okay with me. There is no effort on my part. And besides, the kids will enjoy it."

Ross Norrington is a UVic student doing his practicum at Belmont High. In choosing Jack Kidder's sculpture to enliven the school with fine art, Ross ensured that his self-motivated project would be a success.

Norrington borrowed work from Jack, from the University, the Public Gallery and from private collectors. Book shelves were covered with stiff black paper and work was hung against these dark backdrops, giving the sculpture uncluttered space in which to breathe.

To complete the transformation of the drab plywood and linoleum library, a record-player vibrated with the blues. A video camera and television were put out for students to play with. They turned the camera on their friends who, seeing their faces on TV, grinned sheepishly and quickly moved away from the camera's field of view.

A temporary drape cut off all light from the cubby hole of English books and inside was Jack's black plastic electric space modulator. I asked Kidder for titles for his work. He told me to make up my own.

A thin ribbon of light forms a circle, and when it disappears another circle, larger, appears beside it. And then another circle and another progressing through space, gowing larger until, in the darkness, a cone of circles has been described.

The electronics in the base of this work create another effect. The circles light up and stay lit. In the dark room, inside smoke-colored plastic, a cone of iridescent space hangs there with a ping-pong ball magically suspended at a mid-point in the tunnel of circles.

I was in the dark watching the piece of sclpture, talking to a young English teacher, a lady with whom I went to high school, when a heavy-footed member of staff walked in clucking his tongue . . . that a lady should be in the dark with a man!

Outside, the member of staff demanded of Ross Norrington, "What's the purpose of the music?" The exhibition was an interruption of school routine.

"Rainbow Piece" stood in the middle of a sunlit floor. The base of this work is a truncated pyramid of mirrors reflecting the linoleum. On top are two chambers. The first contains a flat drawing of clouds swirling around a planet sphere, a drawing which took Jack months to make. And in the chamber above this, under a barrel vault of plexiglass, is another cloud drawing done on shaped plaster. Clouds funnel down into a carved plaster hole. The hole leads down to the chamber below.

In this funnel, attached to a circle of glowing red plastic, is another central ping-pong ball, a favorite theme of Jack's. On the surface of this ball is printed a photograph of a young man, arms outstretched, his torso covered with sand.

The sculpture gets its name from two translucent rainbows which throw colored shadows on to the clouds in the upper chamber. Rainbow Piece is a major work. It signals a change in Kidder's work from pure constructivism to a lyricism built around evocative themes.

In other works in the show, those in this constructivist vein, Kidder builds layer on top of layer of space modulations in such complexity the work is impossible to describe. Yet only in one work, which sits on a beautiful dark plastic base, do the modulations approach confusion. Kidder is known for consistantly building pieces of sculpture which are successful.

Some of these constructions were made as illustrations to a book of poetry by Mike Doyle, Earth Meditations, One to Five, available under the Coach House label. Another place Jack's work can be found is in the latest edition of Clear Creek Magazine, a California publication. Jack, who has owned a camera for less than a year, contributed photographs of rocks along the Yuba River.

Though the show at Belmont High, now over, was not an important show, it could be—if the show were the first of a series of such shows in local schools. Jack invites any school interested to apply to him. Jack's contribution is his work; the school must handle details.

City Musician Elected

At the biennial convention held recently in Chilliwack, the B.C. Registered Music Teachers' Association elected Victoria musician and teacher Rodney Webster as provincial president.

For the past three years Webster has been president of the Victoria branch and a vice-president of the Provincial Council.

Otherofficers elected were vice-presidents Ernest Schneider, Penticton, Morris Dean, Vancouver and Joyce Horner, Nanaimo; secretary-treasurer, Gladys Smillie, Victoria, and registrar, Mary Adamson, Victoria.

The convention was the largest ever provincial gathering of BCRMTA, with members from every branch in attendance. It concluded with a lecture-recital by Robin Wood, principal of the Victoria Conservatory of Music.

No Rushing for Finney

By MICHAEL BEHR

LONDON — Blue-eyed, tousle-haired and firmly-packed into a snappy fawn two-piece for a luncheon date with the beautiful Anouk Aimee, to whom he's now been happily married for going on two years, Albert Finney was looking like a man fate could not harm—not even the particular fate, that's been hanging over him for years, of becoming Britain's greatest actor.

He said, casual but resonant: "The last few years I've had kind of doubts about what I want to do with my life. And what I'm supposed to 'be.' And perhaps I've been denying that I'm an actor, because I didn't feel that I was 'just' an actor. Or at any rate I was worried about it. But I feel now that being a actor is — well, doing this play has reminded me how marvelous being an actor can be . . ."

In March he returned to the London stage, after six years' absence, in E. A. Whitehead's tragic comedy of sexual and social guilt, "Alpha Beta." Both his starting performance and the cutting humors of the play itself seem very much to the taste of audiences — it's been playing to sold-out houses.

Since the beginning of his career, Finney has been measured against the greatest. "Half an Olivier — and he's only 21," said the News Chronicle of his MacBeth in 1958. With his first film in 1961, "Saturday Night and Sunday Morning," he was placed firmly up alongside Olivier and Brando by the critics.

They've usually praised him more unreservedly than the work he's appeared in: "Billy Liar" was thought to be "insubstantial," "Saturday Night" was "inconsequential," "Luther" was "insufficient." Or the other way around.

Albert Finney as Tom Jones

But no one doubted that in Finney a whole new generation of actors — Peter O'Toole, Tom Courtenay, Tom Bell, Alan Bates, Frank Finlay, John Strike — had found their leader.

And he has shown an unusual facility in keeping one hunch ahead of the public, his fellow actors, and most of the critics; an ability to generate capacity-runs merely by consulting his own personal promptings.

These have seldom let him down — when they do, he takes off on long sabbaticals to explore his "possibilities" (a favorite world), returning only when the answer is clear. After the disappointment of "Night Must Fall" (1964) he went around the world for a year: The answer turned out to be a season of classical and modern plays at the National that won him the best actor of the year award for 1966.

He couldn't collect it — he was too busy directing his first film, the haunting and funny "Charlie Bubbles," (1967). The film's ambiguous reception by the movie-men and by some of the critics, and his less-than-successful "Two for the Road," led to further prolonged think-outs in Corfu.

In 1968 he appeared triumphantly but briefly on Broadway in Peter Nichols' "A Day in the Death of Joe Egg." (of its ten-week run, the American writer and critic William Goldman said in The Season: "The best thng to hit Broadway in year. 'Joe Egg' is what it's all been for . . . ."); he made "Scrooge," and collected a New York Golden Globe award for it, and he recently starred in Neville Smith's wittily scripted "Gumshoe." Not really a great deal for someone who is — perennially and inexcapable — the Most Fashionable Actor of them all.

Had he read one of our senior star-actors' remarks about him in a recent interview? Saying he should buckle down to more work in the live theatre? A noncommittal no." Then, as though developing a well-reflected theme:

"Yes, but anyway, I'm 36 in May. I think the best years of an actor are between 35 and 55-60. I don't see the rush. If I go to a health farm, and lose a bit of weight, I can still play Hamlet for the next four years. And get away with it. No, I don't see any kind of rush. I've just felt I've had to sort of kick my heels and lay around a bit. I'm an artist, whatever I may be actually doing.

"The first eight years of my career I never stopped. And I loved not stopping. I loved doing. And then I went away, and I realized for the first time that I was sort of looking at myself, outside the activity. And it's possible to see yourself clearer, to see what you do, from a distance. You can't see how you do if you're still doing. So I would call these 'fallow' periods. Not really inactive periods . . . I don't think anything's a waste of time . . . even wasting time!"

There has been plenty for him to digest. The bulky press-library file reads like some show-biz novel to end them all: the houses and horses, the girl-friends and wives, the gear and the globe-trotting; the Rolls and the roles; Roman springs, Aegean summers, autumns in Paris; the Lenten withdrawals, the comebacks, the surfeits of prizes.

He's won almost as many awards as a motor-racing champion or a matador — if he was either, he'd be bald or gored by now. In fact, he's looking remarkably good. The face is now interestingly dented, the manner graver, but there's still more than a glimpse of young Tom Jones, the likely lad who conquered the big city: "I've had no pressures on me to be 'formed.' The life I've led has kept me unformed. But I think maturity takes longer than 21 years of 35 years — you should mature in the wood."

A Career Begun At Bitter End

By RON ROBINSON
CJVI Program Director

A young man caught the attention of the music world a few months back when he wrote and sang an intriguing yet perplexing song that quickly became the number one hit in Victoria and indeed, the entire continent. His name is Don McLean, and his song is "American Pie." (Currently his followup effort "Vincent," named after the artist Van Gogh, is achieving hit status.)

At the age of 26 McLean already has nearly a decade of experience as a professional. He has worked with the late Josh White and Pete Seeger, performed at grade schools, kindergartens, coffee houses, folk clubs and virtually any place an audience can be gathered.

An insignificant event eight years ago marked some sort of milestone for McLean as a songwriter. "I was working at the Bitter End and one of the waitresses came over and asked how old I was. I told her and she looked at the other waitresses — they were all in their twenties — and said, 'What could anybody 18 years old have to say?' And I was hurt, sort of, but I thought about it seriously. Up to that point in my life I had been overprivileged — like most people who relate to my music and who are in fact, the representatives of the generation that I come from. But I think it was at that point — when I was 18 — that I began to see that I wanted something else from life than what I expected."

McLean is reluctant to dissect the lyrics to American Pie. He feels that, like any work of art, it should be its own explanation. But simply stated, the song is a mosaic of thoughts and feelings about the vague formless malaise of our contemporary society, especially in the U.S. "Mom's apple pie gone sour."

ONE OF GREAT plays of the past decade is Hadrian VII. Robert Casper is the Vancouver actor who plays the superbly written role of Frederick William Rolfe, the starving, bitterly frustrated would-be priest whose fevered brain projects a fantasy of himself as the second English Pope. Devoted to the reality of Catholicism but not to the bureaucracy which has barred him from the priesthood, he is something of an iconoclast as he sits upon the throne, a cigaret dangling from his lips in this Vancouver Playhouse Theatre Company production. Hadrian VII occupies the Queen Elizabeth Playhouse stage through April 29.

A TOPICAL GAME

Union troubles may seem a strange partner to take the stage with music, comedy and romance.

The Pajama Game was Broadway's musical tongue-in-cheek exploration of the theme a few years ago and it is still highly germane, in fact currently more so than ever for Canadian audiences.

Next up and last of the season for Victoria Operatic Society, The Pajama Game starts a week's run April 24 at McPherson Playhouse.

The plot involves employees of the Sleep-Time Pajama Factory in a struggle for a 7½ cent raise. There is romance between Babe, head of the union grievance committee and Sid, the factory superintendent, with plenty of interference being run by various other characters.

Bujold, Berton, Spry Take Media Arts Awards

TORONTO — Quebec actress Genevieve Bujold and TV interviewer and author Pierre Berton were the first winners of the Association of Canadian Television and Radio Artists awards.

The annual John Drainie award for distinguished contribution to broadcasting was presented at the same time to Graham Spry, one of the founders of the Canadian Radio League, now known as the Canadian Broadcasting League.

BUJOLD
. . . top actress

ALBANY, Ore. — Sen. Mark Hatfield took his re-election campaign to Albany Friday, disclosing plans for a pilot program to turn waste wood into oil.

The Oregon Republican told the area chamber of commerce he is asking the senate appropriations committee to include $2.75 million for the project in the department of interior's 1973 budget.

Brad Tuft collected an estimated 1,200 votes to 811 for runnerup Jeff Robinson, the present study body vice-president. Tuft's candidacy was backed by the advertising campaign class.

NEW YORK — Columnist Walter Winchell's daughter is contesting his will, which bequeathed her $400 a week for life, on the ground that it was a product of "fraud and undue influence" on her father.

Objections filed in surrogate's court on behalf of Walda Winchell of Hollywood, Calif., did not identify the person or persons whose influence allegedly affected the columnist's testament.

NEW YORK — An AWOL marine corps private was found frozen to death in the wheel well of an American Airlines 707 jet that landed at John F. Kennedy airport after a four-and-one-half-hour flight from Los Angeles.

Airport police said Pvt. John J. Gribowski, a young recruit from Warren, Mich., apparently was a stowaway aboard the plane which left San Diego, Calif., for New York.

BURLINGAME, Calif. — Firemen at station house No. 1 had quite a day. First they responded to two false alarms at the opposite end of town. When they returned to the fire station it was looted.

Capt. Wesley Russell said the three firemen on the morning shift had their wallets rifled and an undetermined amount of cash was stolen. The men leave their street clothes and wallets in their lockers when responding to an alarm.

DUISBURG, Germany — Police arrested a 19-year-old who sent a note to his bank manager threatening to "knock you off in the street" unless the banker handed over $3,100.

The youthful extortionist's downfall came about because he told the banker to deposit the money directly in his bank account — and included the account number in his note. Police were waiting when he came to withdraw the loot.

DRFUX, France — Brickmason Martin Garcia, 38, had found an excellent material for building his house before he was arrested.

Mercury Can Kill

GENEVA (Reuter) — A United Nations committee warned Thursday that mercury pollution in food has killed hundreds of people and maimed thousands. Describing mercury as a world-wide problem, the expert committee on food additives said it is an insidious poison whose presence in the environment is continually increasing.

The committee, a joint organ of the World Health organization and the Food and Agricultural Organization, recommended maximum acceptable levels of mercury in food after discussing the subject for 10 days here. Details of the levels decided on were not immediately disclosed.

Ancient Capital Now City of Uncertainty

By GEORGE C. WILSON
The Washington Post

HUE — The citadel still stands. The Perfume River still shimmers golden at sunset; the women still wash clothes at the water's edge. The students still protest against government — both Washington's and Saigon's, but otherwise, Hue once again is a city of uncertainty being trampled by the war.

This time, though, the communists have failed to push their way inside the walled imperial city as they did in 1968 at the height of the Tet offensive. Now, they are still on the north side of the Cauviet River, some 45 miles up route one from here — out of sight and sound of the city as they try to break through South Vietnamese defences from the west.

It is a time for waiting and wondering for the 209,000 regular residents of Hue and the 60,000 to 80,000 refugees who came here from farms and towns which were under attack farther north.

"I am alone with no one to help me," said a 64-year-old man standing in one of the school yards here, now used as a temporary haven for refugees. The old man told of the April night when the bombardment started in his little village in the flatland west of Dongha.

"We fled from the rockets and artillery but somehow ended up in the middle with soldiers firing at each other from both sides of us. Some of the people in my village were hit. But we had to leave them lying there in the dark. I started running with my two sons and my grandchildren. I lost them in the dark. I made it to Dongha at dawn but couldn't find them. I came here to Hue looking for them. Now I don't know where to look. I hope they are safe."

LIFE OF WAR

The old man has lived through the war before. His house was burned down in the early 1950's by the French as part of their scorched earth tactic, he said. It was burned again during the Tet offensive of 1968. "A neighbor I met after running away said my house was burning again when he left the village," making this the third time the old man has been burned out of his home.

A middle-aged woman refugee shares a classroom with seven other families in the school-turned refugee centre. She fled Camlo.

"What money we brought with us ran out after the first week" she said. "The government gives each of us a loaf of bread a day, but that's not enough. If we don't get home soon to harvest our rice, which is ripe now, we will starve."

Luckier than either the old man or the middle-aged woman is Nguyen Hiep, 47, a farmer who fled his Quang Tri City home on his orange, Japanese-made Kubota tractor. He drove it right into one of the refugee centres here. The war which hit Dongha so hard has so far spared Quang Tri City of any massive destruction. But Hiep said his priest told him that the Saigon government does not want families to return to their homes in Quang Tri province, even if the communist troops are driven out.

"None of us wants to leave our homes in Quang Tri," he said. "But we are not sure what else we can do."

So you think you know British Columbia?
Prove it by identifying these 6 famous B.C. sights-

From the sandy beaches of Vancouver Island to the towering peaks of the Rockies, from the Peace River plains to the orchard valleys of the Okanagan and Kootenays . . . this province of ours is a land of immense scenic variety. A land in which the natural and man-made wonders are almost beyond number. The six photographs at right depict some of our famous sights. If you can identify them all, you might claim to have a fairly good grasp of the varied attractions of British Columbia. But whether you can or not, these illustrations should serve as a reminder that our province is a uniquely exciting holiday area. So exciting that thousands of tourists each year visit our province to enjoy a range of scenic beauty they just can't find at home. This year, pretend you're a tourist in the greatest tourist country anywhere – your own home province of British Columbia.

For a detailed guide to highways, points of interest and accommodations throughout our province, visit any British Columbia Information Centre. Or write: British Columbia Department of Travel Industry, 1019 Wharf Street, Victoria, British Columbia.

Second-Oldest Auto Reposes in Shed

KINGSVILLE, Ont. (CP) — A retired auto worker says a car he found in ruins in an abandoned foundry 16 years ago may be the second oldest in Canada.

Herbert W. Giles believes the Shamrock, now refurbished and sitting in the garage behind his home here, was assembled in 1893 in Wardsville, about 30 miles northeast of Chatham.

Some of its parts, including its steering wheel and some drive-train components made in the United States, weren't manufactured until after 1900, perhaps as late as 1904.

But Mr. Giles says he believes those parts were additions to the 1893 Shamrock, replacing original parts as they became available.

"During my research, people in Wardsville told me about a woman there who had good reason to remember when the Shamrock was first built—it was the year she was married, 1893," Mr. Giles said in an interview.

Automotive historians generally agree that the first car built in Canada was a steam buggy built by Henry Seth Taylor in Stanstead, Que., now restored and on display at the Ontario Science Centre in Toronto.

Mr. Giles says the Shamrock was a prototype for a car that never went into production, built by William and Charles Mimna, two brothers who had a stone-cutting business in Wardsville.

As it sits now in Mr. Giles' garage in this town about 25 miles southeast of Windsor, the Shamrock has a buggy-like body built on a wooden chassis with a wooden, two-seat body and is powered by a single-cylinder gasoline engine.

Many of its components, including the lever for its two-speed transmission, appear to have been hand-made, says Mr. Giles. The Shamrock has a top speed of about eight miles an hour, he says.

It was in 1956 that Mr. Giles found the Shamrock in an abandoned foundry near Glencoe, a few miles northeast of Wardsville. It took six months of negotiations for him to acquire it.

"It was a real basket case," says Mr. Giles. "The car was in bits and pieces and I had to haul it home in a pickup truck.

"Some parts were missing and I had to have replacement parts made. The radiator coils were the hardest to replace—I finally had them made from refrigerator parts."

Now the Shamrock rarely leaves the garage it shares with a soon-to-be-refurbished 1925 Star behind Mr. Giles's home in this town about 25 miles southeast of Windsor.

Jesus Movement—Salvation or End?

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Some church observers think the Jesus movement in the United States is a lightweight fad that will die out within a year. Others think it will revitalize the entire Christian cause, either outside the institutional churches or through gradually being absorbed into them.

In any case, it is, for the moment, a lusty and novel phenomenon, with a bandwagon, group appeal to a growing number of youngsters in many places.

In a circular letter to members of the Yokefellows, an interdenominational association pledged to regular disciplines of Christian devotions and service, he says many of the "Jesus people" are young people who have been part of the drug culture but have revolted against it after finding it self-defeating.

"In a mood of desperation they have turned to Jesus as a viable alternative to their former despair and disillusionment. . . .

"The new life in which these people now rejoice is one of almost continuous hilarity. They shout and sing and call out to anyone who will listen, 'Jesus loves you.'"

He says it's obviously a positive step when anyone stops the self-destruction, both mentally and emotionally, of trying to escape reality through drugs, and begins seeking real fulfilment.

"The adherents of the new cult often carry about with them tattered copies of the New Testament which they read assidulously. There may, unfortunately, be no understanding of the scholarly work on the gospels. . . ."

However, he adds, "just to know intimately what Jesus said and did, including the way in which He died and rose again, is to know something of a revolutionary importance" and "one does not have to be a scholar or acquire a mastery of Greek" to do it.

On the other hand, he says, the movement reflects several dangers and shortcomings, including its "fundamentally simplistic approach."

"One weakness is that the Jesus people do not represent a full gospel. However valuable it may be to concentrate upon Christ, there are other aspects of truth which are needed. How strange, for example, to have so little reference to God!"

At the same time, he concludes, a "fragmented gospel" is better than none.

TENANT PROVES HARASSMENT

NEW YORK (UPI) — When Nelson Goff ignored his apartment eviction notice, the landlord put the pressure on. Not only were his heat, electricity, hot water and postal service discontinued, but even the toilet seat was removed.

Emotionally distressed, but determined to keep his Manhattan apartment, Goff, 23, sought psychiatric help. And he got a lawyer, too.

This week, Goff was awarded $10,000 damages by state supreme court justice George Starke. The judge ruled that the landlord, A. I. H. Development Corp., was "wanton and malicious" in its efforts to remove the tenant.

A psychiatrist from St. Vincent's Hospital testified that Goff needed weekly therapy as a result of the landlord's acts, which began in August.

Canoeist's Drowning 'Accidental'

A coroner's inquiry into the death of a 37-year-old Victoria psychiatrist has found he drowned accidentally.

Wilson of 1368 Hampshire, drowned March 21 in the San Juan River. He had been canoeing down the river after starting about 15 miles upstream. His body was found in the overturned canoe about six miles downstream.

The coroner said his verdict is no criticism of Wilson's ability as a canoeist.

A warm English afternoon. Two young men in a late model car—thirsty. A pub. And a pretty barmaid. And somehow what started out to be a quick drink turned into a three day stay. Playing darts. Fishing with her brothers. Drinking and arguing with her Dad.

That's independence. The holiday freedom to go where you want, stop when you want—for as long as you want.

Like meeting those Londoners the day before you were leaving for Devon—only to change your mind and head off to Edinburgh with them for the Festival.

This summer, because we think an airline should offer more than just a "seat" to Europe and back—we worked out some ways to give you all the holiday independence you could want. And they're all Air Canada exclusives.

Three types of accommodation offers from $7 a night per person in over 500 hotels in 20 countries (all are based on two sharing, and like the car, must be arranged before you leave). And although all four are 7 day minimums—the days needn't be consecutive; you can scatter them over your entire stay, buy several packages, mix and match to suit your plans.

Another independence offering is our "Open Jaw" option—you can fly into any of Air Canada's 11 European destinations, tour around and return from whichever city is closest to you—for little or no extra cost.

All of this on top of a new 22-45 day excursion fare that's almost as low as charter. But unlike charter—we don't tell you when you have to go and come home. You can leave on any of our scheduled flights—and change your return date in Europe if you want. Your children under 12 can fly for half fare. And you can charge it all on your credit card.

Add it all up: the holiday values, the new fares and freedoms we're offering—then work it out.

The charter "seat". Or the Air Canada holiday. Which is really the better bargain? Ask your travel agent.

Peach Tree Grower Attacks Pollution

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Lewis M.D. Grainger's efforts to save his peach trees from frost have led to patents for a device designed to eliminate all harmful pollutants from the internal combustion engine.

Grainger, retired operator of an auto repair and rebuilding business, is no newcomer to the patent office. In 1935 he invented a steering yoke bearing that is still used today.

He said the new anti-pollution device can be adapted to vehicles now in use, can be mass produced at a cost of about $50 and would eliminate automobile pollutants 100 per cent.

Although no prototype has been constructed for the automobile, Grainger has used the system in oil burners that heat peach orchards around his home.

Smoke and pollutants from the heaters used to "fill the neighborhood" on cold spring days, he said.

ADAPTED FOR CARS

"I could see I had to leave that type of heating. I knew I had to invent a clean type of oil burning system and I did it."

Grainger said he then adapted the device to the automobile engine. He said it allows the complete incineration of fuels used in the internal combustion engine so that no pollutants remain to be ejected into the atmosphere from the exhaust.

The device is self-contained, using only the automobile's fan and water pump.

Grainger said the device uses a fan system to pull in additional air, which is drawn through a modified filter and is mixed with exhaust fumes.

The mixture of air and gasoline fumes is then fed into Grainger's "air injector combustion chamber" which uses heat of the engine, along with the air and fumes, to create a burning chamber where the revolving gases are subjected to temperatures around 2,500 degrees.

Movement of the mixture is then slowed in the combustion chamber to allow total consumption of unused fuel and its pollutants.

Grainger said the system will last for the life of a car and will never need servicing.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A marijuana trafficker who said he was "glad I was busted" was sentenced in provincial court Friday to four months definite and four months indeterminate.

Reginald Miles Hewko, 18, of 520 Agnes, pleaded guilty before Judge William Ostler to possession of marijuana for the purposes of trafficking.

"I'm glad I was busted so I can get out of the drug scene once and for all," he told police.

★ ★ ★

Clinton Montgomery, 23, of 313 Obed, was sentenced to one month in jail for obstructing a police officer.

Montgomery interfered with policemen who were arresting a friend of his March 23 on Government.

★ ★ ★

Bruce Grant Paterson, 19, and John Edwin Shaw, 20, were remanded for pre-sentence report and sentence after pleading guilty to possession of stolen property involving more than $50 — chairs taken from a Saanich beer parlor March 23.

★ ★ ★

Ida May Matheson, 35, of 1214 Carlisle, was fined $400 and given a driving suspension for impaired driving April 14 on Esquimalt Road. She pleaded guilty.

★ ★ ★

Nina Norman, 35, of Langford, was fined $150 and prohibited from driving for a month after trial on a charge of impaired driving Jan. 26 on Gorge. A not-guilty plea by the accused had been rejected earlier by Ostler.

★ ★ ★

In traffic court, Judge E. F. N. Robinson fined Kenneth Campbell, 27, of 370 Walter, $400 and gave him a partial four-month driving ban for driving while impaired on Burnside March 31.

Glen Scott Murray, 18, of 1345 Craigflower, was fined $400 and banned from driving three months following conviction on an impaired driving charge in connection with an accident on Admiral's Road March 16.

★ ★ ★

Heinz Frederick Leuder, 45, of Shawnigan Lake, was fined $250 for shoplifting a $27.97 camp lamp from Woolco March 6. Leuder pleaded guilty.

★ ★ ★

Patrick Kevin Smith, 17, of Nanaimo, was given a suspended sentence and placed on six months' probation on a charge of theft involving less than $50. Smith stole a fireman's hat while he and friends were watching a house fire during a visit here March 16.

Pilots Soon Mandatory

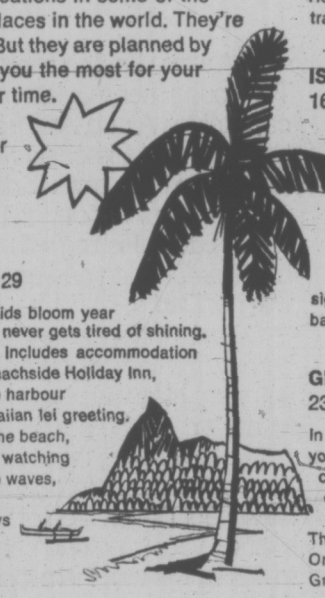
HALIFAX (CP) —Foreign vessels using Canadian ports will soon be required to use pilots, Captain Allan Douglas Latter, chairman of the Atlantic Pilotage Authority, said.

Captain Latter said regulations now do not require a foreign vessel to take on a pilot in Canadian waters, although pilotage fees must be paid.

He said that within a year the Canadian Pilotage Act will be amended so that foreign vessels will be required to use a pilot.

CP Air's World:
We get you where the good times are.

A holiday is meant to be a lot more than two plane rides connected by some sightseeing trips. A holiday is meant to be fun, an experience. Something worth waiting and saving for. CP Air would like to help you make sure that your holiday will be something to remember for a long, long time. So we have put together a collection of vacations in some of the most exciting places in the world. They're not expensive. But they are planned by experts to give you the most for your money and your time. Here are a few examples. Your travel agent has lots more.



HAWAII
15 days from $129
Honolulu: the orchids bloom year round and the sun never gets tired of shining. Your vacation here includes accommodation in the fabulous beachside Holiday Inn, a cruise around the harbour and a special Hawaiian lei greeting. And as you lie on the beach, eating papaya and watching the surfers ride the waves, you'll know what a vacation was always supposed to be. 1T1CP1TW4A.

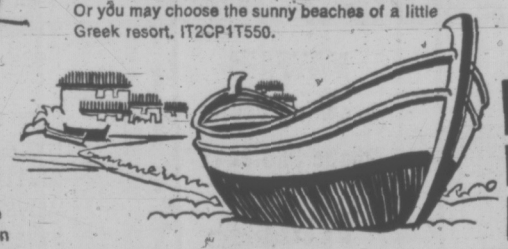
MEXICO
17 days from $167.
You'll start in Mexico City and have time to discover the art treasures and the shopping and the nightlife. Then we'll take you to Taxco where the whole village has been declared a national monument. And finally, Acapulco: the bay, the beaches, flowers, smiles, and brown bodies in the sun. This one price includes hotel accommodation and trips to some of the sights we wouldn't want you to miss and lots of time to be yourself and and discover things for yourself. IT2CP1MT11.

SOUTH AMERICA
29 days from $1465
Here's a camera safari designed by photographers for photographers. And what a safari! You'll see Lima and the ruins of Machu Picchu, a jungle camp on the Amazon, primitive Indian villages, the art treasures of Quito. You'll even spend a week in the Galapagos Islands. A photographic director will go with you and the group is limited to 25 people. Includes accommodation, ground transportation, many meals. IT2CP1WWT1.

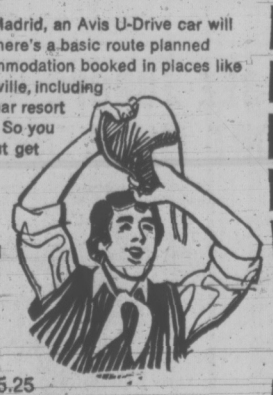
THE ORIENT
17 days from $494
The Orient is very different from anything you've seen before, but this vacation will make it a little less inscrutable. You'll be taken to modern Tokyo and the beautiful, unchanging city of Kyoto. You'll see ancient temples, the spectacular scenery of the Japan Sea, and all the bustle and bargains of Hong Kong. Includes hotels, sightseeing, ground transportation and some meals. IT1CP1CD01.

ISRAEL
16 days from $339
Israel is many different and surprising things. It's long sweeping beaches and resorts that equal the most fashionable in the world. It's holy places like Bethlehem, Nazareth and the Sea of Galilee. It's the bright lights and excitement of Haifa and Tel Aviv. This vacation will take you to all of these and much more. Includes ground transportation, sightseeing, most meals, and accommodation based on three sharing. IT2CP1S133.

GREECE
23 days from $167
In this vacation we'll help you plan to see whatever you want to see. The first five days we'll show the classic sights in and around Athens. After that the choice is yours. You may want to spend all your time in Athens – hotel and half board are included. There are many optional cruises of the Greek Islands. Or you may choose the sunny beaches of a little Greek resort. IT2CP1T550.



SPAIN
23 days from $228
When you arrive in Madrid, an Avis U-Drive car will be waiting for you. There's a basic route planned with first class accommodation booked in places like Madrid, Granada, Seville, including a week at the Playamar resort on the Costa del Sol. So you travel with friends but get the cost advantages and planning assistance of a tour. Includes car with unlimited mileage, all accommodation and some meals. IT2CP1TO25.



FIJI
17 days from $225.25
Few places on earth can equal the magic appeal of the South Pacific: the long, white sand beaches, crystal clear blue waters, market places piled high with yams, bananas, taro and breadfruit. Your vacation will take you on cruises and sightseeing trips, to island feasts and traditional dancing. And it will give you lots of time to do nothing, beautifully. Includes accommodation, cruises, sightseeing and some meals. IT1CP1TT01.

PORTUGAL, SPAIN AND MOROCCO
21 days from $384
Three fascinating countries all in one specially priced vacation. You'll start with a visit to the stately avenues and fountain-filled squares of Madrid. Then you're off on a tour of Morocco's imperial cities: Tangier, Rabat, Marrakech, Fez. Back in Spain, you'll have four relaxing days on the Costa del Sol, then on to Seville and Lisbon. All hotels, ground transportation, sightseeing and some meals are included. IT2IB1S119.

HOW TO BUDGET FOR YOUR VACATION
Many of your major costs are included in the one price, as described in each of these vacations. This way you can benefit from the special rates that we can get. Unless otherwise stated, accommodation costs are based on two people sharing, and a single room would cost slightly more. You should add on the air fare from the applicable city. These are shown in the box below. Peak season fares will be slightly higher during June, July and August. Now you have a pretty good idea of your total vacation costs: And if you would like to budget those costs, we can help you out with our sensible Fly Now – Pay Later plan.

And now you probably want more details. And your travel agent has them: colourful folders with complete itineraries, and lots of personal, expert advice. All free. Just give him a call or phone the International Travel Adviser at any CP Air reservations office.

Starfish Threat Apparently Diminishing

COCONUT ISLAND, Hawaii (AP) — A curious population explosion of voracious starfish that threatened to destroy coral reefs of the Pacific Ocean, including Australia's famous Great Barrier Reef, apparently is waning.

But in its wake, it leaves some mysteries and disagreements, both scientific and political.

The crown of thorns starfish feed upon tiny soft animals called polyps that create limestone skeletons which form coral reefs through slow accretion. The starfish range up to two feet in diameter and have 12 to 19 arms, not five like the familiar smaller variety.

The explosion of the crown of thorns starfish came during the last 10 years. Dr. John E. Bardach, director of the Hawaii Institute of Marine Biology of the University of Hawaii, says the prevalence of the giant starfish now is back to lower levels.

A few scientists think there was no real increase, merely that an always large population near some reefs had been noticed for the first time.

By one account, however, the starfish population increased 1,000-fold in a decade and in 1968 a 125-mile section of the Great Barrier Reef—one-tenth of its length—was reported 90 per cent dead.

Coral reefs provide a feeding ground for fish and protect the coastline of islands from storms and wave damage, and the infestation from the crown of thorns led to stop-gap countermeasures: having islanders catch starfish in shallow waters and hiring scuba divers to inject them with lethal poison.

In Australia, the starfish became a political issue, with public and scientific arguments over the extent of damage they were doing or might be doing.

The Queensland state government, in whose domain the Barrier Reef lies, issued statements from a joint Commonwealth-Queensland advisory committee which were challenged by political opposition or by scientific and conservationist critics.

One consideration was whether tourism would be diminished by reports that the Great Barrier Reef was being damaged or might disappear.

There was more agreement concerning the joint committee's statement that "present knowledge of reef ecology is inadequate to assess fully the present and future problems concerning the crown of thorns starfish and related matters." It called for more scientific research to pin down facts.

Bardach says the crown of thorns outbreak, for whatever reasons brought it on, seems to be a periodic, natural fluctuation, apparently not connected with man-made causes. It likely happened in the past and is likely to occur again, he says.

Man-made causes attributed by some for the starfish explosion include blastings of reefs to build docks or piers or cable channels; use of dynamite to kill fish, the collection of shells of tritons, a big snail that feeds on the starfish, or the accumulation through the food chain of DDT or other pesticides that killed off tritons and perhaps other organisms that control the starfish population.

Big Drill Probes Bermuda's Origins

HAMILTON, Bermuda (CP) — A Canadian scientist is to drill a hole a half-mile deep into the rock base of Bermuda in an effort to determine the mid-Atlantic's origins.

Dr. Fabio Aumento, associate professor of geology at Dalhousie University, Halifax, is to supervise the project.

The drilling operation, to be carried out by the Bermuda Biological Station, will go much deeper than the 300-foot holes that were sunk in 1907 and 1908. It will be a dress rehearsel for the much deeper hole which is planned for 1974. This will be drilled from a ship.

Dr. Aumento's project has two main targets. He's out to determine the age of Bermuda and where the Bermuda volcano emerged from the sea bed.

The original site of the volcano, long extinct, is subject to two theories. It could have formed as part of the mid-Atlantic ridge where there was a lot of activity. After formation the volcano could have drifted with the earth movement, west to its present location about 700 miles off New York.

Alternatively it could have been a completely separate activity which occurred close to Bermuda's present location.

The age can be determined from the metal components in the lava. When lava cools the metal components orient themselves according to the magnetic field of the earth at the time.

Scientists can take the old lava and compare it with the present magnetic field and thus determine the lava's age.

INDIAN CARVER Frank Puglas congratulates Mrs. Eleanor Kobley, winner of Kwakiutl totem pole raffled by the newly formed Kwa-Win-Nah Society. The raffle was held to raise funds for a half-way house for Indian, Metis and Eskimo inmates paroled from federal and provincial institutions. James Shuter, left, has been cared for by the society since his release from prison. Contributions may be sent to Eugene Johnson, Kwa-Win-Nah, 620 View Street.

Nairobi Exchange Booming

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — There's no ticker tape, no trading floor and the members meet in a hotel lounge—but business is looking up on the Nairobi Stock Exchange.

Chairman Francisc Thuo says the volume of buying and selling on Black Africa's busiest market for company shares has grown to more than $2.1 million a month.

The Nairobi index of share prices is near 245, about 15 points under the record levels reached last October but well above March, 1970, when the index broke through 200 for the first time.

It's all done in a relaxed, African way. No one darts to the telephone to trade on the latest dividend news or rushes to his broker with a tip from an insider's luncheon.

A client gives his orders to one of the exchange's six member brokerage houses and the deal is completed on the telephone with another broker. Personal contacts count for a lot.

The Nairobi Stock Exchange began operations in 1948 under British colonial authorities. It now lists about 70 issues by corporations, governments and municipalities in East Africa, although exchange controls within the East African Community have cut heavily into trading in Ugandan and Tanzanian securities.

Most shares cost less than a pound ($2.60) and price fluctuations are narrow.

On Thursdays, exchange members gather in an office to fix bid-offer prices for all the listed shares. On other weekdays, they meet for late-morning tea in the lounge of a luxury hotel.

Nobody Seems to Want Picturephone

By WILLIAM H. JONES

WASHINGTON — A device hailed by American Telephone and Telegraph Co. last year as opening "a new era in telecommunications" — the picturephone — has been put on the shelf.

In the wake of virtually no public demand — a reaction the Bell System is not exactly accustomed to — telephone company executives have ordered a total re-evaluation of the service's potential.

Even the White House — where Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. installed 10 of the phones free of charge in 1970 on an experimental basis — declined to purchase the videophone service when faced with a choice of paying C&P or removing the sets.

Administration budget officers decided they couldn't justify the expense — C&P rates are 110 dollars per month for a picturephone line plus $60 a month per set, in addition to a onetime line charge of $100 and onetime set charge of $50. Customers receive 30 minutes of calling time a month, and must pay 20 cents for every additional minute.

As recently as a year ago, AT&T anticipated there would be some 50,000 to 100,000 picturephones in service by 1975 in two dozen cities. Rates were expected to decline gradually, permitting families to begin widespread use of the device by the early 1980s.

But now AT&T and its subsidiaries, including the C&P Company of Washington, are making no predictions on whether there is a future in picturephones. Company spokesmen said no figures were available on AT&T investment in picturephones — developed by subsidiary Bell Laboratories — but independent communications experts said millions of dollars are involved.

There are currently about 200 picturephone customers — all but 12 of them in Chicago and the remainder in Pittsburgh, where the first commercial picturephone business was launched in July 1970. Only local service is available in the two cities.

Plans to expand picturephones to Cleveland, Detroit and Philadelphia last year never materialized.

Beside the steep expense of the service, AT&T spokesmen said major factors contributing to picturephone failure were a morass of problems in New York City, the economic recession, and burgeoning data communications systems which lessened the overall attraction of the AT&T service (sets could be plugged into computers for printouts of data on the 5 by 5½ inch screen).

Initial long distance service is seen as impractical without New York connections, because of the concentration of potential customers there who would desire visual communications with facilities elsewhere.

But a mountain of service problems in New York, compounded by the recent communication workers' strike, has made introduction of picturephones there impossible for possibly many years to come. For one thing, the new public service commission has told AT&T it has to improve present service before it can offer something new.

"The picturephone's no good if there is no one else to talk to," an AT&T spokesman concluded.

At the same time, telephone company officials and other industry spokesmen said this week, Americans some day will use extensive video-voice communications, in some form perhaps outside the telephone network.

RADIO GIVEN ISLAND MARKET

OTTAWA (CP) — Radio station CHQB Powell River has been given permission to seek advertising on Vancouver Island.

The Canadian Radio-Television Commission said Friday it believes CHQB should be released from a previous commitment not to solicit advertising on the island.

But the commission said this should not weaken service to Powell River, a community on the B.C. mainland.

The commission was told at Victoria hearings in March that CHQB would collapse unless it was allowed to seek Vancouver Island advertising.

Donald Cartmell, CHQB's managing director, said the costs of putting the station in operation had proved higher than expected. Powell River had also not provided as much advertising as expected.

William Browne, president of CFCP Radio Ltd., which owns radio stations CFCP, Courtenay, and CFWB, Campbell River, told the CRTC he could not operate two regional stations on Vancouver Island if CHQB was allowed to get advertising in his area.

3rd Largest Diamond Found

NEW YORK (CP) — The world's third largest diamond, valued at $11.7 million, has been discovered in the West African Republic of Sierra Leone, it was reported here Friday.

The 969.8 carat stone weighs almost half a pound. It has been christened the Star of Sierra Leone by the country's president, Siaka Stevens.

Tinga Seisay, Sierra Leone's consul general in New York, said Friday the diamond was found Feb. 14 on a conveyer belt in a diamond processing plant in the Kono area of Sierra Leone. It is now in the custody of the government's diamond monopoly, Diminco.

The world's largest diamond was the Cullinan Diamond which weighed 3,106 carats. It was picked up one evening in 1905 by a mine superintendent at the Premier Mine in South Africa.

The stone was later cut into gems that are among the British crown jewels or in the personal possession of the British Royal Family.

The second largest was the Excelsior Diamond, discovered in 1893 in South Africa. It weighed 995.2 carats and was found in a shovelful of gravel. The Excelsior was cut eight years later.

Seisay said the Star of Sierra Leone will be kept intact and thus will be the world's largest diamond. It is to be displayed in the National Museum in Freetown, the country's capital.

Increase Accepted

CALGARY (CP) — Professors at the University of Calgary have accepted a 2.75-per-cent increase in salaries for 1972-73, down from an original request for a seven-per-cent increase.

W. F. Anderson, chairman of the board of governors personnel relations committee, said that in accepting the smaller increase "the faculty association recognizes the financial constraints the university is in."

Weddings

Darling — Hunter

Tall standards of forsythia, daffodils, white tulips and cherry blossoms set a spring-like mood at Metropolitan United Church, Victoria, for the double-ring ceremony on April 8, 1972, at 2 o'clock, when Dr. A. E. King, assisted by Dr. Guy McKenzie, grandfather of the groom, united in marriage Robert Gordon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Darling of Vancouver and Ottawa, and Danna Mary, only daughter of Mrs. Douglas J. Hunter and the late Mr. Hunter, of Victoria.

The bride was radiant in a floor-length cream colored dress of real silk and lace, made and worn by her maternal grandmother. Slim, lily-point sleeves of lace, and a lace highboned neck which ended in a V yoke extending into a panel of silk tucks to the floor, were features. She wore a long heirloom Chantilly lace veil flowing from an Ann of Cleves headdress. The veil was worn by the bride's aunt, Mary Hunter, at her wedding. The bride carried a Victorian bouquet of gardenias, white freezias and trailing ivy. Matron of Honour was the bride's cousin, Mrs. Michael Twan, and bridesmaids were Miss Marilee MacLeod, of Calgary, a cousin, and Miss Mary Jameson. They wore identical gowns of dotted Swiss over spring colors of yellow, mauve and apple green, featuring long full sleeves, empire waistlines, and high standing necklines of period style, in keeping with the theme of the bride's gown. In their hair were bows matching the color of their frocks, with small daisy nosegays, similar to their bouquets of daisies, white freesias and stephanotis. Little Miss Linda Lee, as flower girl, wore a dress of yellow, matching those of the bridesmaids, and carried a basket of flowers. Acting as best man was Mr. Ted Holmes, and the ushers were Mr. Craig Strickland and Mr. Harley Taatte, cousin of the bride. For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Hunter chose an ensemble of stone background with gold design, and matching stole. She wore a gold-colored hat and a brown orchid corsage. Mother of the groom, Mrs. Darling, wore a sky-blue ensemble with matching off-the-face hat and a mauve orchid corsage.

The reception was held at the Racquet Club, where Mr. R. H. Spilsbury proposed the toast to the bride, which was followed by a Japanese ritual, where the bride and groom drank from the same saki cup. This lovely sterling silver saki cup was sent as a gift to the bridal couple from Mr. George Beatty, a long-time friend of the bride's faher, from Japan.

For her going-away costume, the bride chose a beige wool and suede tailored dress. Her accessories were knee-length leather boots and matching bag, and beige topcoat. She wore a brown orchid. Following a skiing honeymoon in Banff, Mr. and Mrs. Darling will make their home in Victoria.

Slater — Page

A lovely spring wedding took place on March 24, 1972, at 7:30 p.m. in St. Michael and All Angels' Church. Reverend R. Wilkes performed a double-ring ceremony when Claire-Lynne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roland Page, of Victoria, exchanged wedding vows with Ronald Edward Slater, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Slater of Victoria.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an elegant slim fitting wedding gown of peau de sole. The long sleeves, high neckline and front panel of the gown were lavishly adorned with Alencon lace. The full train bordered with matching lace swept back from the waist. A four-tiered scalloped silk illusion veil misted from a headpiece of lace and velvet embroidered with pearls. She carried a bouquet of white and yellow carnations. The maid of honor Miss Maureen Slater and bridesmaids, Miss Janis Atkin, Miss Karen Jones and Miss Roseanne Kelpin wore identical formal gowns of orchid, pink and yellow and green, and were styled with long full sleeves and softly folded cumerbunds. Their deep orchid picture hats completed their ensembles. Miss Lorie Scharbach was flower girl in a matching orchid floor length gown of sheer over taffeta, and wore flowers in her hair. They all carried "fall" bouquets of yellow carnations. Mr. Bob Packford was best man. Ushers were Mr. Larry Ellington, Mr. Ken Oliver, and Mr. Doug Boyer.

A reception was held at Holyrood House. Mr. A. Boyer proposed the toast to the bride. Music was provided by "The Skylighters." As a going-away outfit, the bride wore a navy fortrel dress with a grey tailored coat. She carried a navy woven handbag and wore a navy picture hat and navy gloves. The outfit was completed with a corsage of red and white carnations.

Skene — Smith

A lovely double-ring ceremony took place on January 15, 1972, at 7 p.m., in Garden City United Church, when Reverend E. W. MacQuarrie united in marriage, Donna Louise Smith, daughter of Mrs. A. C. Lewis, 558 Whiteside Street, Victoria, and the late Webster (Bus) Smith, to Mr. Allen William Skene, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Skene, Port Renfrew, B.C.

Given in marriage by her stepfather, Mr. A. C. Lewis, the bride wore a "medieval" inspired floor-length gown of white faille lace. A floor-length veil, and a colonial bouquet of red roses, completed the outfit made by the bride. Matron of Honor, Mrs. Linda Wilson, sister of the bride, bridesmatrons Mrs. Sharon Ollett and Mrs. Joan Humphries, and bridesmaid Miss Pat MacLean, wore identical floor-length gowns of red velvet. They carried Colonial bouquets of white mums touched with gold, similar to that of the bride's. Mr. Fred MacMurray was best man, and ushering the guests were Mr. Don Wilson, Mr. Bruce Wilson and Mr. John Humphries.

A reception followed at Holyrood House where Mr. Bill MacLean proposed a toast to the bride. Upon returning from a honeymoon trip Upisland, Mr. and Mrs. Skene will make their home in Lake Cowichan.

Whether you're third generation Canadian or came here only a few years ago to establish a family, there's a call to Britain in your blood.

So why not go to Britain this year? With lower than ever BOAC or Air Canada transatlantic fares it won't cost much more than your usual vacation — if anything. Take a regular BOAC scheduled flight to London, Manchester or Glasgow on a beautiful jet, with British service that will remind you of home as soon as you step aboard... Because BOAC is a Britain in the sky.

See your BOAC or Air Canada travel agent.
And remember that children under twelve travel for half fare.

BOAC takes good care of you

5 DEATHS AND FUNERALS

FORD—On April 14, 1972, at Victoria, B.C., Nellie Ford, formerly of 4058 Cary Rd., in her 93rd year, widow of John Thomas Ford, survived by a sister and nieces and nephews in England and Wales.
Funeral service will be announced later by HAYWARD'S FUNERAL CHAPEL.

GRIFFITHS — William Pearce Griffiths, passed away peacefully at home, 343 Robertson street, on April 12, 1972. Formerly of Calgary, Alberta, he was a resident of Victoria for 25 years. Survived by his niece and nephew, Mr. and Mrs. David Lewis, with whom he made his home; great-nieces and nephews, Ronald Lewis, Norma Blower, Janet McPhail and Sherry Lewis, all of Victoria, and nephew, Gordon Williams of Moosomin, Saskatchewan. He was a member of the Silver Threads and a former choir member of the Victoria Welsh Society and Victoria West United Church.
Funeral service in McCall Bros. Chapel, Johnson and Vancouver Streets, on Monday, April 17, at 10:15 a.m., with the Venerable Archdeacon E. H. Maddocks officiating. Interment at Royal Oak Burial Park. (Flowers gratefully declined. Donations, if desired, may be made to the Junior Group of the Solarium, P.O. Box 600, Victoria.)

MILL—Accidentally, on April 5, 1972, in St. Albert, Alberta, Janet Yvonne Mill, age 7, of 46 Bernard Drive. She leaves her loving parents, David and Yvonne, sisters Leonne and Dawn, brother Gary of Richmond, B.C., grandmother Mrs. Helen Horrex, Duncan, B.C., and many relatives in British Columbia.
Services were held in Richmond, B.C., on April 8, 1972.

PALLISER — Passed away at home on April 14, 1972, Miriam, aged 83 years, of Whisky Point Rd., R.R. No. 1, Mill Bay, B.C. Born in West Hartlepool, England, resident in Victoria from 1912 to 1955 and Mill Bay from that date. Survived by her loving husband, W. C. (Chris) Palliser; one daughter, Mrs. J. (Mollie) Archer, Gowichan Station; her sister, Miss Kitty Johnson, Victoria, and sister, Mrs. Ida Watson, Maple Ridge, B.C.; three grandchildren, and five great-grandchildren.
Service in McCall Bros. Chapel, Johnson and Vancouver Streets Victoria, on Monday, April 17, at 2:15 p.m., followed by cremation. (Flowers gratefully declined.)

ROBINSON — In Victoria, B.C., on April 14, 1972, Mr. Henry Robinson, age 72 years. Born in England, and had been a resident of Victoria for the past 2 years, late residence, 1650 Fort Street. The late Mr. Robinson served with the Royal Flying Corps during the First World War and was a member of The Royal Canadian Legion, Prince Edward Branch No. 91, Langford, B.C.
Service will be held in the Sands Funeral Chapel of Heather, Colwood, B.C., on Tuesday, April 18, 1972, at 1:00 p.m., Rev. J. G. Titus officiating. Cremation.

The Lord is my shepherd: I shall not want.
He maketh me to lie down in green pastures: He leadeth me beside the still waters.
He restoreth my soul: He leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for His name's sake.
Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff they comfort me.
Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies; thou anointest my head with oil; my cup runneth over.
Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life: and I will dwell in the house of the Lord for ever.

8 CARDS OF THANKS

The family of the late Paul Steeves wish to express their sincere appreciation to all relatives and friends for their acts of kindness and messages of sympathy during the loss of their beloved husband and father. Special thanks to the wonderful staff at the D.V.A. Hospital, to the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans Victoria Unit No. 12, and to Padre J. A. Roberts. — Mrs. Lilian Steeves, Charmian, Paul and John.

I wish to express my deepest appreciation and thanks to my dear friends and relatives for their many kindnesses to me at the time of the loss of my wife Addie. —Sincerely, George Chamberlain.

9 IN MEMORIAM

BASSETT — In loving memory of my dear husband Harry Bassett who passed away April 13, 1969.
Nothing can take away
The love a heart holds dear.
Fond memories linger everyday,
Remembrance keeps him dear.
—Lillian and Hazel and Bassett Families.

CLIFF—In fond and loving memory of our dear Mom and Nana, Rosina Violet, "called Home" April 16, 1953. Dad and Grandad, Charles Wm., Jan. 27, 1962, also Brother and Uncle Fred, suddenly at Port Alberni, Dec. 20, 1955.
If tears could build a stairway
Or love build a lane,
We'd go right up to Heaven
And bring you home again.
—We miss you Dear Ones. — The twins Norah and Violet, Dolly, three Sons and families.

COASTLINE TRAILER
Where you'll find the most complete range of travel trailer floor plans — styles and prices, in greater Victoria. On display now trailers from 15' to 27'.

"KUSTOM KOACH"
The Canadian built trailer that offers more standard features than most trailers have options. Features like: eye-level ovens, 10 gal. hot water heaters, spare tire, carrier, and cover, built-in stabilizers, 12 volt lights in the luggage compartments, 30 lb. tanks plus much more.

"TRAVELAIRE"
Since 1963 this trailer has been considered Canada's number one travel trailer because of its style, towability and honest to goodness top value.

"NOMAD"
The travel trailer that cost you a lot less money than most, yet gives you a top quality trailer you'll be proud to own. Try and beat this 22 foot model for value. Standard equipment includes furnace, 3-way fridge, hot water heater, shower, tandem axle, double sinks, full price only $4095.00.

PSSST!!
It's here now but we're keeping it a secret because our supply will be limited. The all-fibreglass

"TRILLIUM 13"
FOR COMPACT CARS
It's lightweight only 950 lbs. it tows like a dream, it's cute as a bunny, it sleeps four.

KNIT & CHAT

By MAY E. Mac LEAN

There isn't a week that goes by, that I don't receive a letter with a small length of yarn or wool attached, asking me if this will substitute for this or that wool!

Last week I briefly mentioned the checking of the tension, but I feel this week I should go into it a little more deeply. Unfortunately, knitters do not realize the importance of checking the tension before commencing the actual garment. The difference sometimes of half a stitch per inch, will make the world of difference on the measurement of the finished garment.

Take for instance a back of a sweater with one hundred stitches, knitting at five stitches to the inch in width, the finished back should measure 20 inches wide.

Now if you are getting four and a half stitches to the inch in width, your back will measure 22 inches wide, a difference of two inches, which is one size larger!

The same would be true if you are knitting too tightly, say five and a half stitches to the inch in width, this would give you a back measuring only 18 inches, two inches smaller. Again one whole size difference.

Unless you are working with a definite pattern stitch that is important in the over-all design, generally speaking, the number of rows need not be absolutely correct, as usually the instructions give the length in inches.

I am not saying that you need not get the row tension perfect, by all means do so if it is at all possible. If you are substituting another yarn, this might just not always be possible, but your stitch tension should be perfect.

Remember too that if you substitute another yarn, your finished garment may not look exactly like the photograph, which was no doubt what attracted you to the design in the first place. By knitting up a swatch to check the tension, you can also see how the yarn looks as a knitted fabric, and whether this is what you want for your garment. A little extra time spent in the beginning ensures you have a correct shape and fit.

This week's pattern is crochet fashions for the younger set. These little dresses have knitted bodices and crochet skirts in a lacy design, and can be made sleeveless or with short sleeves.

Little girls look adorable in these party pretty dresses, and the instructions are given in sizes six through 12 years of age to fit a chest or bust measurement of 24 to 30 inches. Quickly and easily made with a yarn similar in weight to a double knitting.

To order Leaflet No. T-71, send 50c in coin or money order, PLUS a stamped self-addressed return envelope, long one if possible. Send to: May E. Mac Lean, KNIT and CHAT, c/o Times.

Please be sure to state pattern number when ordering and to allow about ten days for delivery. All patterns now are 50c.

BEAUTIFUL SEAVIEW
In this age of instant houses, this home STANDS UNPARALLELED in QUALITY of construction, convenience of floor plan design and highest and best use of its prime location. This home, although it is sizeable, would best suit a smaller family or a retired couple. The house features a large, bright modern kitchen, a full size dining room and a large warm living room with a fireplace. Two's of the three bedrooms are on the main floor and the third is in the basement. Most of the oak floors are covered with expensive wall-to-wall carpet, in addition to the built-in conveniences, is its location of being close to shops, schools and transportation. Because this home was not cheaply built, nor thoughtlessly designed, it has been priced in the mid-forty thousand dollar category. If quality is your desire, contact Mr. W. Cleugh to view the house and the view.

VANCOUVER'S ISLAND
Yes, there are still some parcels of this beautiful island at UNDER (not much under) $2,000 per acre. In 10, 11 and 12 acre parcels in the beautiful Highland District. Low taxes, good grazing, fabulous views and outlook. NO SMOG, ducks on the wee lake, cattle, sheep and horses wandering about. You've got work to do on the land, fencing, drainage ditches, cutting timber for your cabin, etc. Go up Millstream Road from the Trans Canada, about 6 miles, way past everything till you get to the end of the road — yet only 12-13 miles from City Hall.

Strike Changed Opening Fashion

By The Associated Press

Baseball traditionally starts its season in a leisurely fashion —perhaps one game the first day, a few more the second and so on. But that wasn't the style today, with a full schedule of 12 games finally getting the strike-delayed season under way.

There were nine day games and three more at night as the players, idled two weeks by the strike, went back to work.

What originally was just another busy Saturday in the schedule took on added significance with the settlement of the strike, and many games carried the traditional ceremonies that usually accompany openers.

A total of 86 games were wiped out by the strike, and the decision not to make any of them up left teams with schedules varying from 153 to 156 games instead of the usual 162.

CLUBS WORK OUT

Most teams held hurried workouts Friday, hoping to eliminate whatever kinks that might have accumulated while the players were waiting out the strike. Many players worked out on their own during the dispute.

Four managers were making their debuts—two in each league. Del Rice of California Angels and Ken Aspromonte of Cleveland Indians were the new American League bosses while Bill Virdon with the world champion Pittsburgh Pirates and Yogi Berra with New York Mets were new at their posts in the National League.

Alleged Imposter Released

WORCESTER, Mass. (AP) — A former Worcester taxicab driver accused of impersonating a psychologist to obtain a faculty appointment with the University of Brandon in Manitoba was free on personal recognizance today after a judge said any court action against the man should be done on a federal level.

The former cabbie, Joseph R. Bohn, 38, is wanted in Canada on a charge of impersonation.

Judge Wesley E. Mellquist of the district court said Friday that "this court has no jurisdiction" in the matter. "It's up to the state department to act in a federal matter."

Mellquist said he had talked to the justice department by telephone and was told officials wanted to pursue the matter.

The judge took under advisement until Tuesday a motion to dismiss a fugitive-from-justice charge against Bohn. He freed Bohn on $25,000 personal recognizance.

ARRESTED IN MOTEL

Bohn was arrested Wednesday at a motel where he was registered with his wife.

The university announced Tuesday that a man who obtained employment last summer as a $16,000-a-year psychologist was an imposter.

A university spokesman said Bohn was dismissed and left the university April 2 after his credentials were questioned.

They said he identified himself as Martin J. Bohn Jr., the name of the chief psychologist at the U.S. reformatory at Petersburg, Va., and provided supporting credentials.

Worcester police said Bohn was born in Sheppton, Pa., and worked as a taxi driver in Worcester for several years before going to Canada.

MANPOWER ON THE MOVE

On Monday a new Industrial Employment Office will be opened at 614 Yates.

The new office will house facilities for clients seeking temporary employment, the Summer Farm Labor Office, the Student Summer Employment Office and an employment office for new immigrants.

Butchers Struggling, Too

As meat prices continue to rise, spare a thought for the butcher. He may not always seem to the customer a knight in shining apron, but he's trying to make ends meet. And, says butcher Dick Rowe, that can be a tough business.

A year ago, beef carcasses cost Rowe $59.60 per 100 pounds. Today he has to pay $65, an increase of almost 8½ per cent in 12 months.

Each carcass Rowe buys (and he reckons on 5,000 to 7,000 pounds of beef a week) has to be cut and priced in the most effective way.

Unlike many supermarkets that have no outlets for dark meat or fatty trim, Rowe's shop makes use of every possible piece of the carcass. Dark meat goes to a pet food outlet and fat is rendered down for resale to fish and chip shops. About 25 per cent of a beef carcass is unuseable bone; there just aren't enough dogs to consume that amount on a regular basis.

Contrary to widespread belief, there's no butcher conspiracy afoot to deprive deserving Canadians of their favorite meat cuts through hoisting prices. The old law of supply and demand is as much part of meat-cutting as anywhere else. Choice cuts, like the porterhouse roast or sirloin tip aren't magical outgrowths from cattle's knees; their anatomical frequency is limited and that is why they are more expensive.

The little pork chop, on the other hand, is more abundant; ground beef is the lowest common denominator of all — anatomically speaking.

But there's a catch. When the price of the whole carcass goes up, the price of the porterhouse goes out of the reach of many of us. We aim for the chop or round steak instead, thinking we're bound to get a cheaper deal. But then several other people have got exactly the same idea. So the demand increases — and with it, the price. The price of the more aristocratic cuts, temporarily out of favor, then begins to drop.

The name of the game, for the butcher, is 'dispose of the carcass'. As in all games, there's an elemtn of sacrifice. Rowe says that lamb, currently sold to him by the wholesaler at 82 cents a pound, has to be sold to the customer in some cuts at 32 cents a pound. This is to offset leg of lamb prices, currently $1.59 a pound to the customer at Rowe's shop.

Butchers, like the poor are always with us. Short of raising your own Aberdeen Angus and carving it up yourself, there's no escape. Butcher Williliam Johnston says however, that customers are often their own worst enemies.

"Some are as ignorant as Adam when it comes to choosing and even cooking meat," he says, adding that it's not just the young who suffer from this ignorance.

Johnston's business caters to many older people living on slender means and consequently ground rouhd beef, low in fat content, is in great demand.

He is sceptical about any big change in meat buying habits because of increased meat prices. "Many customers will stop buying a particular cut after the price goes up. But a few weeks later they're back on the same cut again."

Provincial Rights Act Violated Regularly

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Times Staff

A lot of British Columbia employers are innocently breaking the law.

The law, in this case, is the B.C. Human Rights Act and in particular its application to the kinds of questions employers ask prospective employees.

Jack Sherlock, director of the labor department's human rights branch, said he receives "very few" complaints from the public.

But a staff of almost 40 industrial relations officers, while making routine calls on employers checking other matters, pick up employment application forms and send them to him.

"Ninety per cent of them require corrections, they are violating conditions of the Human Rights Act," he said.

Sherlock added that many employers are violating the act quite innocently, and most of them react co-operatively when infractions are brought to their attention.

Some Incensed

But some employers get "rather incensed, especially those with a paternalistic approach, with a 'this is my family and I'll do this or not.' "

Sherlock said the common areas of infractions are:

Asking for place of birth. This is permissible only after being hired;

Name and address of "relative" in the event of an emergency. The proper question is to ask for the name and address of "a person;"

Are you a Canadian citizen is a permissible question, but asking of which country you are a citizen is not.

The thread between these and other questions is that any pre-employment inquiry is improper which is designed to elicit information as to race, religion, color, nationality or place of origin.

Sherlock says religion is a rarely-asked question, but some application forms want to know the occupation of a person's father.

"I don't know why the heck they ask that question. It's a no-no. How the dickens that is relevant to a person's ability I don't know," he said.

He says discrimination is a subjective concept, and a person turned down for a job wants to know why, "and if he is a member of a minority group he immediately latches onto that."

'Suspect' Queries

Sherlock gave these other examples of improper questions:

Any inquiry which would indicate race or color;

Inquiry into applicant's religious denomination, religious affiliations, church, parish, pastor, or religious holidays observed;

Any inquiry under "education" which would indicate nationality, racial or religious affiliation of a school. But an inquiry into schools attended was proper;

Requirement that applicant list all organizations, clubs, societies and lodges to which he belongs. But it was proper to make an inquiry into memberships including professional, scientific and civic groups but excluding any organization, the name or character of which indicates the race, religious, color, national origin or ancestry of its members;

An inquiry into an applicant's "general" military service was improper, but an inquiry into his military experience in Canada was proper.

It was also a proper pre-employment inquiry to ask the person if he has been convicted of any crime, and if so, where and disposition of the case.

Excesses Fill Hospitals

EDMONTON (CP) — Society is condoning and encouraging the four common causes of at least half of today's illnesses, Dr. J. A. L. Gilbert of Edmonton told a research symposium this week.

He said the public is aware that smoking, obesity, inactivity and excessive consumption of alcohol is dangerous, but ignores the fact.

"The annual consumption of food, drink and tabocco continues to rise on a per-capita basis as does the time spent in such inactivities as watching television."

Dr. Gilbert said /consumption of mood-altering medicines is also on the rise.

"Changing the moods of society is big business — very big business." The Alberta government's sale of $159 million worth of alcoholic beverages last year resulted in a profit of $56 million, he said. But only $1.2 million was allotted to the Alberta Alcoholism and Drug Abuse Commission.

Dr. Gilbert said about $3 million is spent in Alberta annually admitting patients with alcohol problems.

"These figures for alcoholism may be unrealistically low" because it is difficult to obtain accurate information.

Drug violations in the city have increased to 635 in 1971 from 17 in 1966, he said. Preliminary results of a study at the Royal Alexandra Hospital indicate that at least one in five people questioned in the emergency room had recently taken some legal drug — either an over-the-counter drug or a prescription drug.

"If the present alcohol and drug situation was due to a disease such as pollo, a national emergency would be called."

Home Economics Grads Face Bleak Future

CALGARY (CP) — Only half of those graduating in household economics from the University of Albetta will find jobs in the field, an assistant professor at the faculty said Friday.

Elizabeth Richards told a conference of Alberta home economists that only two of the 99 graduates had jobs waiting, another 10 would likely be hired by the department of agriculture and another 26 would find traditional jobs.

The remainder would likely join the graduates of the previous year and drift into work which paid about $250 a month.

Complaints were voiced during the two-day conference that industry had not opened jobs to home economists even though they were capable of handling vital concerns such as consumer complaints, liaison and quality testing of foods, products and garments.

Doris Anderson, editor of Chatelaine, said it was time for home economists to plan housing, design stoves and test fabric wearability. Such jobs now are done by men who have little practical experience in these fields with women promoting the product, writing the cookbook or pamphlet or selling the idea.

Doing The Town

With DOROTHY FRASER

Walking in the rain . . .

"Walking (singing?) in the Rain" . . . "Rain Drops Falling on My Shoulders" . . . Great songs, both . . . but the reality can be less than enthralling unless you're dressed in such a manner as to keep dry . . . and, hopefully, smart-looking, don't you agree? . . . Anyway, with all these April showers going on, we thought you'd like to know about Wilson's very good collection of rain and all-weather coats . . . There are Aquascutums, from England . . . Classic tailored styles in beige, gold, blue, red, navy . . . as well as houndstooth checks with silver buttons . . . and there's just no way you can beat Aquascutums for good looks and long wear . . . No gimmicks, but always smart! . . . We like the Swiss raincoats with the Croydor label too . . . They come in several very attractive styles, fabrics and colors . . . One is a washable silky textured cotton and polyester . . . very light weight . . . with double back yoke for extra protection . . . Soft green or a nice shade of blue . . . Others in a slightly heavier fabric are belted and have double yokes and inverted back pleats . . . Gay seersuckers, too . . . and a striking linen weave with separate shoulder cape with hood attached to it . . . W & J Wilson Limited, 1221 Government St., 383-7177.

Never store suede or leather garments in plastic bags. Like furs, they must have air circulation to keep from drying out.

Choice new pieces for pottery lovers . . .

We constantly amaze ourself . . . as we hope we impress you . . . with the way we rattle off names like Kakinuma . . . Carol Southward . . . and others of that ilk . . . All comes from our frequent visits to the Handloom where choice examples of these potters' works are to be found . . . This week we were on hand for the unpacking of some new Kakinumas . . . A pair of figures called "Child and Cat" and "Child and Dog" are delightful . . . There are two red fish . . . a circle of brown birds . . . little red hens . . . owls . . . . and an amusing and whimsical "Sitting owl bird" . . . owl's head on a bird's body . . . A real cutie! Carol Southward's canisters are lovely . . . Labeled for tea, coffee, honey . . . but you can order any name you like . . . $6, $8 and $10 each . . . Same thing for the little spice jars which look like old stone bottles . . . $4 . . . And The Handloom can order you a big jar for keeping Crunchy Granola, along with recipe for cooking it . . . Saw covered jam jars in green and white and blue and white, and a lovely hot chocolate or coffee pot with cork top by Fay Tevendale . . . a new potter with a new and interesting approach to decoration . . . Some brand new Ian Steele salt glazes . . . jugs, mugs, sugars and creams, etc. . . . The Handloom, 625 Trounce Alley, 384-1011, and Empress Hotel, 384-1518.

Jerry Silverman's day clothes have a finished look which precludes all extra adornment, including jewellery.

Getting in the swim . . .

It won't be long before it's swimming weather . . . not to mention all the indoor pool swimming that goes on year-round . . . so that swimwear is no longer a seasonal thing . . . yet just try to find really snazzy suits most of the time! . . . But if you drop in to the Unicorn right now . . . you'll find a collection of bikinis to knock your eye out! . . . Little cotton knit Unicorn bikinis with halter bras without padding of any kind . . . Nothing but you inside . . . and the next best thing to actual skinny dipping, we should think! . . . These exclusives come in assorted colors, and cost a mere $5.95 . . . Great for the young and slender! . . . Another line of bikinis is imported from Finland . . . also made without padding . . . Soft as a kitten's ear, but real sharp looking! . . . So are the hand-crocheted bikini suits likewise exclusive to the Unicorn . . . White or black acrylic yarn in a lacey pattern . . . Another style crocheted in natural string . . . But Unicorn's swimwear is not all confined to the sylph-like . . . For more mature figures there are smart, quick-drying one-piece suits in various prints and colors . . . with padded bras to supply the lift some of us need . . . The Unicorn, 658 View St., 385-5114.

Book lovers, here's news! . . .

One of the most eagerly-awaited books in years . . . certainly here in Victoria where the author lives . . . is Agnes Newton Keith's first novel . . . Entitled "Beloved Exiles," it's an absorbing story set in North Borneo . . . the land Mrs. Keith knows so well and loves so greatly . . . Hot off the presses, it's at the Book Nook right now . . . priced at $9 . . . Another exciting literary event is publication of a new Paul Gallico . . . "The Zoo Gang" . . . $7.95 . . . We saw both these new books the other day, as well as several other terrific new books . . . "The Origin of Place Names in Canada" . . . a classic that's been out of print for years, now re-issued in its original form . . . $8.95 . . . Captain T. Walbran's "British Columbia Coast Names, Their Origin and History," which B.C. Motorist refers to as "A treasure re-discovered" . . . $12.50 . . . Two books by Victoria author R. M. Patterson . . . "Finlay's River" and "The Buffalo Head" appear in soft cover for the first time after a long period of being out of print . . . Just $3.95 . . . And speaking of paperbacks . . . "Guests Never Leave Hungry," the excellent autobiography of Kwakiutl Chief James Sewid . . . has just appeared in soft cover at $3.95 . . . in paperback . . . The Book Nook, 10 Centennial Square, 386-0813.

She'd Be Happier If He Stayed Home

EL LAGO, Tex. (UPI) — When Dorothy Duke got married she thought her husband would stop all this flying foolishness and settle down in to sensible work like his father's insurance business.

"I really wasn't interested in Charlie getting a job like this," said Mrs. Duke as she relaxed in a lawn chair in her shady backyard a few blocks away from the manned spacecraft centre.

The pretty blonde reached over to her youngest son, Tom, 4, who had just been clobbered by a swing, and patted him on the head.

"Gosh, when they sent Alan Shepard up into space, on that first space flight, I thought to have sent up a married man was horrible," she said.

"When they selected that first Apollo crew, I thought, how could they have selected married men? They should have selected bachelors because everyone of them's not going to come back."

He'll Go to Moon

Her husband, Charles W. Duke Jr., became an astronaut in 1966 and Mrs. Duke said her six-year involvement with the space program has convinced her he will make a safe journey to the moon this month and become the 10th man to walk the lunar surface.

Duke is the lunar module pilot on Apollo 16.

"Things go in stages," said Dotty, the name she prefers. "When we first got married, if he had said he was going to the moon, I would have gone berserk. But he was in test pilot school then at Edwards Air Force Base and, golly, he was either going to wind up in Vietnam or was going to be testing airplanes."

Charles and Dorothy met in Boston where she was working and attending school. She had just received a bachelor's degree from the University of North Carolina. She was an art major.

The Dukes were married in 1963.

Mrs. Duke designed a decorative pin with a space motif and her husband is taking it, along with a little ring, to the moon.

She said she was happy her husband was going to the moon but would be happier still if he was home with her, Tom and their 7-year-old son, Charlie, fishing on their flatbottom boat.

'Stuck in Orbit'

She also said she was glad her husband was going to the lunar surface and would not become the third man — the astronaut stuck in lunar orbit while his two shipmates explore the moon's crust.

"I know if I were going, I'd want to go all the way, just as he does. Anybody would. You try to play it down a little bit because you feel sorry for the guy stuck up there in orbit."

Mrs. Duke said she, her sons, her parents, his parents and other relatives will watch Sunday's launch from Cape Kennedy.

The former Elizabeth Dailey, now the wife of Apollo 16 command module pilot Thomas K. Mattingly, did not plan to go to the Cape for the launch. Friends said Mrs. Mattingly is pregnant with the couple's first child.

Joining Mrs. Duke at the Cape to view the liftoff will be wife of Apollo 16 commander John W. Young, the former Susy Feldman. Young's former wife Barbara and their two children, Sandy, 14, and John, 13, of Jacksonville, Fla., plan to be at the Cape for the launch.

dear abby

Daughter Excluded

DEAR ABBY: I am a widow with a son and daughter. My son is being married in a few months and my daughter has not been included in the wedding party. Naturally, she is very hurt and so am I.

I spoke to my son about it, and he said it's up to the bride's family to decide on all that, so he is staying out of it. The bride's sister will be her maid of honor, and the other girls in the wedding party are all friends and relatives of the bride.

My daughter is tall, attractive, single, and 23. When she realized that she wasn't going to be in the wedding party she was so humiliated that she made plans to be out of town.

Now, do you want a good laugh? When my son said his girl wanted a fancy wedding but her people couldn't afford it, I offered to pay for it. So now I am footing the bill for a wedding and reception for 150 guests!

Had I known things would turn out this way I never would have offered to pay for it. I think I will just tell my son that now he can pay for it. And I will also leave town.

I would like your advice, Abby. — Hurt Mother.

DEAR MOTHER: It is difficult to believe that the bride and her family are not aware that they have hurt your daughter by excluding her from the wedding party. But it's possible. Leave your son out of it, but ask the bride to please reconsider and include your daughter. But don't feel that because you offered to foot the bill they are obligated to include her. And for you to now refuse to foot the bill for that reason, would be wrong.

CONFIDENTIAL to D.D.W: There is a solution for every problem. Sometimes the solution is to accept that which cannot be changed. In other words, if you pick a lemon, make a lemonade.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Forecast for Sunday, April 16, 1972
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21 - April 19): Messages exhibit tendency to be misinterpreted, and to get into wrong hands. Key is to be meticulous about details. Avoid unnecessary risks — and this applies to driving as well as communications.

TAURUS (April 20 - May 20): Guard possessions. Don't fall prey to "con game." Know what you need and find out how to get it. Smooth talker has ideas about parting you from valuables. Realize this and respond accordingly.

GEMINI (May 21 - June 20): You will be given additional assignment, responsibility. Accept with proviso that legal documents are in order. Do some personal checking. Patch up family, marital differences. Restore harmony.

CANCER (June 21 - July 22): Degree of seclusion now would be desirable. Don't make yourself too available. Elusive course will pay dividends. Meditation could resolve what appears to be a dead end. Pisces may be in picture.

LEO (July 23 - Aug. 22): Friends may make unusual demands. Be patient, not weak. Be firm in sticking to principles. Don't get involved in dispute which is not actually your concern. Older individual is bluffing. Respond accordingly.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22): You require information. Solid ground is necessary, but elusive. Finish what has been left over from recent past. Avoid appearing overanxious. Deal with Aries person. Don't paint yourself into proverbial corner.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22): Hold off on travel. Check messages, quotations. Take a more independent stance. Don't reveal your doubts, apprehensions. Stand tall. Your philosphy is put to test. Co-operate with Leo individual.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 - Nov. 21): Keep close eye on budget. Find way of determining costs, income potential. Your intuitive intellect comes into play. You are able to size up situations, persons. You will perceive correct moves, actions.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 - Dec. 21): Lie low. Let others show their hands. Listen and observe. Aura of illusion persists. People who seem definite in purpose may actually be indecisive. Special relationships is put to test. You may have to compromise.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19): Steady pace is required, devoid of sensationalism. Be aware of details. Study fine points. Organizational dispute could command your attention. Remain aloof from petty jealousies, rivalries.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18): Be ready for changes, surprise moves involving friends. Young person acts in impulsive manner. Don't compound error. Think before taking action. Review costs, promises and budget. Answers are obtainable.

PISCES (Feb. 19 - March 20): Adjustment occurs in domestic area. Discomfort is but temporary. Know this and respond accordingly. Don't try to make something of nothing. Taurus and Libra persons play significant roles.

Forecast for Mon., April 17, 1972

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Take special care while in proximity of machinery. Avoid trying to go too fast too soon. Relatives may be in mood to do battle. Know this and act accordingly. Put ideas to work. Stop procrastinating.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Be wary concerning hidden charges, special interest rates. Family member may be dominated by emotion, not logic. Be a comparison shopper. Genuine bargain is available. Investigate; give free rein to curiosity.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Take action — get off sidelines and into game. Push ahead. Cycle is high and personal magnetism soars. Pisces person plays key role. Look beneath surface indications. By taking initiative, you succeed.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Event from your past may streak to forefront. Maintain balance. Remain on conservative course. Don't give up something for mere promise. One who is older observes and grades your efforts. You will understand.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Be aggressive in taking steps to fulfill desires. Let go of past. Now you can make your future bright. Key is to broaden horizons. Get rid of burden which is not your own. Friend is due to repay a favor.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Action occurs in career area. Your ambitions are activated. Leo could play significant role. Investment procedures are questioned. Professional associate is willing to aid. Don't let pride block progress.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22): Communications log jam is erased. You are able to overcome obstacles. Added knowledge provides key. Mate, partner is involved. Hunch leads you to heart of matter. Orthodox procedures fall short of mark.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Shake off tendency to be overly serious. Dispute over money does have its funny, even ridiculous side. Admit this and fore of problem will dissolve. Sagittarius may be involved. Laugh at your own foibles.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Give Scorpio benefit of doubt. This clears air and you will be happier. Affair of heart is accented. Give yourself opportunity to express feelings. Apparent setback could boomerang in your favor.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Attention centres on property, home, area of confinement or restriction. Get viewpoint across. Establish line of communication. Co-operate with Gemini, Virgo individuals. Obtain production, building costs.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Emotions dominate. Tendency is to act on impulse. Have fun without being foolish. Accede to request of young person without being extravagant. Family member plays paramount role. Be diplomatic.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Strife may involve one who is stubborn, determined, set in ways. You see clearly. You no longer wish to be pushed, chided or dominated. Matter can be settled — and you can also make financial coup!

On urban expressways tailgating causes more injuries and deaths than any other bad driving habit. Many of these accidents can be prevented, if the driver observes a few basic rules.

Always drive defensively and expect the worst from other drivers.

If you are driving at the speed limit and a tailgater wants to overtake you, pull over as soon as you can and let him pass. Let the police catch him for speeding.

Avoid Rear End Collisions, a 6-page folder, also stresses that stopping is never as easy as it seems. It depends on many factors, incuding speed, reaction time, road surface, tires and brakes.

Killer Potential of Women Debated

NEW YORK (AP) — If a woman can carry a baby, the groceries or the office files, can she carry a rifle in combat as well?

Women's fitness for the battlefield comes up for new debate now that an amendment to the United States constitution granting women equal rights has been passed by Congress. If ratified by 38 states, it will make women subject to the military draft and possibly combat duty.

The official military position is a cautious one. In a recent statement, Brig.-Gen. Mildred C. Bailey, director of the U.S. Women's Army Corps, declined to speculate on what combat duties women in the army might be assigned.

"However, I am sure that the army would be guided by the same fundamental policy that it now uses in assignment of duties to men, which is that duties assigned must be commensurate with each individual's physical and mental capacity," said Gen. Bailey.

Privately, some male soldiers say they'd really rather let the men throw the grenades and build the bunkers.

Some psychiatrists, however, see no reason why women, simply because they are female, can't be trained to kill.

"Women don't take to killing comfortably, bet then no one really does," says Dr. Leon Salzman, a clinical professor of psychiatry at the Albert Einstein medical school in New York. "I think women would make very effective killers if they get the same kind of training our Vietnam soldiers do.

"I have never believed that women by their nature are softer or more sentimental. It really is a matter of cultural training. Women could be trained just like men to despise and kill the enemy."

Professional soldiers argue that women simply haven't the physical strength for enduring 60 days in the field with 90-pound packs on their backs. Salzman agrees, but adds, "Most modern weaponry requires simply pressing a button. Women have proved to be fine marksmen and have good co-ordination. They also seem less distraught at the sight of blood."

Dr. Estelle Ramey, a professor of physiology and biophysics at the Georgetown University school of medicine, agrees that women could be capable of combat duty.

"Women have proved to be better able than men to survive chronic psychological stress. And history shows that in defending themselves, women can fight like tigers."

Throughout the world in history, women have fought bravely alongside men.

Augustina Domonech, the Maid of Saragossa, a Spanish heroine, was immortalized by Lord Byron in Childe Harold's Pilgrimage.

Today, Viet Cong women have been known to lead companies in battle. Women in Ireland are learning the guerrilla tactics of the IRA. And in Israel, though women are not usually sent into combat, many female soldiers have seen more than their share of the fighting.

Doctor Mixes Bible, Play

HALIFAX (CP) — Dr. Helen Hunter, a pediatrician at the Izaak Walton Killam Hospital for Children here, also conducts a Sunday school class in the hospital's playroom. About 40 children of all denominations, some on crutches and some in wheelchairs, sing hymns and listen to Bible stories during the 45-minute Sunday morning class. Besides pediatric duties at the hospital, Dr. Hunter also has a private practice in the city.

Child Poisonings Often Suicidally Motivated—Study

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A study of 1,100 cases of child poisoning revealed that only 13 per cent were accidental while a majority were suicide attempts or suicidal "gestures" to gain sympathy and attention, a psychiatrist says.

The analysis was made by Dr. Robert Litman, professor of psychiatry at the University of Southern California School of Medicine and a co-director of the Los Angeles Suicide Prevention Center.

Litman said that while the public believes most child poisonings are accidental, his survey showed that 26 per cent were actual attempts at suicide and another 48 per cent suicidal "gestures." He said 13 per cent were attributed to drug trips.

"It is estimated that there are more than 100,000 self-poisonings in this country involving children between 6 and 17," Litman said.

"It has been found that 34 per cent of the children came from broken homes and a history of significant emotional stress at the time of poisoning was obtained from 43 per cent of the 6-to-10 year olds and from 78 per cent of those over 10."

The basic cause of self-poisoning in the very young is a sense of abandonment or rejection by parents, Litman said. He said younger children have no real concept of death which seems to promise a reunion with their mother and father.

Some Surgery Patients Recall Despite Anesthetic

MONTREAL (CP) — Researchers have found that one to 1.3 per cent of all surgical patients are aware of the progress of their operations while under anesthesia and recall it later, Dr. William MacDonald, associate professor of anesthesia at the University of Saskatchewan, said Friday.

In a paper presented to the International Sleep Symposium, Dr. MacDonald said that while patients who experience awareness during surgery do not find the experience painful, doctors should watch what they say in the operating room.

During anesthesia, he explained, patients may not interpret remarks in the same way they would if fully conscious and "comments which might ordinarily be looked upon philosophically by the patient may be accepted rather literally."

"... If you do anticipate a possible light patient who may be particularly aware of sound," Dr. MacDonald advised doctors at the symposium, "the patient should be forewarned, or at least in some manner have explained to him that he may be aware of a few things as he wakes up, but that this is not that abnormal and is something that he would not be too frightened about."

In a study at the University of Saskatchewan, five of 15 patients undergoing heart surgery where anesthesia was kept as light as possible were found to have recall. One remembered the saw splitting his sternum which he described as unpleasant but not painful.

Another recalled the discomfort of repeated attempts by doctors to stop his heart from fibrillating (beating convulsively) after being taken off the heart-lung bypass machine.

In no case, he said, did any patient complain of sharp dissection or stretching of tissue.

In another experiment described by Dr. MacDonald, a physician put a fellow doctor into a surgical plane of anesthesia with ether and asked him questions repetitively.

The patient recalled 60 to 80 per cent of the questions asked. It was also noted the patient became more tolerant of the anesthetic as time passed.

In a 1969 British study, 150 obstetrical patients, a majority of whom had undergone caesarian section, were interviewed. Two per cent had factual recall of the operation, 17.3 per cent had unpleasant recall and 6.6 per cent recalled pain.

Palace Intrigue Hinted in Tehran Shuffle

Military Coup in Pakistan After Dacca Debacle?

By RALPH JOSEPH
CP Correspondent

TEHRAN (CP) — While the clamor from all shades of political opinion in Pakistan continues to grow in favor of lifting martial law and convening the national assembly, one story that has been circulating in the country for some time is that President Zulfiqar Ali Bhutto came to power in a palace coup by a group of military officers.

According to a version that has reached Tehran, Gen. Yahya Khan's officers were divided into three groups, in the wake of the defeat of the Pakistan army in Dacca. One group, which included Lt.-Gen. S. G. M. M. Pirzada, wanted Yahya to remain in power. A second favored replacing Yahya by his chief of staff, Gen. Abdul Hamid Khan. A third group, which eventually won out in a showdown at the presidential palace, was for putting Bhutto in power.

RETAINED POST

An interesting aspect of the story is that Lt.-Gen. Tikka Khan of East Pakistan fame is reported to have been shot and wounded in the showdown. Tikka Khan is reported to have belonged to the group that favored making Bhutto president. Other prominent members were Air Marshal Rahim Khan, the air force commander-in-chief, and Lt.-Gen. Gul Hassan.

While Rahim Khan has since retained his post as air force chief, Gul Hassan has been appointed commander-in-chief of the army "for a period of three years." Lt.-Gen. Tikka Khan has not since been heard of, but Gul Hassan has not been promoted to full general on being made chief.

Gen. Abdul Hamid Khan and Lt.-Gen. Pirzada are both reported to be under arrest, as Yahya is, and lost their jobs in the purge that followed the coup.

But if Bhutto is allowing himself to be used as a front man by a group of officers, his role would be similar at least in one aspect to that of Yahya in the early part of his reign. Yahya is reported to have been used by former president Ayub Khan as a front man in the first few weeks after Ayub left the stage, and only began taking an independent line on prodding from a former air force chief, Air Marshal Nur Khan, and Lt.-Gen. Pirzada.

DANGER GROWS

Meanwhile, the more Bhutto postpones convening the assembly and lifting martial law, the more dangerous the political situation within the country is likely to become. This is underlined by reports that the People's Guards, the muscles branch of the Pakistan People's Party, were told by their chief in a recent meeting that they would be required to "keep arms". The People's Guards organization is headed by a retired army officer, Maj. - Gen. Akbar Khan, who was purged as far back as 1950 after an abortive pro-Communist plot against then prime minister Liaquat Ali Khan. Akbar Khan now is "national security adviser" to President Bhutto.

The message was by no means lost on burly Pathan leader Khan Abdul Wali Khan, president of what remains of the National Awami Party which is not to be confused with the Awami League in East Pakistan. Amost simultaneous with Akbar Khan's call, Wali Khan began organizing a group he calls the "Pakhtoon Zalma"—young Pakhtoon sons. Wali Khan, who has styled himself "commander-in-chief" of the Pakhtoon Zalma, now is in the process of appointing group "commanders" in various regions of the country.

Wali Khan has made it plain that the Pakhtoon Zalma were being organized in answer to Bhutto's People's Guards.

He ominiously reminded Bhutto by proxy that "there are millions of people" in the (North West) Frontier who already know how to use arms. Wali Khan was referring to Pathan and Baluchi tribesmen who normally go about armed even in times of peace. The chilling implication seemed to be that the movement for "Pakhtoonistan", launched by Wali Khan's father Khan Abdul Ghaffar Khan in the 1950s, could become a mass uprising, reminiscent of what happened in East Pakistan only recently.

HAD AFGHAN HELP

Pakhtoonistan has in the past been variously described as an "autonomous" or even "independent" Pathan (Pakhtoon) state to be carved out of Pakistan's North West Frontier province. The movement has in the past been supported by Afghanistan and some versions of it include Baluchistan province, to the south.

Both territories are mountainous and would make excellent guerrilla country, and in both places the National Awami Party beat Bhutto's party in the national assembly elections and has majorities in the unconvened provincial assemblies.

A former attempt at Baluchi independence was brutally suppressed in 1958 when the Khan of Kalat in the south raised his flag against the Pakistan army. But the poorly armed Baluchi warriors were no match for the tanks and automatic weapons of the professional army. Significantly, Gen. Tikka Khan was in command of that operation also—whence his nickname "the butcher of Baluchistan".

Hey! 15 Million Years Lost

HONOLULU (AP) — Scientists probing the ocean floor in search of clues to the past have surfaced a fascinating mystery: some 15 million years of history appear to be missing.

If they can find out why, they believe they can better explain how Australia broke off from Antarctica about 50 million years ago and gain new knowledge of an area where contrary geological motions still cause earthquakes and volcanic activity.

Drilling in the ocean floor east of Australia, scientists found a gap in the sedimentary records of the Tasman and Coral seas, beginning about 45 million years ago and ending 30 million years ago.

"There is a big gap in the sediments for no obvious, or immediately obvious, reason," Jams E. Andrews, an oceanographer at the University of Hawaii Institute of Geophysics, said in an interview.

THINKS AREA WAS SEA

Andrews believes the area was a shallow sea during the 15 million "missing" years, and ocean currents scoured away the sediment. If his theory is correct, Andrews said drillers should find a similar, though more recent, gap in the sediments south of Australia.

Australia, New Zealand and New Guinea now are drifting north one or two inches a year, while the Pacific Ocean floor is moving west toward New Zealand.

Sedimentary evidence confirmed that New Zealand broke away from the Antarctica-Australia land mass more than 70 million years ago, and the break between Australia and Antarctica was far enough along to allow ocean currents between the continents by 40 million years ago, Andrews said.

The northward drift will continue until the Australia-New Zealand-New Guinea mass collides with Borneo, Andrews said, but that event is more than just a few years away.

"Say 30 to 40 million years," he said.

Festival Piano Competition Keen

By AUDREY JOHNSON

It is not a dozen years since the Victoria Music Festival on more than one occasion found difficulty in mounting a City of Victoria Medallion piano championship contest.

There simply were no pianists who had in truth achieved the required standard.

Friday night a well filled Fellowship Hall, five pianists — two young men and three girls — played major works so well that the adjudicators had a thorny problem in deciding on a winner.

In the end, Allen Reisler who played a Bach Partita with great beauty of tone and brilliance, was awarded the Medallion, the $125 Kiwanis Club of Saanich bursary and was named as senior entrant in the provincial championships.

Fifteen pianists ranging in age from seven-year-old Geoffrey Jay to girls and boys in their late teens, performed in three other championship classes.

Winner of the junior championship and the J. F. K. English Music Festival award of $50, was Rebecca Staples. The five others, all winners in various classes throughout the week, were Geoffrey Jay, Tania Horgan, Angela Carter, Gloria Wong and Susan Geddes.

In the intermediate pianoforte championship, Roger Scobie was selected by Donald Francke and John Simons to receive the Edith E. Ellis Music Festival award of $75. He was also named as entrant in the Provincial Junior Championship class.

Walter Prossnitz, Joanne Dunkin, Jean MacRae and Valerie Hampton were runners-up.

Competing for the Victoria Musical Art Society Bursary of $100 in the senior championship class were Susan Patterson, Lorna Paterson, Jocelyn Abbott and Angela Brigden. Angela was chosen for the award.

In naming the winners, John Simons commented on the impressive standard of piano work he and Francke had found in this city and said that the musicianship was strikingly superior both from a point of view of talent and the quality of the teaching.

Bursary awards of $25 each were made during the evening to Jim Picken, Allen Reiser, Sydney Condrashoff, Lorna Paterson, Mary Chard, Angela Brigden, Joanne Dunkin and Susan de Burgh and duettists Susan Pappajohn and Irene Kunda.

The Stanley Shale bursary of $25 went to Kwok May-ling and the Henry Birks watch to Walter Prossnitz. British Columbia Registered Music Teachers Association (Victoria Branch) awards were made to Jean MacRae and Lusien Sitwell.

ALLEN REISER is the winner of the City of Victoria Medallion awarded for piano competitions at the Victoria Music Festival. His performance also won for him the Kiwanis Club of Saanich bursary and he was named as a senior entrant in provincial competition.

New Headmaster Named

A Victoria native and University of British Columbia associate professor has been appointed headmaster of Shawnigan Lake School.

Hugh C. Wilkinson, 48, has specialized in operational research, business policy and labor relations at UBC's commerce faculty. He will take up his duties July 1, replacing L. P. MacLachlan.

A Shawnigan "old boy," Wilkinson attended the school from 1937 to 1940.

His academic qualifications include a master of business administration from University of Washington, and a master of science, college of aeronautics, Cranfield, England, 1970. Wilkinson is also a member of the professional engineers association of B.C.

Board Secretary To New Post

NANAIMO — The secretary-treasurer of the Nanaimo school board has resigned after 12 years in the position to take a job with the Victoria Diocese of the Anglican Church.

James McPherrin will take up his new post as director of finance and administration for the diocese June 1.

He does not know exactly what the job entails but said he had always wanted a church position, but not as a minister or church secretary.

Business Woes Plague Prairie Legislatures

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Business troubles bothered three provincial legislatures Friday.

Alberta worried over effects of losses suffered by McIntyre Porcupine Mines Ltd. in its coal-selling operations to Japan.

Manitoba members heard the NDP government was unwisely involved with an aircraft company.

At Edmonton, Industry Minister Fred Peacock said McIntyre Porcupine is "unquestionably in serious trouble," losing $7 million last year on its Alberta coal operations.

He said this would have a serious effect on Grand Cache, Alta., a company town of 3,000 and on a government-financed railway built to haul the coal to the CNR main line. The company has experienced a number of strikes and rising production costs.

(However, in its annual report the company, which has properties in Ontario, New Brunswick, Manitoba and British Columbia, and a 37-per-cent interest in Falconbridge Nickel Mines Ltd., reported a net loss for 1971 of $3,061,000, including a loss of $7,176,000 in Alberta. Falconbridge earnings were more than halved, compared with 1970.)

PROVINCE PAYS OFF

Opposition Leader D. G. Steuart, primarily responsible for the mill when he was provincial treasurer in the former Liberal government, said the mill should proceed and "it was a sad day for Saskatchewan when the government cancelled the deal. . . . It has told the people of the north to stay on welfare."

At Winnipeg, Opposition member Ed McGill (PC Brandon West) said the government is "flying in the face" of economic advisers in its involvement with Gimli-based Saunders Aircraft Ltd.

Mr. McGill, a former airport manager, said the company has a bleak future and estimated the province through loans and equity has put more than $3 million in the plant.

His criticisms were dismissed by Industry Minister Leonard Evans, who said Saunders, as a high-wage, high technology and low-pollution industry, is the kind of development the government most wants to attract.

Parole for Cini?

CALGARY (CP) — Paul Joseph Cini, given four concurrent life sentences and three other prison terms this week for hijacking an airplane, will be eligible for parole in seven years, the chairman of the national parole board said Friday.

George Street told a news conference "he will not be paroled if we feel he's dangerous."

★ ★ ★

Prisoners Sit

PEACE RIVER, Alta. (CP) — The correctional institute has returned to normal operation following a sit-down protest by 67 prisoners which started Tuesday, Warden R. O. Desrochers said Friday.

The warden said the protest was organized by about six "ringleaders" and involved 15 demands, all of which were "unreasonable." The demands included sleeping later in the mornings, permission to grow beards, extended recreational hours and a general relaxation of rules.

★ ★ ★

Couple Cranky

BRIERCREST, Sask. (CP) — After 40 years of service as the operators of the local telephone switchboard, Mr. and Mrs. Alex Boan are somewhat cranky about the introduction of dial service.

The coming of dial telephone to this small community 30 miles southeast of Moose Jaw wasn't progress for the Boans who had operated the local switchboard since the 1930s. The dial phone which replaced the "crank" phone in their home didn't work. They were forced to use a pay telephone in a booth in front of the new mobile exchange unit standing beside their home — the old telephone office.

Fewer Farms

MOOSE JAW (CP) — The number of farm units surrounding this city are steadily declining and this will continue as existing farms enlarge their operations and fewer young people want to start farming, Prof. George Lee of the University of Saskatchewan said Friday.

This was one of the findings made in a five-month study of the 4,900-square-mile area containing 2,282 farms in the 14 rural municipalities surrounding Moose Jaw.

★ ★ ★

Buses Studied

CALGARY (CP) — The city may follow Regina's lead and start a dial-a-bus system, Utilities Commissioner George Cornish said.

Radio-dispatched buses responding to phone calls would pick up passengers at their front doors and carry them to terminals on the Blue Arrow bus express system, described as a forerunner of a Calgary rapid transit system. Express buses will run at six-minute intervals on special buses-only lanes.

★ ★ ★

Patronage Charged

REGINA (CP) — The Liberal opposition Thursday accused the New Democratic Party government of political patronage in the appointment of government bull buyers.

Opposition members said in the legislature that three out of six bull buyers were NDP constituency presidents. The buyers purchase bulls for crown-operated pastures.

PERSPECTIVES AND PREJUDICES

Jewish Author Recommended Reading

By REV. J. A. DAVIDSON

Rabbi Abraham Joshua Heschel, Professor of Ethics and Mysticism at New York's Jewish Theological Seminary, is, in my judgment, one of the authentically great religious writers of our time. Christians should read Heschel. Reading him will not only help them to new awareness of the inner depths of the faith of their Jewish neighbors, but will also give them new insights into roots of their own faith.

Heschel belongs to the Conservative wing of Judaism, but I can report that I began my reading of his books some years ago on the recommendation of two friends of mine, one an Orthodox rabbi and the other a Reform rabbi — men not inclined to see eye-to-eye on contemporary Jewish theology. Heschel is able to transcend most differences in Jewish thought, and yet, without in any way watering down his Judaism for Christian consumption, he has made a great appeal to many Christian thinkers. An appreciative brief study of his thought, The Promise of Heschel, was written by a Lutheran theologian, Franklin Sherman. (It is available in paperback.)

The primary purpose in his books is the delineation of the inner dynamic of Judaism, which he finds in the great prophetic perspectives of the Old Testament. This prophetic heritage, in which Jesus firmly stood, is one of the roots of Christian faith — even though Christians are sometimes inclined to take a rather condescending attitude toward it.

Heschel comes from Germany, and his first wife and children were victims of the Nazi terror. A friend of mine who knows him tells me that he speaks with a very strong accent. But he writes excellent, if sometimes convoluted, English, with color and great vigor. He is not always easy reading, but he is generally clear and exact without being pedantic.

If you wish to read Heschel you could begin with Man Is Not Alone. You then could try God in Search of Man. Or it might be better to begin with the collection of essays published under the title, The Insecurity of Freedom. These books are all available in paperback.

"The grand premise of religion is that man is able to surpass himself. Such ability is the essence of freedom."

"Well-adjusted people think that faith is an answer to all human problems. In truth, however, faith is a challenge to all human answers."

★ ★ ★

"It is a most significant fact that man is not sufficient to himself, that life is not meaningful to him unless it is serving an end beyond itself, unless it is of value to someone else."

"Happiness may be defined as the certainty of being needed."

Kiwis Endorse Rock Musical

AUCKLAND (CP) — In what is claimed to be a historic decision, a jury in New Zealand has declared the rock musical Hair to be not indecent.

The trial judge himself, in his summing up, acknowledged that the jury by its decision would to some extent be setting theatre standards.

New Zealand in the past has been somewhat more liberal in its censorship practices than nearby Australia—much to the mortification of Australians who like to consider themselves more sophisticated than New Zealanders.

The book Portnoy's Complaint, for instance, was freed for sale in New Zealand while banned in Australia. Numerous films banned or severely cut in Australia have been passed by the New Zealand censor.

However, Hair was staged without interference for a season of nearly three years in Australia.

But when the show opened in Auckland, morality campaigners were determined to make it a test case.

EDITOR TESTIFIES

Maintenance of stage standards is governed by a section of the Crimes Act relating to indecency and Harry M. Miller Attractions Ltd., the company presenting the show, was charged under this act with presenting an indecent show.

The defence responded with opinions of newspaper critics, playwrights, ministers of religion, a member of the cast of Hair and others.

The jury went to see the show after the first day of the four-day hearing.

Neither side made a great issue of the celebrated nude scene. Attention was mainly on use of four-letter words and simulated sex and drug taking.

The case did not interfere with the presentation of Hair. It continued showing to packed houses throughout the preliminary proceedings and the trial.

The verdict is being widely taken as opening the way for other advanced live theatre shows in New Zealand.

Former Pastor to Speak At Central Baptist

Preacher at all services on Sunday at Central Baptist Church will be Rev. John M. Moore, former pastor and now superintendent of Carruber's Close Mission, Edinburgh, Scotland.

At the 9:45 a.m. adult Bible class he will speak on Great Coming Events, at 11 a.m., The Accomplishments of Christ and at 7 p.m., The Divine Liberator.

At a special Bible Teaching Ministry starting on Thursday, April 20, the speaker will be Dr. Robert G. Lee of Memphis, Tennessee.

Aged 85, Dr. Lee was for 30 years pastor of the great Bellevue Baptist Church at Memphis, one of the largest churches in the Southern Baptist Convention.

He will preach at 8 p.m. on Thursday, Friday and Saturday next week and on Sunday, April 23, at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m.

Albert Hall Bans Pop Concerts

LONDON (AP) — Pop concerts have been banned from London's Albert Hall because the popsters cause too much chaos.

Administrators of the big hall, built as a memorial to Queen Victoria's husband, said only one of 23 pop and rock 'n' roll concerts there last year caused no trouble.

They accused audiences of hysterical behavior "often encouraged by unthinking performers," threats to hall stewards and vandalism.

Safety Shoes Hope

By JAMES H. HUSSEY
Canadian Press Correspondent

HARBOUR GRACE, Nfld. (CP) — An idle shoe factory in this Conception Bay settlement is to be revived.

Terra Nova Shoe Plant will produce specialized safety footwear. It will be the only safety footwear manufacturer in the Atlantic provinces.

Formerly known as Koch Shoes, the Harbour Grace plant produced for the Canadian Army and local sales.

Abe Alevan, president of Terra Nova Shoe Plant, said: "There is a big demand for safety footwear on the Canadian mainland and the company already has orders committed by some big suppliers, especially in Ontario.

"Provincial governments are gradually making safety footwear compulsory in factories and at construction sites and the demand for the product is growing."

Mr. Alevan said most of Terra Nova Shoes' production will be going to Ontario and Quebec at first. Eventually other markets would be established. There is no other safety footwear manufacturer in the Atlantic provinces and while the market may be small in this area it will help towards total production.

USE QUEBEC MATERIAL

At peak production, Terra Nova Shoe will employ from 30 to 35 people, most of them Newfoundlanders. He said raw material will be imported from Quebec for the manufacture of the safety footwear.

He said "there is no supplier in Newfoundland at present, but if a Newfoundland company could in future supply the industry we would be happy to do business with it."

Koch Shoes was built in 1953 and was part of the former Smallwood government's industrialization program for the province. It was first managed by Jorst Koch, a German national.

In 1956, it was taken over by a St. John's businessman, Baxter Morgan. It ran into difficulties when it lost out on its annual bid to supply the Canadian Army with a yearly supply of about 10,000 pairs of army boots. It continued on a limited scale, but was forced to close several months ago.

TREASURE FIND, ingots made of silver and gold are possibly over 120 years old according to finder Francis Sherman of Oakridge. The ingots were found with the use of a metal detector, near the trail of the historic "Lost Wagon Train" that struggled over the Willamette Pass 120 years ago. — (AP Wirephoto)

Springs Put Berwick on Map

BERWICK, N.S. (CP) — He who would heed the 17th-century British poet and essayist Joseph Addison and chance to find that "untasted spring" might try the small farming and dairying community of Welsford, N.S.

Most of the 50 families obtain their own water and water for their cattle from mountain springs.

But for many tourists who visit during the summer, North Mountain's bubbling springs are the attraction. That first sweet taste of icy spring water bubbling up through rock makes the climb worthwhile.

Farmer Otis Lutz says there's nothing like "mountain water." He pipes his 6,000 feet through a three-quarter inch, underground pipe to home and farm buildings to supply his family and 100 head of cattle.

Mr. Lutz and his neighbors lack the problems of some of their more urban friends who use conventional sources for water supply. Their pipes don't freeze.

In winter, says Mr. Lutz, the spring water is generally warmer than the air temperatures. Some residents here have also had to use reducing valves to cut the pressure.

Completing Sixty Years of Continuous Service to Vancouver Island

Our first mortuary was established in Victoria in 1912, at 1515 Quadra Street. As our service became known and appreciated, the construction of a large new building was indicated. Today's familiar "Memorial Chapel of Chimes" was built in 1933, on Quadra at North Park Street. An extensive addition was made to it in 1954.

Now, a large family of six Funeral Chapels: Victoria, Sidney, Colwood, Duncan, Ladysmith, and Nanaimo; Sands is completely family owned, independent, a local service designed to fill the needs of our people.

With our most recent addition of Funeral Chapels in Duncan and Ladysmith, we have become the largest chain in Canada. This gives us an integrated service on Vancouver Island; pooling of personnel with many years of experience, the most modern facilities known to the profession, and twenty-seven motor vehicles.

Our greater purchasing power helps keep costs lower. We provide direct removal anywhere in the Pacific Northwest by our own vehicles, regular airline service, or chartered aircraft. Arrangement may be made at any of the six Sands Chapels for service at one of the others.

Sands Funeral Chapels continue to be dedicated to the perpetuation of those ideals and philosophies that have made them a community institution, offering serene beauty and sympathetic attention to every detail of the funeral service.

Quakes Don't Shake Hollister

HOLLISTER, Calif. (AP) — Small earthquakes by the hundreds each year rattle this tree-shaded farming town. But not the folks who live here.

"I wouldn't put a vase on a window sill in this town," says Hollister's saloon keeper-mayor, Eugene O'Neill. "But on the other hand, everyone here is so used to earthquakes we just forgot them a minute or so after they happen."

O'Neill says that when a roller hits, cowboy-hatted patrons on barstools in his Garcia Brothers Saloon say, "Did you feel that one?" then go back to their cold beers.

Hollister is near the intersection of two active earthquake faults, the San Andreas and the Calaveras which cuts through town.

Residents feel one about every two weeks, but seismologists say Hollister may go unshaken for months only to be jolted by a swarm of small quakes in a week.

Tucked in a valley 100 miles southeast of San Francisco in California's rich midsection, Hollister with a population of about 8,000, grows sugarbeets, walnuts, prunes and apricots. The highest buildings along quiet streets lined with magnolia and sycamore trees are three storeys. Both have been condemned.

City Manager Joseph Talbott says no hospitals or schools would be built near the fault— the designation of an earth crack extending downward, forming the boundary between two rock masses. Basically, the masses grind back and forth during quakes, easing the earth's tensions.

A thick cement retaining wall out front has a gaping crack, the once-straight fence is crooked and the sidewalk looks as if a strongman wrenched one slab away from another.

"When there's a big one, I get a little scared," Debbie admits. Her Hollister-born mother, Rena Luberto, says: "I don't care about the fault one bit. I'd rather live here where my kids can play and roam around than in a big city where they can't."

Debbie says the television swayed recently in a quake that read 4.5 on the Richter scale.

Four days before, on Feb. 14, a quake that was about 15 times stronger at 5.0, shook even the oldtimers.

A cattle rancher's son at Paicines, south of Hollister, later rounded up the cattle herd and discovered a gaping split along a gully—about half a mile long and three to four feet deep.

Early for Planting, Time for Preparation

GARDENING
jack beastall

Since the vegetable plot is usually of limited area every square foot must be productive. Failure of a sowing or loss of a few plants can mean severe reduction in output.

We know from experience that vegetable sowings made in May soon outstrip earlier sowings. Often the fellow late starting has a garden far ahead of neighbors who tried to jump the season.

The compulsion to get started cannot be entirely ignored, but it can be channelled into projects that will be needed later when less free time is available.

Prevention is better than cure. It is a sound principle to devise something simple to prevent trouble rather than upset the balance of nature with drastic control when conditions are out of hand.

Particularly does this apply to some of our most common vegetable pests such as the cabbage root maggot.

The mats are made from old tarpaper or roofing, cut eight inches square, with a one-inch hole in the centre and a slit from the hole to one edge.

After setting out any of the cabbage family, the mat is slipped around the stem and the hole, made large to allow for stem expansion, filled loosely with pieces from old plastic wrappers.

The same plastic wrappers, such as bread wrappers and vegetable bags, are now being used by many gardeners as plant starters or tents.

Each gardener seems to devise a method of making these tents. Their main purpose is to protect young plants from weather extremes, build up and conserve warmth in the soil immediately around the roots.

At B is shown one method that has been used with good results for several years. Four stakes are pushed into the soil to project about six to eight inches, and the bag placed over the stakes and anchored with soil.

When the young plants are established the sealed end of the bag is cut off to allow more air to enter. A little later a few more inches are removed or folded down.

After the folds reach the level of the stakes the rest of th bag is left as a miniature coldframe around the plant. Excellent for tomatoes, peppers, cucumbers, squash and other warm soil vegetables.

The abundant crops produced on early varieties of bush type tomatoes, plus the ease of culture, have made these plants popular for home gardeners. The one complaint is the rotting of fruits when they lie on cold, damp soil.

When these plants were first introduced we were advised to use some method of support, and the simplest device I have found is illustrated at C, the tomato support frame.

A hole about six inches across is made in the centre of the wire for the main plant stem, and the branches with their crop of fruits lie on the wire well above the soil.

This also serves as a miniature coldframe around the plants. A glass or plastic cover can be used until the plants reach the wire, and the frame around the plants all through the season conserves soil warmth which is so essential to the tomato.

Due to the limited area of most vegetable plots conservation of space is important.

To obtain maximum production from the minimum of space we can plant squash and marrow on the compost heap and train the vines along the fence. This also prevents fruit rotting on damp cold soil.

For cucumbers we can use a frame as shown at D, made of light trellis stock or wood laths as used for plastered walls.

Erect the frame to slope to the north with the plants at the base, or south end. The fruits develop in the shade of the foliage, which is natural, and the shaded soil area is ideal for lettuce during the warmer summer months.

Pole beans can be a problem in the small garden, not only because of wind damage in exposed areas, but also due to the amount of shadow cast over adjacent plantings.

To other benefits: (1) the teepee is well braced and will stand any normal wind; (2) the crop is spread over a longer season since plants on the north side are slower coming into production.

While six poles set in a circle and tied at the top will form a solid teepee, many gardeners prefer 10-foot lengths of 2x2 stock, pointed one end, and drilled near the other end to thread on a stout wire (see F).

The ends of the wire are twisted together leaving just enough slack to spread the legs. Two coats of good paint preserves these structures for many years.

These devices or similar have been used successfully in a small market garden over a ten-year period, and found to be time savers, space savers, as well as beneficial to the crops concerned.

WORK FOR WEEK

By JACK BEASTALL

Early fall blooming shrubs will bloom more freely when pruned in spring, since it is new growths which produce the flowers. Caryopteris clandonesis, Ceanothus Veitchii and its color forms, and the various evergreen flowering Hebes all come in this group.

Rock plants grown in pots are easily established now when removed and planted in suitable soil mixtures for various kinds.

Sweet peas raised in coldframe should now be planted outdoors in well prepared soil. Provide means of support before setting the plants.

In greenhouse or frame, sow seeds of stocks, asters, nemesia, dimorphoteca, zinnias, African marigolds. For those difficult to transplant because they lack fibrous roots, sow two or three seeds in small peat pot or veneer plant bands. Later thin to strongest seedling; remove the container when planting outdoors.

Set out summer cabbage plants and broccoli, onion seedlings. Sow a few lettuce outdoors, and transplant frame grown plants.

"Scalp tension, a sign of the times, is one cause of your hair loss," says Harrison trichologist to balding man. Harrison directs the famous Harrison Hair and Scalp Specialists, whose main office is in Vancouver. They are sending a specialist here to advise men and women how to correct hair troubles by home treatment.

New home treatment methods for preventing baldness will be demonstrated in Victoria this Monday and Tuesday, April 17 and 18. This news was released here today by A. B. Harrison, internationally famous director of Harrison Hair and Scalp Specialists.

In the announcement, Harrison named staff trichologist I. Edgar to conduct the Victoria clinic. Edgar will personally examine hair-worried men and women from 1 p.m. to 8 p.m. Monday and Tuesday at the Sussex Hotel.

EXAMINE YOU FREE

"I want to make it clear that you incur no obligation by seeing Mr. Edgar," Director Harrison said. "Your only obligation is to yourself — to free your mind of worries about hair loss, dandruff, itching, or other scalp disorders, by learning how to take care of your hair. If your trouble is beyond the scope of Harrison Treatment, we will frankly tell you so."

WHO CAN BE HELPED?

Will this new treatment cure baldness? "No," said Harrison sincerely. We cannot help men who are slick-bald after years of gradual hair loss. But where your scalp still grows hair, we can at least save and improve what you have. The important thing is: DON'T WAIT UNTIL IT'S TOO LATE!

Best evidence of the success of Harrison treatment is the phenomenal growth behind it. Harrison trichologists hold clinics in all major cities across Canada.

"Our biggest problem is not in doing what we claim to do," declared Harrison. "But to overcome the average man's initial skepticism is something difficult. He's usually quite desperate — and baldish by the time he nerves himself to see a Harrison trichologist. He's "tried everything." So he starts consoling himself with one of the old superstitions about hair:

"That baldness is hereditary; that men naturally lose hair as they get along in years; that nothing can be done to stop hair loss—and a lot of other notions that we know are not true today."

FREE SCALP EXAMINATION

See Mr. Edgar in person. Learn how the new Harrison method permits you to actually save and improve your hair in the privacy of your own home.

For a free examination and discussion of your hair problems ask the desk clerk at the hotel Sussex, Monday or Tuesday, between 1 p.m. and 8 p.m. for Mr. Edgar's suite number. You don't need an appointment Examinations are given in private.

DEAR DR. MILLER: My letter contains a lesson to those who are careless about their own prescriptions and leave them lying about the house where their dogs can get hold of them.

What happened to me was that my puppy knocked my sleeping tablets off the night stand and proceeded to eat them. He started staggering around the room like a drunk before I discovered what had happened, but I got him in to the doctor in time to save his life.

It could happen, though, that puppies could be permanently poisoned this way, so we humans have to be careful of our own medicine and be sure it is kept out of reach. — Y.N.

COMMENT: Indeed, fatal puppy poisonings can and do occur frequently from ingestion, too. Poisoning is one of Conversely, children need protection from puppy (or especially older dog) medication, too. oisoning is one of the major causes of death in children (beyond the newborn period) and potentially toxic pooch prescriptions must be kept out of their reach. (These drug-induced poisonings by any member of the family can be avoided by the same simple precaution.)

DEAR DR. MILLER: I noted with some amusement your elaborate instructions on how to give mineral oil to a cat. I'd give a laxative in pill form before I would go through all that mess But fortunately I don't have to. My cat, Mr. Higgins, takes his mineral oil directly from a spoon. He simply licks the spoon clean. I'd suggest before your readers try stuffing that oil down they might simply offer it to the cat as I did mine. They may find that theirs will lap it up too. — S.T.

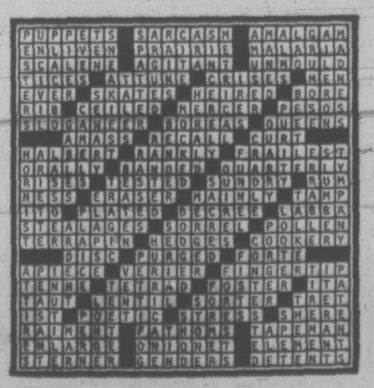
SOLUTION TO LAST WEEK'S PUZZLE



Name's a Lot In Orient... Smith's Out

SINGAPORE (AP) — When an international newscaster referred to a Malaysian spokesman as "Mr. Inch," five million Inches in Malaysia tittered in merriment for the rest of the week.

It was even funnier when at Bangkok airport, in neighboring Thailand, someone paged for "Mr. Tan Sri."

"Inche" means "Mister" and "Tan Sri" is an honorary title from the king in Malaysia. Both cases point out sharply that in Southeast Asia, there's plenty in a name.

For Malays, the name system is eminently useful. For example, if a man is named Dato Abdul Ibrahim bin Dato Haji Ishak, you immediately know: A man named Ishak went to Mecca and received honors from his sultan. He had a son named Abdul Ibrahim who was also royally feted but who hasn't yet made the pilgrimage.

But for foreigners, it's mindblowing. Take Inche Mohammed Ismail bin Haji Ibrahim. He's Inche Ismail, Mr. Ismail or Ismail. You don't throw a dart and choose, you look for the name before the "bin," which means "son of".

CHOSEN AT RANDOM

If there's no "bin," it's a matter of deciding by placement. And you must always use the Datos, Tan Sris and Tuns which are knight-like titles, and, most certainly, the Tunkus and Taunkus which are royal.

In Thailand, someone might be named Surin Ruandej. Like the Malays, his real name comes first: Surin. But unlike the Malays, his last name isn't his father's name —it doesn't mean anything.

Indians in Southeast Asia, as in India, frequently use the names of gods. You don't call Hari Subramaniam either Hari or Mr. Subramaniam. You call him Maniam.

And then there's his uncle: Hari Vengada Rama Sankara Subramaniam Iyer. His family refused to send him telegrams until he settled for H.V.R.S.S. Iyer.

In the uncle's case, his mother had begun to doubt her fertility and went to five temples to pray. When she finally had a son, priests told her to name him after all five gods who had a part in it.

Traditional Chinese names have suffered a bit in Southeast Asia. Classically, the surname comes first with two prenoms following. Hence, Mr. Lee How Fook is Mr. Lee.

But what about Robert Tan Chin Khoon? He's still Mr. Tan, but he's either Robert or Chin Khoon, depending upon whether he's talking to you or to his grandmother. Actually, to his grandma, he's probably "Ah Chin."

SMASH 'EM FAST, MOSCOW SAYS

Tractors Get Tough Test

OTTAWA (CP) — "The main aim of the tester is to smash the tractor as quickly as possible."

That's the blunt goal stated for tractor testers at the State Tractor Research Institute near Moscow when it comes to making the machines as safe and durable as possible for Soviet farmers.

The magazine Soviet Russia Today, issued by the Soviet Embassy here, quotes Sergei Kozyrev, director of the testing station, as saying his workers must not only "quickly put the machine or a unit of it out of operation."

"We must obtain information that would be in conformity with the gradual wear of a tractor in true-to-life conditions."

As well, the machines are suspended over special steel tubs filled with dirt and dust with their moving parts engaged to make the particles "penetrate into the tiniest gaps between machine parts."

On a special testing course, the tractors are riven over rough roads, ditches and concrete blocks with steel shoes attacked to make the ride rougher.

Since no one can keep their seat for such a ride, the machines are equipped with robots to measure shocks and the safety of the machines.

"Moreover, a robot was able to collect data more accurately than he (the tester) could do himself, for it would have no emotions to cope with."

Mr. Kozyrev, the magazine says, reports the tests will boost the reliability and service life of the machines, improve their performance and facilitate the drivers' work.

Panama Rhetoric Eased

PANAMA (AP) — Panama's military dictator has toned down his government's anti-American rhetoric, but that does not mean Gen. Omar Torrijos has abandoned his promise to take over control of the Panama Canal Zone.

"Relations between my office and top Panamanian officials are practically non-existent now," says David J. Parker, American governor of the Canal Zone.

Official relations between the governments of the Canal Zone and the Republic of Panama have reached their lowest point since Panama broke relations with the United States after the 1964 Canal Zone riots. The Canal Zone and Panamanian governments communicate through the U.S. Embassy rather than directly as in the past.

Torrijos' has stated his determination to gain sovereignty and legal jurisdiction over the Canal Zone through negotiations or, failing that, by violence. But his last public threat of violence was an Oct. 11 speech on the third anniversary of the coup which put him in power.

There has been no explanation of the calmer mood, except that the two nations' negotiators are preparing to resume formal discussions.

The general may also be aware of what appears to be a growing anti-negotiation sentiment in the U.S. Congress. Last September the House subcommittee on inter-American affairs held hearings on several resolutions to put the House on record as opposing any surrender of U.S. sovereignty.

Panama's determination to have sovereignty over the Canal Zone—and legal jurisdiction over its courts and law enforcement—started almost as soon as a 1903 treaty was ratified. The treaty has been amended twice. A new set of treaties drafted after the riots would have given Panama sovereignty over the Canal Zone no later than 2009. The drafts also provided for the possible construction of a sea-level canal 10 miles from the present canal. Ecologists say more study is needed to see what might happen to marine life if there is free flow between the Atlantic and the Pacific.

Maverick Romania Draws Broadsides

BUCHAREST (AP) — Romania, which restressed its course as a Communist maverick by giving broad support to President Nixon's China visit, has drawn a new broadside of criticism from Warsaw Pact allies.

The attack throws cold water on Romania's professed ambition of becoming the champion of unity among all Communist countries, including China and the Soviet Union.

The official reaction is that Romania is used to frank words from "fraternal" countries. But Romanians in influential positions make plain they see a tough stretch of foreign policy road ahead.

Early in February, a Czechoslovak party document circulated in the West accused Romania of promoting nationalism and following a course directed "against the interests of the socialist community."

Recently it fell to Hungary's party chief Janos Kadar, visiting here, to pass out the bad marks publicly in a way that one diplomat said must have looked impertinent to the Romanians.

—Clear differentiation between Communist and capitalist countries is needed to see "the frontlines clearly."

—New vigilance and preparedness are needed to brace against imperialism headed by the United States, which "with a gigantic propaganda machinery wants to convince the world of its peaceful intentions."

ROMANIA BELOW QUOTA

There was no need for Kadar to add that the Soviet Union and its true friends feel that Romania has not fulfilled its quota on any of these points.

The Romanian president and party chief, Nicolae Ceausescu, hardly raised a hand amid scant applause from some of the perplexed Romanian listeners.

For protocol reasons, the Romanian press published Kadar's speech in full, along with Ceausescu's at the same meeting. His speech restated Romania's independent position with an emphasis on the "sacred right of each people to determine its own fate."

Senior officials assure Western visitors that relations with the Soviet Union are developing normally. But Romanians who speak frankly, despite a recent law discouraging contacts with foreigners, make no effort to state their concern, recalling past Soviet pressures, both military and economic.

IT'S A GIRL, GIRL, GIRL, GIRL, BOY

EDINBURGH (Reuter) — Quintuplets born six weeks prematurely to a Scottish woman Friday are "all in fine health at the moment," a hospital spokesman said today.

The quints — four girls and a boy —were delivered by caesarean section at Bangour General Hospital, west of Edinburgh, and are receiving special care in incubators.

Their mother, 32-year-old Lily Bostock, also is well, the hospital spokesman said.

S. Viets Routed By Human Waves

SAIGON (CP) — North Vietnamese tanks blasted their way into An Loc today and human-wave assaults routed South Vietnamese forces from a fire base in the central highlands.

The Viet Cong poured rockets and mortars into Saigon and Da Nang, South Vietnam's two biggest cities, killing 51 Vietnamese and wounding 48. The attacks damaged 20 U.S. aircraft.

A Viet Cong broadcast after nightfall said South Vietnamese forces at An Loc had been destroyed and the provincial capital "liberated." It added that Communist command troops then moved on down Highway 13 in an attempt to capture Chon Thanh, 15 miles south of An Loc.

In Saigon, the South Vietnamese command said the situation in An Loc at the time of the Viet Cong broadcast had stabilized although there were ground attacks against the southwestern perimeter.

RUSH REINFORCEMENTS

The South Vietnamese command rushed paratroop reinforcements to the southern and eastern edges of the city and U.S. Air Force planes began making air drops of food and ammunition.

Communist ground fire in the An Loc sector hit a U.S. Air Force C-130 transport plane dropping supplies to An Loc's defenders and one U.S. crew member was killed and two were wounded.

North Vietnamese tanks at An Loc were reported to have fired directly into a South Vietnamese command headquarters.

The government said its forces had regained control over most of An Loc Friday. Field reports said U.S. air power knocked out most of the tanks leading the new North Vietnamese thrust.

The rout of the South Vietnamese in the central highlands gave the Communists their first significant victory in the central highlands.

On the far northern front an attemp to airdrop supplies into surrounded Fire Base Bastogne, keystone of defence of the western flanks of Hue, failed today when several tons of food and ammunition floated into North Vietnamese territory.

OFF TARGET

Two South Vietnamese C-119 transports attempted the drop through North Vietnamese fire but were off target, U.S. sources said. The defenders, who have not been re-supplied for seven days, were unable to reach the food and ammunition.

U.S. sources said defenders of Bastogne have been reduced to using weapons and ammunition from North Vietnamese troops killed in a series of attacks on the base.

Field reports said the human-wave assaults by North Vietnamese forces, climaxing five days of heavy shellings and ground thrusts, forced the battered remnants of a battalion of South Vietnamese paratroops to abandon Fire Base Charlie and flee into the jungles of the central highlands.

The battalion withdrew from the hilltop base Friday night and left 15 of their 18 dead behind, field reports said. The Saigon command said 84 North Vietnamese troops died in the final assault. South Vietnamese losses in the final battle at Charlie were 22 killed and 30 wounded, spokesmen said.

U.S. helicopters flying through heavy anti-aircraft fire rescued 37 survivors, including a wounded U.S. ad-

DEMONSTRATORS SCUFFLE over differing points of view during a protest on Parliament Hill against President Nixon's visit to Ottawa. There were no injuries or arrests, but RCMP restrained the protesters, mostly from the Canadian Liberation Movement, with a cordon of constables.

Visit Ends Amid Protest

OTTAWA (CP) — President Nixon flew out of Ottawa today after signing with Prime Minister Trudeau an historic U.S.-Canada agreement to clean up the Great Lakes.

Just before and immediately after his departure for Washington following a 40-hour state visit, a series of noisey demonstrations took place on and near Parliament Hill protesting the presidential trip to Canada.

The agreement committed the United States and Canada to a massive Great Lakes pollution cleanup expected to cost billions of dollars.

The five-year accord binds both countries to accept agreed water quality standards and to cut phosphate inputs into Lake Erie in half by 1976.

It also provides for installation of treatment facilities in all municipalities discharging wastes into the Great Lakes system.

WORLD EXAMPLE

Trudeau, speaking after the trail-blazing agreement was signed said it will restore an immense area of water to "a wholesome condition."

"It is an example to the world of the interdependence of men and women and the advantage which flow from co-operative measures," said the prime minister.

The document was also signed by External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp for Canada and Secretary of State William Rogers of the U.S.

Nixon said the agreement represents a significant step towards reversing the decline of the lakes, areas of which have been slowly dying from the effects of pollution.

"This agreement extends a great tradition of co-operation between the United States and Canada," said the president.

"Just as the St. Lawrence Seaway transformed the Great Lakes into highways of peaceful commerce among nations, so the Great Lakes water quality agreement can make them great symbols of international co-operation as man makes his peace with nature."

About 50 wet demonstrators tried to storm police lines as Nixon left Parliament Hill and later pulled down and tried to burn a U.S. flag flying on the hill.

The police grabbed the poles, throwing some protesters off balance in a brief melee. No one was hurt and there were no arrests.

ALLOWED TO MARCH

There were scuffles at the West Gate of Parliament Hill as police tried to turn the liberationists away earlier, but after some talk they were allowed to march to a parking lot about 50 yards from the entrance Nixon was to use.

The demonstrators sang O Canada. Some bemused Mounties stood at attention and others shuffled their feet and grinned.

In the scuffle, a middle-aged woman belted a radio reporter, who then hit her with his microphone. No serious damage was done to either.

The tiny band, shouting "Nixon go home," marched up to police lines surrounding the U.S. Embassy after President Nixon had driven away.

They saw the U.S. flag flying from a pole east of the Centre Block and rushed it, hauling it down. A Canadian flag and the liberation movement flag were run up in its place.

The protestors spat on the American flag, then tried to burn it in the Centennial Flame. But it wouldn't ignite and finally it was torn to shreds.

"This is all that's left of the United States," an old man chortled, holding a piece of the stars.

The anti-war demonstrators, several hundred strong, joined the smaller group at this point and they all went to the steps in front of Parliament for speeches.

A major demonstration had been planned in advance for 5 p.m. (Victoria time) after Mr. Nixon's departure for Washington — to protest involvement in Vietnam.

Groos Supports IJC Ship Study

Victoria Liberal MP David Groos said today he agrees with the proposal that the Internation Joint Commission study West Coast shipping problems, but said he hopes Canada will not urge the IJC to make a specific study of the proposed oil tanker route from Alaska.

Groos was commenting on reports from Ottawa that Prime Minister Trudeau and President Nixon had agreed to consider the IJC as the body to study the problem of shipping in U.S.-Canadian coastal waters.

He said it had been his original proposal that some kind of international body make the study and the IJC is a good body for it.

Groos does not want Canada to get the IJC to study the tanker route proposal because that would show "tacit approval" of the proposal by Canada. He said the matter is still before the U.S. Supreme Court and to indicate Canadian approval would be a "great mistake."

The Liberal MP said there is enough traffic in the Strait of Juan de Fuca to warrant "a good look" by the IJC. The investigation could extend up and down both U.S. and Canadian territorial waters so that the same marine laws could apply to both countries and their shipping.

Prime Minister Trudeau, Groos said, had previously told him that the IJC is "one way of approaching" the problem of West Coast shipping.

All Systems Go For Moon Probe

Young and Duke expected visits from their wives. Mattingly's wife, expecting a baby in May, is at home in Houston, Tex.

Mission director Chester Lee reviewed all aspects of preparations and said "all elements report a go" for launch at 12:54 p.m. EST Sunday.

At the launch pad, crews swarmed over the work platforms which cradle the 36-storey-tall Saturn V rocket which is to start the astronauts on their scientific expedition to the mountains of the moon.

They will make final checks of the two spaceships the command and lunar modules and button them up, awaiting the arrival of the spacemen Sunday morning 2½ hours before launch. Experts also will prepare for the pumping aboard early Sunday of more than 800,000 gallons fuel.

The astronauts wound up their training in spaceship simulators Friday, rehearsing the crucial manoeuvres in which Young and Duke detach the lunar ship, descend to the surface and later lift off to execute the intricate rendezvous and docking manoeuvres with the command ship.

Young, the Apollo 16 commander who will be making his fourth space flight, and Duke are to make the first landing in the moon's mountainous highlands.

Their target is a peak-rimmed plateau in the highest region on the front side of the moon where they hope to find definite evidence that volcanoes played a part in forming the moon about four billion years ago.

Crown Realty Tag 'Incredible'

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Angry Kamloops school trustees charged Friday that the provincial government has one price for private developers and another much higher one for public institutions when it comes to selling Crown land.

The trustees said they have been trying for three years to buy six acres of Crown land for an elementary school at the former navy depot on Kamloops' western boundary. The provincial government's asking price? Five thousand dollars an acre.

$307 PER ACRE

In comparision, the trustees cited the disclosure Thursday that the provincial government sold 17 acres of land flanking the Trans-Canada Highway in neighboring Dufferin municipality for $5,200, or $307 an acre.

School board Chairman Cliff Branchflower said the board has refused to pay the price asked for the six acres of land.

DIFFERENCE

"What a difference a few miles make in the price of Crown land," he said. "The school site and the 17 acres are in the same general area, and there shouldn't be such a price difference, especially since the school site is far removed from the Trans-Canada Highway.

Public Works Minister William Chant said Friday there is only one price for the land in question, and "it is probably higher than $5,000 an acre.

"It was independently appraised by two or three different firms several years ago, and the cost then was $5,000," Chant said. "Land values have risen some since then."

IT DEPENDS

The minister said the land in Dufferin may only be worth $307 an acre because "the price depends on the location of the land."

The minister said he has met with school trustees several times on the matter, and that the offer is a reasonable one.

"If they say the land is only worth $300 an acre, I say they don't know what they're talking about."

The land in Dufferin municipality was sold to Kamloops lawyer William Turlock on condition it become a campground. It was used as a campground last summer but now is being developed as an industrial park. Turlock says that under Dufferin zoning permitted.

This week the highways department revoked access rights to the Turlock property with no explanation other than it was in the public interest.

NEWS BRIEFS

Talks Monday

QUEBEC (CP) — Negotiations aimed at settling Quebec's general strike of about 200,000 public servants will resume Monday, Marcel Pepin, president of the Confederation of National Trade Unions, said today. The strike which started Tuesday was to continue, however. (See earlier story Page 3).

Slowdown Pending

LONDON (UPI) — The government sought today to avert an all-out slowdown by Britain's 290,000 railway workers which could lead to new clashes between them and angry umbrella-wielding commuters. Employment Minister Maurice MacMillan met with rail-union leaders in a new attempt to head off the nationwide slowdown scheduled to start at midnight Sunday.

Reduction Sought

HARRIMAN, N.Y. (AP) — A state department official says the United States will campaign in the United Nations General Assembly next fall for a reduction to 25 per cent from 31.52 per cent in its assessed share of the UN's more than $200 million annual budget.

Pandas Too Old?

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — Two giant pandas, gifts to the American people given during President Nixon's visit to China, seem to be a lot older than expected and zoo officials here are worried.

For one thing, there may not be any pattering of tiny panda feet around the National Zoo as a result of their union. Mating would be out of the question.

TUX POOR ID

OTTAWA (CP) — Cabinet rank and black tie were not enough Friday night to get an angry Regional Expansion Minister Jean Marchand past a security blanket at the Nationl Arts Centre.

He arrived for a gala performance for President Nixon and 2,300 other specially-invited guests without proper identification and was blocked from entry by RCMP, part of an army of security forces mobilized for Nixon's 40-hour Canadian visit.

Marchand was apprehended as he walked down a ramp towards the centre's main foyer and escorted back to street level by police. After a short, heated discussion, police said he could go in.

The cabinet minister, a close friend of Prime Minister Trudeau, said he would not go back into the building unless he was assured he would not be further interfered with.

The argument ended abruptly when film cameramen closed in to capture the incident. The minister was then escorted back down the ramp and into the building by an RCMP officer.

Derailment Fatal

ZAGREB (Reuter) — Three persons are known to have been killed and 42 injured early today when the Paris-Athens express left the tracks about 25 miles southeast of this Yugoslav city.

CONSTRUCTION HALT PREDICTED

VANCOUVER (CP) — A union spokesman predicted Friday that construction in British Columbia will come to a halt within a week because of the continuing contract dispute in the industry.

Lorne Robson, spokesman for the Carpenters Union, told a rally of 250 union members that the Construction Labor Relations Association, which bargains for some 400 contractors in B.C., is taking such provocative positions that unions representing construction trades have no choice but to strike.

The rally was called to coincide with an association meeting and to protest lack of progress in bargaining to reach agreement on a new contract to replace one that expired March 31.

"We've tried, we've tried every way possible to get a fair settlement," Robson said.

He said that after three months of negotiations the association still has not made a wage offer to the majority of the unions and only half of the carpenter's contract items have been settled.

"CLRA tells us that if we drop our demand for a 35-hour week they will make an offer," Robson said. "Well, let's say we dropped it, what else are they going to tell us to drop before they make an offer?"

The carpenters later paraded around the Hotel Vancouver where members of the CLRA were meeting to hear from President C. J. Conaghan.

Earlier, Connaghan said the unions will be at fault, not the employers, if there is another shutdown of the construction industry in B.C. he said it's the unions that are serving strike notices, and the CLRA hadn't served lockout notice on anyone.

"We have said time and time again that we will not lockout unless we are struck."

Two unions, the plumbers and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, have taken strike votes and served strike notice on 48 contractors. Notice has expired but the unions will have to wait until the mediators make their reports before legal strike action can be taken.

Connaghan said the contractors meeting was one of a series of meetings being held to keep the contractors informed about negotiations.

He said some 400 contractors at the closed meeting indicated there will be "very, very strong" support for the lockout vote now being conducted.

The deadline for returning the lockout ballots is Tuesday but Connaghan said the results may not be made public.

Talks have broken off with three unions — carpenters, plumbers and electrical workers.

Connaghan said negotiations are continuing with eight other unions, including the teamsters.

Robson blamed the low turnout of carpenters for the rally on the rainy weather. There are 4,500 members in the Vancouver-New Westminster local.

Connaghan interpreted the turnout as a sign of lack of support of the union position.

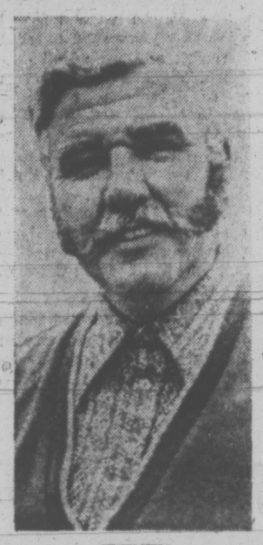
SPLISH . . . SPLASH

The Neptunes are going back to the front line with a mighty load of fire water sloshing around where torpedoes and depth charges once poised for an entirely different kind of kill



STEVEN

By DON VIPOND, Times Staff

The flying firemen from Victoria are going to make a mighty splash on the forest fire scene this summer.

It's going to be delivered by the latest addition to the fleet of water bombers working out of Patricia Bay airport — a whopping Lockheed Neptune, with 2,600 gallons in its belly where torpedoes and depth charges once nestled.

Flying Fireman Ltd., bought by local businessman Richard Rude three years ago, has purchased three Neptunes, post-war anti-submarine attack bombers retired by the RCAF.

One of them has been modified for water bomber work and will be evaluated by the company and provincial government through the next fire season — officially May 1 to Sept. 15.

In test flights over the past two weeks the Neptune has dropped about 10 of its soggy loads, using a taxi runway at the airport for a target.

Missing on the modified Neptune is the boom, a cigar-like extension beyond the tail which housed a radar tracking system. The bomb bay doors are gone and in their place the water tank adds squarer lines. Gone too is all the military electronic gear which jammed the air force Neptunes.

Flying Fireman, which has grown from four to 13 planes over the past two years, has six Canso water bombers under contract to the province through the forest fire season. The Canso, formerly used in search and rescue, is a two-engine amphibian which scoops its 800-gallon payload from lakes.

★

The Neptune is land-based only, explains Frank Steven, chief pilot and operations manager. It has four engines, two of them jets to help lift that 40-ton "all up" load off the runway.

The 2,600 gallons can be rammed aboard in six minutes. It's loaded under pressure through a single three-inch port.

Apart from delivering better than three times the Canso payload, the Neptune is faster in the air and in a business where speed counts. It cruises at 250 miles an hour, twice the Canso's cruising speed.

The Canso slows to about 110 miles an hour to drop its load, the Neptune to about 140.

The Neptune could claim to be the big bird on the water bomber scene now if it weren't for the two Martin Mars based at Sproat Lake near Port Alberni. Last of their kind in the world (only five were made), these flying boats are operated jointly by four logging companies to fight forest fires and can drop 6,000 gallons at a shot.

Water bombers supply some of the most spectacular unscheduled sights Island tourists see each summer. Actually they don't drop water but a mixture of water and fire-retarding chemical. A red dye is added to make the shot highly visible for spotters.

The thing which raises water bombing beyond amateurs is the ideal height for a drop — 75 feet. That might not be so bad over flat land. Over rolling forests with the occasional towering snag it's a sweat.

Dropping water alone on a fire would just produce steam, says Steven. The chemical added produces a jelly-like mix the crews call "mud." It coats the forest growth, shutting out the oxygen needed for burning.

Pilots don't aim for the fire but the timber in front of the advancing edge of the flanks. Their attack is directed by a forestry officer in a spotter or "bird dog" plane.

The bird dog plane is the first on the scene when a forest fire is going to be attacked from the air. It radios the best run in for the bomber and may lead it in initially.

Because the Neptune is faster than the Cansos, Flying Fireman is switching to a faster bird dog, a twin-engine turbo Commander which cruises at 270 miles an hour, Steven said.

The company's Cansos flew almost 1,000 hours against forest fires last year and completed 5,000 drops. Fighting fires from the air isn't cheap. Cost of delivering a gallon of "mud" worked out to about 40 cents, meaning each Canso drop cost about $400.

"We have to be at least 85 per cent accurate with the drops. Anything less isn't acceptable."

Steven says his pilots need not only flying skill but co-ordination. There's a knack to it. Because his planes are from an earlier era, their pilots are mostly former air force, older men who have the experence with them.

A full week of ground school for his 19 pilots starts next week. When they start flying after that the fire season will officially be only a week away.

'Balance Billing' Started and So Far No Screams

By DON VIPOND

A Victoria doctor who has begun "balance billing" his patients said Friday the majority has readily accepted the move.

The doctor, a general practitioner, said indications are more doctors here and elsewhere in the province will take the same step this spring if the impasse between physicians and provincial government over a new fee schedule continues.

That would mean that for the first time in years many patients would be charged directly for a fraction of their doctor bills.

The vast majority of residents in British Columbia have their doctor bills covered by medicare. Balance billing relates to the difference between what medicare will pay for a service and what the doctors, represented by the B.C. Medical Association, set as the fee for that service.

The BCMA has been negotiating with the provincial government for more than a year on a new doctors' fee schedule, on average 8 per cent higher. Increases would all be concentrated in the six doctor groups, including general practice, showing the lowest earnings.

Prior to the new year the Medical Services Commission, which administers medicare for the province, was paying 90 per cent of the BCMA schedule. Doctors generally were not billing patients for the balance.

When the BCMA introduced its new fee schedule Jan. 1, the provincial government ignored it. The Medical Services Commission continued to pay doctors for insured services at 90 per cent of their old fee schedule.

The doctor in Victoria who is balance billing is charging his patients directly for the difference between the medicare schedule and 90 per cent of the new doctors' schedule.

For an office visit, it means a charge of 45 cents payable directly by the patient. Medicare pays $6.30 and 90 per cent of the new doctors' fee schedule is $6.75.

The charge direct to the patient for a home visit by this doctor is $2.70. Medicare will pay the balance of $8.10.

Care throughout a maternity will cost the patient $45 directly with medicare paying the balance of $108.

With most operations, the direct charge to the patient will be $9.

Under terms of the Medical Services Act, the doctor must first serve notice on his insured patients he intends charging beyond the medicare schedule and they must acknowledge notice and agree to the arrangement.

Since he began balance billing two weeks ago he has offered the required form to about 100 families. Two-thirds have signed it immediately and the rest have taken it home to study. Of these, about one-quarter have since signed and sent the form back to him.

No one has yet refused to sign.

★ ★ ★

The doctor says there are three reasons he has gone to balance billing.

First, he believes the doctors' new fee schedule to be a fair one. As a matter of principle then he should use it.

Second, he believes rising health care costs may well mean that in future government insurance schemes will not be able to cover all services. Balance billing is therefore educating his patients for what will likely come.

Third, the fee schedule impasse between doctors and government could go on and on. When it is resolved, changes certainly won't be retroactive so the increases he feels entitled to through the protracted negotiations would be lost without balance billing.

He says that if a satisfactory new fee schedule is adopted by the government, there would be no reason for him to continue balance billing.

Rocky Reception For Ship Idea

Maritime Museum director Col. J. W. D. Symons today threw cold water on a proposal that the museum bring in an ancient square-rigger sailing ship for permanent exhibit.

Symons said the proposal, made by Victoria Mayor Peter Pollen, would be too costly for the museum to handle and would not lead to a profit until quite a long time after purchase.

The ship involved is the 95-year-old Elissa, now sailing under a Greek name in the Mediterranean. She is 430 tons and about 200 feet in length.

"We have to consider first things first, and our main problem right now is keeping the Maritime Museum in being," Symons said. "We're still struggling to stay alive."

It is believed the purchase price for the Elissa would be about $30,000. A further $250,000 would have to be spent on refitting and restoring her.

"Where this money is supposed to come from I just don't know," Symons said.

Pollen's proposal calls for it to come from private interests.

Symons said it would porbably be about seven or eight years before the museum could start to make a profit from exhibiting the ship. Before that time money would have to be paid for buying the ship, bringing her over from Europe, drydock facilities to keep her and the rebuilding costs.

The Recipe Calls for a Pinch of Salt

BETWEEN FACT AND fiction lies the wonderful land of apocrypha. It is a country of mirages and shifting horizons. In it the account that has all the earmarks of a tall tale may be strictly true, while what's offered as truth may owe a considerable debt to the imagination of the teller.

In apocrypha, as an old Newfoundlander once observed to me on the subject of Nova Scotians, a man doesn't know where to he's at.

To illustrate, we may as well commence with that Newfie skipper. First he warned me that Bluenoses tend to exaggerate. Then he held forth on the great days of commercial sword-fishing in the Gulf of St. Lawrence. Once, he claimed, he found himself surrounded by half-ton broadbills so lazy in their surface basking that they would scarce move out of his schooner's track.

Between sunrise and two in the afternoon when the wind got up, he and his crew took nine swordfish — enough to pay for their stores and fuel, and stuff the cash-box with good Canadian dollars.

Perhaps it really happened that way. But there's nothing like a few drinks to color the mists of time. Lacking proof, the skipper's yarn must be considered an export from apocrypha.

Let me make it plain that I have no quarrel with the apocryphal. It seasons the humdrum of everyday with a pinch of the passing strange. Life would be duller without it, and there's always the fascinating possibility that the traveller's tale may be no word of a lie.

I would like to believe that a certain lost valley in the Vancouver Island interior guards a secret, as it very well may.

The loggers had their way with the valley many years ago. It has been left to the hawk, the grouse and the deer. Its fire-blackened stumps are submerged in the crowding second-growth, and its logging railway grades are no more than dim trails that wind below the sidehills.

If you follow one of those grades, the account goes, you will presently happen on parallel ribbons of red-rusted steel. On the steel, grandly forlorn, sits a logging locomotive. Its brasswork has been stripped away, and the weather has robbed the ancient Climax of the shiny black paint and white trim that was its crowning glory.

A few yards behind this relic, the rails end.

That's the way the story came to me. I hope it's true, but it remains unconfirmed, and must be regarded as another sending from the land of mirages.

If you can stand a further venture into apocrypha, consider any of several outposts high in the Canadian Arctic. Their inhabitants know the meaning of remoteness. But because of their fire-breaks, they are less isolated than they used to be.

Fire roads . . . when the nearest tree is hundreds of miles south?

The Arctic hand who told the tale chuckled. Then he proceeded to explain.

For most of the year, those communities were cut off. A float plane couldn't set down at them because their waterways were frozen. The ice that surrounded them was so rough that not even a Northwest Territories bush pilot could pull off a ski landing. Their councils yearned for landing strips and a territorial government that works hard for northerners would gladly have obliged. But Ottawa vetoed the request.

However, it occured to one of the trouble-shooters at territorial headquarters that there might be another way to skin the cat. In due time, a submission was received at Ottawa.

It pointed out that forest fires are a menace to the outposts, and stressed the need for fire-breaks.

No problem! The treeless settlements at the top of Canada got their fire-breaks, and if these happened to be long, straight and wide enough to double as landing strips, what matter?

Maybe that's how it came about. But once more, in the absence of proof, I'm forced to consider the story suspect.

It belongs in my apocrypha file with the logging locie and the nine swordfish and other borderline gleanings. They could be true . . . but I can't offer any guarantee that they are.

'We'd Honor Their Pickets'

Picket lines preventing members of another union from working are "normal trade union movement activities," a spokesman for the Teamsters Union said today.

Local 213 business agent Frank Peters was commenting on statements Friday by Joseph Simpson, a staff representative of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers in which Simpson said the Teamsters should not be picketing the Duncan operation of Butler-Lafarge Ltd. because there is no need for it.

Eight to 10 CBRT workers are being kept off the job by the picket line and Simpson described the situation as "terrible" for the CBRT men.

Peters said today he is not aware of any dispute at the Duncan plant between Teamsters and CBRT men.

"It's too bad about the CBRT boys," he said. "No one likes to go on strike. And they are in effect caught in it."

He said if CBRT was the union striking Butler-Lafarge the Teamsters would be expected to honor, and would honor, the CBRT picket line.
